PEACE NOTE 'TIP' TRACED TO WASHINGTON; BOLLING DENIES ALL KNOWLEDGE OF IT; BARUCH TELLS HOW HE MADE $476,168

NEWS WIDELY CIRCULATED

Wall Street Correspondent of Bolling's Firm Sent Word to 45 Branches.

MAY BE EXPLAINED TODAY

Three Telegrams Show How News of Wilson Message Was Spread Broadcast.

HOLLWEG GUIDED BARUCH

He Based His Market Operations on Chancellor's "Declaration of Peace."

After Bernard M. Baruch had cheerfully admitted yesterday at the inquiry by the Rules Committee of the House of Representatives into the alleged "leak" of President Wilson's first peace message of Dec. 20 that he, Mr. Baruch, cleared $476,168 by short selling in the stock market between Dec. 10 and 23, without advance knowledge of the note, a new aspect of the matter under investigation was presented by E. F. Hutton, head of E. F. Hutton & Co. of 61 Broadway, stock brokers.

Mr. Hutton submitted three out of a series of four telegrams exchanged by his firm with correspondents. The fourth telegram came on Dec. 20 from the Hutton firm's Washington correspondent, F. A. Connolly & Co., of which R. W. Bolling, a brother-in-law of President Wilson, is a member. Mr. Hutton, on the stand, said his firm did not keep a file of incoming telegrams, but that he produced a [illegible] received on the same day from a Chicago correspondent. The members of F. A. Connolly & Co. and the telegraph operator employed by them will be called at today's hearing, and the missing telegram is also to be put in evidence.

Mr. Connolly arrived at the Hotel Astor late last night. He did not want to talk before taking the stand at the inquiry, but after reading the charges he consented to give a brief statement. He added that he was ready to let the committee have access to his books, which would show that neither he, Mr. Bolling, nor any of their customers had profited in connection with the peace note.

Denials of Both Messrs. Bolling and Connolly of Any Advance Knowledge of the Peace Note

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—R. Wilmer Bolling, brother-in-law of President Wilson, is a member of the firm of F. A. Connolly & Co., the Washington representative of E. F. Hutton & Co. When the substance of E. F. Hutton's testimony before the House Rules Committee in New York today was given to Mr. Bolling tonight he said he had no information whatever on the subject.

"I really do not know a thing about it," said he. "If any communication was sent from the firm of Connolly & Co. that day—Dec. 20—I knew nothing whatever of it. F. A. Connolly was subpoenaed and went to New York on the Congressional Limited this afternoon to appear before the committee. He will tell what he knows of the matter. I certainly don't know a thing about it.

"I recall that I was in the office but a short time that day. I am not there all the time, anyway, and was in the office on Dec. 20 not over half the day. But as I said, I know nothing whatever of the communication mentioned by Mr. Hutton. What was told me tonight was the first I heard of it."

Mr. Connolly Denies All

F. A. Connolly said in New York last night:

"I think that we got our first information that President Wilson would give out a peace note from Hutton & Co., which had obtained its information from Chicago. Naturally I got together all the information I could, obtained from reports and rumors which had reached the office, and sent that on to New York. None of my information came from any source which could be properly termed a "leak." I believe it was about one hour and a half after the news that the note was coming first reached New York that I sent my message to the firm.

"I can't tell where I first heard the report, but, to the best of my knowledge, I obtained my information from what I heard customers talking about. Why, I heard half a dozen stories, certainly not from so-called "leak" sources, that President Wilson was going to address the Senate.

"I am ready to take an oath that Mr. Bolling has never uttered any word about information from the White House or ever spoke to me about information concerning the first peace note, or any other, in advance of publication."

Elephants Employed to Move Traffic in the Snow-Blocked Streets of Berlin

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (via London.)—Of the extraordinary sights seen in the snow-blocked streets of Berlin, the employment of huge working elephants for traffic purposes is certainly the strangest. These animals belong to the Hagenbeck Show, which is now exhibiting here. Every morning they may be seen on their way from the Lehrter railway station drawing heavy carts loaded with iron boilers, each weighing 35,000 pounds. No eight horses would be sufficient to move these wagons, but to the gigantic pachyderms it seems as child's play. Apparently they suffer as little from the intense cold prevailing here at present as from the tropic heat of their native country, and they wind their way along the crowded Berlin streets with almost uncanny nimbleness. If they find an autobus stuck in a snowdrift, with panting, exhausted horses trying to pull it out, a working elephant lends a friendly forehead, and in a trice the stranded vehicle is afloat again.

No one acquainted with Berlin in peace times would recognize it now in its white garment, since once upon a time snow was never permitted to remain more than a few hours in the streets. Now it has been snowing for nearly a whole week, and only the principal streets have been partly cleared, which means a grievous disturbance to the general traffic and street-car service and no doubt is responsible for the scarcity of food and fuel, of which there is such bitter complaint. Very timely, therefore, comes the appeal of the commanding General of the Province of Brandenburg, von Kessel, which the newspapers publish under the headline, "Volunteers to the Front!" This document speaks for itself:

"For days snow has been falling, accumulating in large heaps in the streets and blocking traffic. Men who other times used to clear the streets within twenty-four hours are at the frontiers opposing the enemy. Who is going to do their work? Can we look calmly on as poor horses draw their last breath in a fruitless effort to move heavy loads? Those horses are drawing war material which must not be delayed. Retardation helps the enemy. Are we going to allow it?

"Volunteers to the front! Work for the Fatherland does not disgrace, whatever it be. Every houseowner or janitor should remove the snow from in front of his property so far as to permit free traffic. Never mind the pavement now; the principal thing is to clear a way for merchandise to the factories, for your coal, flour, and potatoes. Whoever lends a helping hand serves the Fatherland. I trust no one will fail."

Kessel trusted not vainly, for by about noontime many streets had been fairly cleared and there were thousands at work who surely never dreamed of ever handling a snow shovel. Among them were women in furs and men with gold-rimmed eyeglasses.

ASTOR BABY SPENDS $86,034 IN 3 YEARS

His Mother, in Accounting, Reports That She Used $25,674 More Than His Allowance.

Little John Jacob Astor's maintenance for the first three years and a half of his life from Aug. 14, 1912, to Dec. 31, 1915, cost $86,034. This was disclosed in an accounting filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court by his mother, Mrs. Madeleine Talmage Force Astor Dick, as guardian. Although the income from the $3,000,000 trust fund which Colonel Astor provided in his will for any child of the baby's mother which might survive him has averaged $140,000 a year, Mrs. Dick said in her accounting that she had paid out $25,674 more than the $60,360 which the executors had allowed her.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 30.—While a German submarine was busy sinking the Danish United Steamship Company's steamer [illegible] in the North Sea, the steamer Iris, belonging to the same company, came alongside. The German commander ordered also the crew of the Iris into the boats, but Captain Christensen refused to obey, saying he sailed under a neutral flag between neutral countries and carried no contraband.

"You may sink my ship, if you dare," said the Captain, "but I myself and my crew stay on board."

Overawed by such courage the Germans permitted the Iris to pass on and today the steamer arrived at Copenhagen.

TABLE RESOLUTION FOR PEACE DEBATE

Senate, by a Vote of 38 to 30, Shelves Cummins's Proposal for a General Discussion.

DIVISION ON PARTY LINES

Other Resolutions Are Pending, and Republicans Expect to Force Debate in Some Way.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The threatened Republican attack on the President's address on permanent peace guarantees opened in the Senate today with a speech by Senator Cummins in which he charged that participation by the United States in an international league to enforce peace, such as he interpreted the President as advocating, would not maintain peace but would involve the nation in continual warfare.

The speech was made on a motion to take up his resolution fixing a time for the Senate to discuss the President's address. The resolution was later laid on the table on motion of Senator John Sharp Williams by a vote of 38 to 30, with Senator Martine of New Jersey alone of the Democrats voting with the Republicans. The Republican vote was solid.

American Killed on the Mount Temple by Raider's Shot, Says Captain of Another Unlisted Victim of Moewe

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 30.—Captain Andersen of the Norwegian steamer Hallbjoerg, who has arrived here with other neutral seamen from Germany, reports that his ship (not before listed as a victim of the German raider) was stopped by the Möwe on Dec. 4 in the Atlantic. The Möwe sent thirty men on board. The Captain protested because the Hallbjoerg carried no contraband, but in vain. The Germans brought the Norwegian crew and 500 tins back to the Möwe and sank the Hallbjoerg.

On board the Möwe were ninety-three men from the steamer Voltaire of Liverpool, sunk Dec. 2. On Dec. 6 a Newfoundland schooner on a voyage to Gibraltar with fish was sunk, and six men were brought on board.

The same night the Canadian Pacific Railroad liner Mount Temple, with 750 horses and 5,000 tons of goods, was sunk, and 107 men were taken off. An American stoker was hit by a shot and died.

On Dec. 8 the London steamer King George was stopped, her scuttles were opened, and she sank in seven hours.

On Dec. 9 the Cambrian Range was sunk, after eight men had been taken off.

On Dec. 10 the steamer Georgic, carrying 7,000 tons of goods and 1,200 horses and bound from Philadelphia to Brest, was sunk. A panic arose and the crew jumped into the sea. The Germans picked them up, with the exception of one man, who was drowned.

On Dec. 11 the Möwe met the Yarrowdale. Because of stormy weather the Yarrowdale was ordered to follow the Möwe line ahead.

The next day the London steamer St. Theodore was stopped, and also ordered to follow.

On Dec. 13 there was fine weather, and prize crews were put aboard the Yarrowdale and St. Theodore. The Möwe assembled about 500 captured men, who, after a short deliberation, were sent aboard the Yarrowdale.

Captain Andersen says that on Dec. 29 the Yarrowdale anchored off the Swedish island Hveen, where a German guard boat turned up. Two British seamen jumped overboard in the night and tried to swim ashore, but were discovered by searchlights and picked up after a struggle in the sea with swimming German bluejackets.

Next day the Yarrowdale steamed southward and anchored again in Swedish water. A Swedish torpedo boat was observed, and all 400 captives were ordered below deck into the bunkers. Only the officers, who numbered about fourteen, were allowed in the cabins. At all doors armed Germans were stationed, and the prisoners were told they would be shot if they let out any sound.

The Swedish torpedo boat came alongside, but the German officers and crew had discarded their uniforms, and when the Swedish officer hailed the ship the German Captain answered that he was a peaceable seaman and the Swedish Navy had nothing to do on board his ship.

The Swedish officer said it was his duty to examine the ship for weapons, so a petty officer came on board the Yarrowdale. As he found nothing extraordinary, he took his leave and the torpedo boat steamed northward.

A few hours later the Yarrowdale weighed anchor, passed a German guardship south of the Sound, and the first prisoners were permitted on deck.

German Papers Say Reply May Encourage New Peace Effort

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 31, 4:53 A. M.—The German newspapers, according to a Rotterdam dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, intimate that Germany will acknowledge President Wilson's speech in such a way as to encourage the President to continue his efforts in favor of peace. According to the dispatch Count von Bernstorff has been instructed to say that Germany is ready to formulate peace terms if asked to do so by the Allies, and if there is a possibility of peace negotiations being successfully undertaken. The dispatch adds that Austria has sent a similar communication to the Austrian Chargé d'Affaires at Washington and that it is believed Bulgaria will follow the example of the Teutonic powers.

Interest is manifested also over the possibility that Germany may make a definite statement of the terms upon which she and her allies would be willing to conclude a peace with the Entente nations. The latter have expressed in a general way their basic terms for a conclusion of peace, but the Central Powers have shown a disposition to ignore President Wilson's effort to have them present an outline of the conditions upon which they would be willing to end the war.

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (via London.)—The Lokal-Anzeiger says it understands the German Government has acknowledged in a dispatch to Washington the receipt of President Wilson's address to the Senate with regard to peace. Whether, in addition to the message, the ideas developed by President Wilson are to be made the subject of further comment or discussion may be made known shortly, says the paper.

Sweden for a Neutral Conference.

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The Vossische Zeitung has received a report from Stockholm to the effect that the Swedish Government has invited the Dutch Minister to co-operate in preparations for a conference of neutrals, says the Overseas News Agency.

"This conference," says the News Agency, "is a logical consequence of the recent meeting of Scandinavian Ministers in Christiania, at which it was resolved that no steps should be taken which could be interpreted as a peace offer to any of the belligerents, but that there should be a discussion of all measures of neutral interest arising during and after the war. The conference, it has now been planned, will deal exclusively with economic questions which will continue to arise long after the war has ended. No merely political subjects will be discussed."

Westarp Wants Indemnities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—Speaking before the Conservative National Society of Saxony at Dresden yesterday, Count Friedrich von Westarp, the Conservative leader in the Reichstag, admitted that it would be ridiculous to deny that many great changes in internal politics must come after the war. That was true, he said, even regarding the Prussian election laws. However, Prussian peculiarities must be reckoned with by the reformers.

"The Conservative party must continue to insist," he said, "upon a strong Monarchical Government, endowed with independent executive power upon the continuation of the Bismarckian economic policy and the independence of the individual States."

Speaking of foreign policies, the Count opined that the rejection by the Entente of the Kaiser's peace offer and the additional sacrifices now required justified a much larger measure of compensation for Germany, for whose security territorial extensions in the east and west, including Belgium, seemed necessary.

To protect Germany in a future war with England, which Count von Westarp thinks bound to come, he said he wished territorial changes on the coast of Flanders. But, above all, cash war indemnities were imperative; otherwise, he said, "we would have to greet our returning soldiers with tax collectors' notices in hand."

SPAIN EAGER FOR KING TO ACT AS MEDIATOR

Madrid Correspondent Also Believes Germany Would Welcome Alfonso in the Rôle.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The London Times correspondent at Madrid in a mailed dispatch, dated Jan. 16, sends the following:

"That Spain should play a chief part in the eventual settlement of the war and that the peace conference should be held at Madrid is an ambition very dear to the hearts of the Spaniards. There is an uneasy feeling that the part played by the country hitherto, however expedient from a material point of view, has not been entirely up to the standard of its traditions, and that the success which the Government has had in keeping friends with both sides will not necessarily entitle it to the gratitude of either side when the war is over. A peace conference at Madrid, presided over by the King of Spain, would do away with all cause of self-reproach on this score, strict neutrality would be vindicated in the eyes of posterity, appearing not as a mere selfish and time-serving policy, as some represent it today, but in its true light as a means of bringing the priceless boon of peace to suffering mankind.

"The very strength of this desire to play a part in ending the war impelled Count Romanones to answer President Wilson's note in the way he did. Resentment at the President's sudden initiative, which looked like an attempt to steal a march upon the rest of the neutral world; unwillingness to play the part of a brilliant second to the United States; the risk of offending England and France to no purpose, and even of receiving a public rebuff such as that which Switzerland received—all these considerations were in the minds of the Spanish statesmen when they drafted the reply that became famous. Perhaps more than all they welcomed the chance of taking up a position that would confer upon them the initiative on a more propitious occasion.

"Today nobody doubts that they were right. The Germanophile and clerical press, which was at first beside itself with rage at Spain's contribution to the failure of Wilson's overtures, speedily recovered its equanimity. To refuse the lead of Wilson, they discovered, was not after all a very dreadful thing, especially as the Germans themselves did not appear to welcome it. If the Pope had taken the lead, or even given it his adhesion, the case would have been different. Then, indeed, the action of the Spanish Liberal Government would have been unspeakably wicked, but the Pope maintained silence, a silence that has only been broken by the recommendation to his flock in Spain to abstain from polemics on subjects of peace until a more convenient season.

"Meanwhile, the Spanish correspondent of A. B. C. in Berlin, through whom we sometimes learn what the Germans wish the Spaniards to think, explains in an article that Wilson had made a blunder in his note to the Allies, and that it only rests with Spain to profit by it. He says:

"'Here it is thought that President Wilson has disqualified himself from intervening and playing the part of arbitrator on a later and perhaps a decisive occasion, and that the authority of Spain has increased. Wilson having failed, the figure of Don Alfonso XIII. looms larger before us, and upon it all eyes are fixed against the day when all belligerents will be disposed to listen to words of conciliation. Besides in Germany it is thought that in the European conflict the neutrals of Europe are more entitled than those of other continents to talk of peace.'"

The correspondent quotes a high German diplomatic personage as follows:

"The false step made by Wilson has impressed Germany with a feeling that Spain alone has the authority to intervene at the right moment, and that Madrid is the most appropriate capital for the conferences which not only will have to make peace, but also to change the present theories of international politics and to shape a new law of nations. Madrid is destined to be the cradle of a new era of European civilization."

Unkind references to President Wilson in the above message, says the correspondent, coupled with fulsome flattery of Spain, seem to indicate that the next great peace offensive may be made through Madrid. The violent attacks of the Germanic press upon the Government seem to be a prelude to a general assault at an early date.

SAYS WILSON'S ADDRESS MEETS FRENCH FAVOR

D'Estournelles de Constant Interprets "Peace Without Victory" as Check to Germany.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, Senator and President of the parliamentary group favoring international arbitration, commenting today on President Wilson's address to the United States Senate, said to The Associated Press:

"General opinion in France on the message of President Wilson is in the main unanimous, but naturally is expressed in very differing terms. French opinion unanimously finds great satisfaction and even real consolation in at last hearing the voice of the American Government raised against the war of aggression and conquest which we have been fighting for nearly three years and which we did all that was possible to prevent.

"We awaited the American Government's protest at the time of the violation of Belgium's neutrality and the Hague Conventions, which are to a large extent the work of the two great republics, the United States and France. Today this protest comes certainly rather late, but it is frank, humane, and democratic. Accordingly democratic France welcomes it as an act of friendship and fraternity. She understands admirably its sentiment.

"On the other hand, opinions are divided as regards the expression of this sentiment. Many of my friends think the expression matters little. Many others think as I do that a message of the President of the United States ought not to be capable of misinterpretation. When President Wilson declares that he wishes 'a peace without victory' he clearly desires to say that the German Government should renounce all idea of conquest, and consequently make publicly before the world and before history the monstrous confession that it let loose war for nothing, that it has sacrificed millions of human existences and incalculable wealth for nothing, for the eternal confusion of Prussian militarism, the scourge of Germany and the world.

"But Mr. Wilson seems to say something different. He seems to say that the struggle will be a draw between the aggressor and his victims and that the war will end in a peace without a conclusion, without morality. That is neither possible nor even conceivable. There must be a victory, and there will be a great victory, a victory of the right of the people.

"In other words, the peace which we seek should be the morality of the war; that is to say, the ideal the young republic pursues, as does that of France—a victory of the policy of the future over the most hateful of the traditions of the past, the modern triumph of resistance to militarism and the spirit of conquest."

WOMEN OF VIENNA HOLD A PEACE MEETING

Discuss Wilson's Efforts and Urge Sisters in Warring States to Second Them.

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (via Wireless to Sayville.)—A dispatch received here from Vienna, dated Jan. 28, says the Overseas News Agency, tells of a meeting of women held in the Austrian capital in favor of peace. Numerous messages from women's associations were read at the meeting, among them one of sympathy from the women of Denmark.

Several women in their speeches discussed President Wilson's efforts to bring about peace, and a resolution was adopted in which the women of the belligerent States were urged to tell the world that they desired a cessation of hostilities.

"PACIFISM OF A WISE MAN."

So French Writer Styles Wilson Move for Peace and Preparedness.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Etienne Grosclaude, in the Liberté, draws a parallel between the belligerents and fighting dogs.

"It is just as impossible for either side to let go," says Grosclaude, "as it is for two bulldogs whose teeth are clenched in one another's hide. Even if they would they are now unable to do so. Does Wilson realize this fact?"

Grosclaude compares President Wilson to a seer who indulges in mystic rites around a tripod in inspired ecstasy, and says it takes some time for the faithful to interpret his oracles, but that now that the fumes of incense are passing off one thing is clearly perceptible—that is the condemnation of the policy of military oppression which is the essence of German imperialism. He adds:

"This fact stands out all the more clearly when the President's words during the Statue of Liberty ceremony are recalled."

As for Wilson's pacifism and proposed universal disarmament, the writer recalls that President Wilson obtained from Congress credits without precedent for military and naval programs, and concludes:

"This is the pacifism of the wise man."

GERMANS NOW USING FODDER FOR FOOD

Cattle Deprived of Turnips, Which Replace Potatoes—Milk Supply Thus Curtailed.

BERLIN, Monday, Jan. 29, (via London, Jan. 30.)—Adolph von Batocki, President of the Food Regulation Board, said today that Germany would undoubtedly be able to hold out until the next harvest if the supplies of food were husbanded and distributed carefully, although the stocks of provisions this year were scantier than in the two previous years of the war.

He made this statement in an address which was prompted by the present troubles in food distribution. Reckoning five pounds of potatoes as equal in food value to one pound of grain, Herr von Batocki figured the total supply available for man and beast as equivalent to 2,000,000 tons of grain less than last year, since the increase of 4,000,000 tons in the grain harvest is more than counterbalanced by the decrease in the potato crop, amounting to 30,000,000 tons.

The shortage of potatoes also affects the supply of meat, milk, butter, &c., since it has made necessary the utilization of turnips for food and the prohibition of the use of grain for fodder. Each hundredweight of turnips of which the cattle are deprived means a reduction of fifteen quarts in the milk supply.

The foodstuffs captured in Rumania furnished a welcome and valuable addition, Herr von Batocki said, but owing to transport difficulties would be available only gradually.

The problem of food supply is now being brought home to residents of Berlin in the most direct manner by the discussions regarding the introduction of a standard bread. The proposed abolition of wheaten rolls and the issue of uniform loaves of mixed rye and wheat are objectionable both to the upper classes, which prefer the better-tasting rolls, and to the working population, which will have to pay more for the mixed loaf than for the present rye bread. However, the authorities declare the change is inevitable, in order to obtain the maximum amount of bread from a given quantity of flour. Otherwise the weekly bread ration would have to be reduced.

The difficulties are due not to any reduction in the total supply for Berlin, but to the fact that the better classes, which formerly consumed only part of their bread ration, are now using it down to the last roll. Another factor consists of the supplementary rations issued to the working classes to eke out inadequate supplies of other articles of food. The bread problem has also been accentuated recently by the severe Winter conditions, which not only have crippled the transportation service, but have prevented farmers from opening potato cellars and exposing their potatoes to the risk of freezing in transit. Some municipalities are unable to issue potatoes this week. Charlottenburg, one of the richest Berlin municipalities, is in this situation.

These conditions, coupled with the trouble of obtaining bread on bread cards and the shortage in the meat supply, have caused many well-to-do persons to take advantage of the municipal food kitchens, where a nourishing and appetizing ration is obtainable. Among these patrons are the members of several families who are not influenced by financial considerations.

BELGIANS IN HIDING SHUN DEPORTATION

Germans Hunt Them with Soldiers and Seize Hostages Pending Return of Absentees.

RELIEF WORKERS DEPORTED

Practice Abandoned Only After Vigorous American Protest—Taking 850 Workmen from Brussels Daily.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 30, (via London.)—The deportations of Belgian workmen continue, but at a slightly lower rate than previously, according to information from an unquestionable source. It is said that the deportations from Brussels are now being made at the rate of about 850 men daily. Many of these men, it is alleged, are not idlers, but skilled workmen who have been engaged for at least a part of their time in their trade.

In some provinces the Belgians, it is said, are adopting methods of passive resistance in efforts to escape deportation. This resistance takes the form of failing to appear at the appointed place of examination. Out of 1,700 men called in five communes near Malines, not more than one-half presented themselves. Thereupon the German military authorities arrested three prominent men in each commune, holding them as hostages until the appearance of the absentees, who in the meantime were hunted by squads of soldiers. In Brussels many of the summoned men who failed to appear are now in hiding.

About one thousand Belgians connected with the work of the American Relief Commission—members of provincial and communal committees or helpers in storehouses, mills, or soup kitchens—have been deported to Germany over the strong protest of the commission. As a result of vigorous protests, however, a few of these men have been returned to their homes, and no others are being taken.

HAVRE, Jan. 30.—Information has reached the Belgian Government of an extraordinary incident connected with the deportation of a large number of laborers who had been assembled in the public squares in Berlaer, Santhoven, Viersel and other towns. Frightened by the German method, the workmen suddenly took to flight into the surrounding forests, where they were pursued without success by the German soldiers.

As a punishment, the Germans seized the Mayors and other leading citizens, and transported them to prison at Mechlin. In the way of further punishment the Germans billeted troops in the chateaux of the richest people in the region and prohibited the residents of the towns to leave their houses after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The latter measure has seriously interfered with agriculture and economic life generally.

RUSSIANS GOT 1,158 MEN IN BUKOWINA DRIVE

Germans Describe Gas Attack by Czar's Troops in Riga Region—Say It Failed.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 30, (British Admiralty per Wireless Press.)—An increase in the number of prisoners taken by the Russians in Saturday's battle in the Jacobeni (Bukowina) region, on the northern end of the Rumanian front, is announced by the War Office today. No important military operations on any of the fronts are reported in the statement, which reads:

Western Front—Scouting reconnoissances and infantry firing are proceeding.

Rumanian Front—Regarding Saturday's battle northeast of Jacobeni, the following alteration should be made in yesterday's communiqué: "Our detachments took prisoner thirty-two officers and 1,126 men and captured twelve machine-guns and four trench-mortars."

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—Quiet has prevailed during the last twenty-four hours all along the Russian and Rumanian fronts, from the Baltic to the Black Sea, the War Office announced today. Only in Macedonia, in the Cerna and Struma regions, has there been any activity in the Balkans, and this only in the nature of scouting operations. The statement reads:

On the Eastern front new engagements on the River Aa took a course favorable for us.

Macedonian Front—In the bend of the Cerna and on the lowlands of the Struma clashes occurred between reconnoitring detachments.

The recent gas attacks by the Russians in the Riga region is described by the military critic of the Overseas News Agency in his review today of the Russian front operations.

"While a violent battle was raging on both sides of the Aa River on Jan. 26," the military critic writes, "the Russians endeavored to offset their failure on the Aa by attacking at other points. About 7 P. M. they liberated two gas clouds on the Riga-Mitau road. Our outposts, vigilant in spite of the cold and heavy snowstorm prevailing, immediately recognized the hissing noise and gave the gas alarm.

"In complete order, as if a peace manoeuvre was being carried out, each soldier prepared himself by putting on his gas mask. In a few minutes' time there began the approach of a slow-moving gas cloud, five meters high, which was so thick that even rockets became invisible because of it. The sluggish, poisoned cloud crept over our positions, being followed shortly by a second cloud. Simultaneously, the hostile artillery began a drumfire and deluged our positions within a few minutes' time with 2,000 gas grenades.

"The Russians now believing we were smoked out of our positions and our soldiers sufficiently excited launched strong patrol attacks. The Russians, however, were completely deceived. Not one man in our trenches was poisoned. With an efficient, well-directed fire, the first hostile detachments were brought to a standstill with heavy losses, so that the enemy did not dare to carry out the great attack for which he had prepared."

BRITISH MAKE RAID SOUTH OF BAPAUME

Bomb German Dugouts and Take Some Prisoners—French Repulse Attack Near Verdun.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The report from British Headquarters in France tonight reads:

A successful raid was carried out last night on the Somme front in the neighborhood of Butte de Warlencourt, (north of Courcelette.) Many of the enemy's dugouts were bombed. A machine gun was destroyed and seventeen prisoners were taken. We also entered the enemy's lines early last night east of Souchez and did much damage to the enemy's works.

The enemy's artillery was very active this afternoon in the neighborhood of Les Boeufs. We bombarded the enemy's positions opposite Richebourg L'Avoué and east of Armentières and Ypres.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—The announcement issued by the War Office this afternoon follows:

On the left bank of the Meuse an attack with hand grenades against one of our trenches in the region of Hill 304 was repulsed by our fire without any result other than losses for the enemy. North of Badonviller a German attack was repulsed. We took prisoners.

In Upper Alsace our batteries were active in the region of Seppois. There was intermittent cannonading along the remainder of the front.

Three enemy airplanes were brought down in aerial combats yesterday, one by Sergeant Haus, who up to the present time has destroyed five German airplanes. It is confirmed that Adjutant Jailler has brought down six enemy machines thus far, five airplanes and one balloon.

The official communication issued tonight reads as follows:

Between Soissons and Rheims we stopped short by our fire two surprise attacks attempted by the enemy, one in the sector of Soupir, the other in the region of Beaulne (Aisne). Quite violent artillery actions occurred in Lorraine and the Vosges. There was an intermittent cannonade on the rest of the front.

Last night our airplanes bombarded bivouacks in the neighborhood of Etain, military factories at Ham, stations and factories at Folembrant and stations at Athies, Hombleux and Ourchy.

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—Army Headquarters made the following announcement today regarding the Western front:

Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht: On the Artois front there were several reconnoitring engagements. Between the Ancre and the Somme an artillery duel, which at times was strong, took place.

Army Group of the German Crown Prince: Attacks made in the evening by the French against Hill 304 were without success.

BERLIN ON FRENCH REPULSES.

Succession of Attacks at Hill 304 Broken Up, a General Reports.

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The recent fighting in the Verdun region is reviewed in an official statement issued today as follows:

"Regarding the course of the engagements of Jan. 28 on the west bank of the Meuse, General of Infantry von Francois reports:

"At 8 o'clock in the morning the French launched an attack against our new lines on Hill 304 without artillery preparation. From our line it could be plainly seen that the enemy left his trenches only at isolated places, and he was repulsed. At 12 o'clock, noon, a strong hostile fire began, which at 2 o'clock in the afternoon increased to drum fire. At 3:15 in the afternoon the hostile infantry advanced on the whole line for a second attack, but was driven back by our infantry by hand grenades and our curtain of fire. A third attack, at 3:40 in the afternoon, resulted, because of our efficient annihilating fire, in the enemy only locally leaving his trenches. Thereupon there again ensued a strong artillery fire upon our advanced trenches.

"At 4 o'clock in the afternoon there followed a fourth attack, which was repulsed by Infantry Regiment No. 15 and Reserve Infantry Regiment No. 169 in a hand-to-hand fight. Infantry Regiment No. 15 stormed from its own trenches, and dashing toward the enemy, repulsed him in hand-to-hand fighting.

"All our positions were completely maintained. The enemy suffered the heaviest sanguinary losses, while our own losses were small. The troops are confident of victory and in excellent spirits."

OPPOSES ALLIED OFFENSIVE.

Andre Tardieu Argues in Paris Paper for Defensive Campaign.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Andre Tardieu, Deputy from the Seine-et-Oise Department, publishes an article in the Petit Parisien entitled "Offensive or Defensive," in which he discusses the relative merits of offensive and defensive in the light of experience in the present war. The writer points out that many people are urging the Allies to take the offensive on the western front to forestall a German attack.

In 1913 army decrees established that henceforth the principle of offensive would be adopted as the only one which could furnish definite results in war.

"But," says the writer, "the conditions of trench war as developed on the western front put a different complexion on the question, not having been foreseen when the decrees were adopted. Trench warfare was then only considered as occasionally necessary for tactical reasons. Likewise the cavalry was expected to co-operate freely, and the rôle of the artillery was laid down in the following terms:

"'Artillery no longer prepares the attacks. It only supports them.'"

Charles Honors Bulgars' King.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Emperor Charles of Austria has created the King of Bulgaria an Austrian Field Marshal, according to a Vienna dispatch to Reuter's by way of Amsterdam. The Emperor visited the Bulgarian King on his way home from German headquarters, where he had attended the birthday celebration of the German Emperor.

BERLIN TO WARN US OFF ARMED SHIPS

tion that such a vessel's armament is for aggressive offense.

From what could be ascertained in quarters close to the German Embassy today the German position is that English merchantmen, armed fore and aft, would probably not submit to visit and search, and that guns placed forward were intended to be used to destroy German naval craft.

The State Department does not contemplate any new action in the application of its previously announced attitude toward armed merchant ships. It is not the present intention of this Government to deal with the question of belligerent merchant vessels mounting guns forward until cases arise either through the appearance of a ship so armed in an American port or through the development of a case of attack upon some ship carrying American passengers or seamen and armed with guns mounted forward.

QUOTES ARMED-SHIP RULES.

Germany Publishes Alleged Instructions to French Merchantmen.

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—Secret instructions issued by the French Minister of Marine regarding the conduct of armed merchantmen fell into German hands on Oct. 29, 1916, according to the semi-official Overseas News Agency today. In them, says the agency, are these directions:

"Manoeuvres in case of attack: As soon as a submarine proceeding emerged is noticed, the stern must be turned toward the submarine, the engines brought to a development of the highest speed, and then, if in the open sea, such a course must be taken as to force the submarine, in order for her to approach, to run against the seas, by which the submarine's speed is diminished and the efficiency of its guns decreased.

"As soon as the submarine is within firing range, fire must be opened. If the ship is being pursued and the submarine, because of greater speed, is drawing nearer, the ship, before the submarine is too near, must without hesitation turn about and overrun the submarine.

"If a submerged submarine is noticed at a near distance, the engines must be brought to a development of the highest speed and then the ship turned toward the submarine or away from the submarine, according to whether the submarine is seen less or more than six points from the forecastle ahead. If the bow is turned toward the submarine, one must try to run over it.

"If a submerged submarine is sighted at a sufficient distance, the ship must manoeuvre as if an emerged submarine was sighted."

POLES, TOO, DRIVEN TO SLAVERY, HE SAYS

Man from Warsaw Recounts Terrible Scenes as His Countrymen Are Forced to Quit Homes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 31.—The Times reprints from the Amsterdam Telegraaf a statement made by an educated Pole, belonging to the Government of Warsaw, who has just arrived in Holland.

"Attempts have been made to seduce us by fallacious promises," he said, "to enroll in German armies and factories. Very few have been taken in by these efforts, and those who accepted the German offers have only regretted it. At Warsaw about 1,400 volunteers responded to the German appeal, that was all. I learn from a good source that the German Government contemplates sending Russo-Polish prisoners back to Poland on condition they will enlist in the Polish legion.

"In the neighborhood of Pilawa absolutely innocent people have been shot. Search is made continually in private houses to discover trace of connection with 'the enemies,' meaning the Allies. A month's imprisonment has been inflicted on a man who pretended to stop his ears during the passing of German fifers and a similar sentence for not saluting their flag. Lamentable and heartrending scenes which leave behind them in the innermost being hatred which nothing can uproot are to be seen everywhere.

"More crushing and agonizing than the increasing famine is the moral oppression. The 'courts of blood' perform their work without cessation; firing parties are always at work.

"Before my departure I saw with my own eyes how the Germans proceed in the sweeping away of men. At night cordons of troops surrounded a working class quarter at Warsaw not far from Nadwislanska station with loaded rifles. 'Alles Heraus,' ordered a sergeant. Then occurred a tragic scene. The soldiers chose here and there those men and women whom they thought suitable, separated brothers and sisters, mothers and children, and compelled those whom they declared good for slavery to leave immediately. Thus more than 100,000 men and women were removed from the part of the country under the Government of Warsaw. Young women and girls alike were torn from their families and collected in groups.

"They were collected pell mell with women of evil life, with the lowest of their sex. The most beautiful women are reserved for the officers.

"Deportation trains leave the country every day for Germany. There, as in Poland, the hardest labor is imposed on the deported people, with the addition of a severe regime of terrorism and of punishments. My unhappy fellow-countrymen are compelled to lie on the ground without covering, exposed to all the hardships of cold weather.

"In Poland there is a regime of misery which no civilized people would dare to impose upon its worst criminals. Tuberculosis consequently is beginning to make frightful ravages among the emaciated population.

"But in spite of everything, the energy of the unhappy people is not giving way.

"Little account is made of the fines, espionage, and prison. They mock the enemy, whom they detest. They write Polish songs, which they sing to German tunes.

"To the air of 'Deutschland, Deutschland, Uber Alles' they sing 'Niemiec, Niemiec, Co Za Scierwa,' which means 'Germany, Germany, Ferocious Beast,' and the Germans hear the air without understanding the words, and approve, flattered."

U-Boats in South Atlantic.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 30.—The Minister of Marine, in a newspaper interview, confirms a report that German submarines have crossed the South Atlantic.

He says that they have kept to the high seas and denies the rumor that a German naval base was being maintained in Brazilian waters.

GOT $5,000 REWARD FOR SINKING U-BOAT

Captain of the Clan Macfadyen Destroyed a Submarine in the Bay of Biscay.

BOSTON, Jan. 30.—A reward of $5,000 for sinking a German submarine in the Bay of Biscay some months ago has been paid to Captain W. R. Miller of the British freighter Clan Robertson, in port here from Liverpool, it became known today. At the time of the encounter Captain Miller was in command of the British steamer Clan Macfadyen, bound from India for London.

As the submarine approached and prepared to make an attack, the steamer fired a gun mounted on her forward deck. The submarine, it was said, lurched heavily and plunged to the bottom, bow first.

A dispatch from London last May said that the Clan MacFayden had arrived at Gravesend from Africa after a battle with two submarines, from which she suffered considerable damage. It was then reported that the officers of the vessel believed they had sunk one of the submarines by gunfire.

A reward for sinking submarines was offered last November by R. P. Houston, M. P., a shipowner. In a letter to The London Times Mr. Houston spoke of the case of a running fight between a British steamer (possibly the Clan MacFayden) and a German submarine in the Bay of Biscay, in which fourteen shots from the steamer sank the submarine. He offered a reward of $10,000 to shipmasters for each and every U-boat sunk between that date (Nov. 12) and May 31 next, the $10,000 to be divided proportionately among the master and crew. It will be noted that the Clan MacFayden's successful encounter took place six months before the reward was offered.

260 LOST ON THE LAURENTIC

Later News Increases Death Roll in Sinking of Auxiliary.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—About 260 men were lost in the sinking of the auxiliary cruiser Laurentic, many of them having been killed by the explosion of the mine which sent the former White Star liner to the bottom Thursday, says a dispatch to the Press Association from Belfast.

The dispatch says the Laurentic struck the mine off the north coast of Ireland and sank in about ten minutes. A big hole was blown in the side of the ship.

Several boats were quickly launched, and, filled with scores of men, were engulfed in the vortex of the sinking steamer. For a time the sea was dotted with struggling men, some of whom were taken into other boats and saved. The remainder could not be rescued. A half gale was blowing, and the weather was intensely cold. Most of the rescued men were only half clad, and all of them, especially those wounded by the explosion, suffered greatly for hours.

A previous dispatch from London stated that the British Admiralty announced the loss of the Laurentic and the saving of 12 officers and 109 men. As the ship carried a naval reserve complement of 300, the message indicated that the number of lives lost was about 180.

WRECKAGE IN RAIDER'S PATH.

Allied Warships Find Frame of a Large Vessel in the Atlantic.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 30.—Wireless reports of considerable wreckage having been sighted in latitude 39:58 north and longitude 70:03 west, are being sent out by British warships on this side of the Atlantic in search of the German raider operating on the South American coast.

Among the wreckage was the frame of an unidentified vessel of considerable size. The allied ships are endeavoring to identify the ship by the examination of all wreckage sighted. It is feared some allied merchantman has been the latest victim of the sea rover.

Under the second form of organization, he said a moment later, in case of a threatened war between Japan and the United States, the military power of the league, of which American forces formed a part, might even be used against the United States if a decision were rendered against this nation and it refused to submit. "If the plan is workable," the Senator asserted, "our own ships, our own men, our own armament would be compelled to fight their own country into submission or absolutely extinguish it from the face of the earth. The thought of it is preposterous, and, of course, every man will reject the proposal the moment it comes to him in any such revolting form."

In his reply, Senator Hitchcock deplored this part of Mr. Cummins's address as completely foreign to the President's ideas as expressed in his message to the Senate. Nowhere, the Senator from Nebraska insisted repeatedly, had the President outlined a program, and he declared that the dangers which Senator Cummins had suggested were "men of straw, set up to be knocked down." Mr. Wilson, he said, had merely enunciated certain broad principles on which the world must be organized if the United States was to take part in an international concert to guarantee future peace.

"His purpose was not to suggest a program," he said, "but the principles upon which the United States might be willing to enter a league to guarantee the world's peace. The President has suggested no program, and for much of the criticism which has fallen from the lips of the Senator from Iowa I find no warrant whatever in the language of this document. It would be a crime to do anything in this great body which would detract in the slightest degree from the influence that document is working for peace in foreign lands.

"It is obvious that the country can be committed to no program until the Senate is consulted. In due time the Senate undoubtedly will be consulted. To take action at this time, however, simply to indicate to the world that there is any considerable dissent from the great principles laid down here, or any great dissent in the United States from the desire of the President to promote peace, would not only be a great misfortune, but it seems to me that it would be next to a crime."

At this point Senator Borah interrupted him with the remark that the question was now being asked in all the European capitals whether the Senate approved of the President's program. "It is perfectly understood," he said, "that the President's policy must be determined through treaties which the Senate must approve. I think if the President's suggestions are to have their full effect in the European countries, it must be known, as Sir Edward Grey has said, whether the people of the United States and their Government are back of this proposition. Therefore, it seems to me that we should crystallize our views if possible and let the foreign Governments know how we feel about it, either pro or con."

Senator Hitchcock had previously quoted a plank from the Democratic platform which says in part that "we believe the time has come when it is the duty of the United States to join with the other nations of the world in any feasible association that will serve those principles (of freedom from aggression and the rights of nations) to maintain inviolate the complete security of the highway of the seas for the common and unhindered use of all nations." By the re-election of President Wilson on this platform, he asserted, the American people as well as the Democratic Party had already gone on record in favor of the proposals in the President's address.

In reply to Senator Borah he stated that the great immediate need of the world was for peace, and he deplored any action whatever that might detract from the spirit of the President's message.

"The members of both the Teutonic and Entente alliances are embarrassed by the difficulties of taking the initiative in securing peace," he said. "Only by the intervention of a great neutral can steps be taken which will inevitably shorten the war."

Senator Norris suggested that Senator Hitchcock's own resolution, indorsing the President's first note to the belligerents, might have been construed to detract from the value of that message in the same way that his colleague now feared might be the result of the present debate. Senator Hitchcock retorted that he was satisfied with the effect of his resolution and its "nonpartisan" indorsement.

Several Republicans then broke in, insisting that the debate was going on, no matter what efforts the Democrats made to quash it. Senator Borah said: "If this is going to be a debate, it is going to be debated. We are not going to have eulogies alone."

Senator Hitchcock, a little nettled, said he was willing to let the Senate decide at any time what was to be done with the Cummins resolution. He added that he "hoped the Senator from Iowa would let it come to a vote without forcing him to resort to a motion to lay it on the table to end the debate."

"It is not possible to gag the Senate in discussion," said Senator Lodge. "No matter what you do you can't prevent a debate. I have some things I intend to say on this matter in a few days, and I hardly think the Senate will refuse me the privilege. No one is more anxious than I to advance legislation, but this is a very important question."

Senator Hitchcock then continued his remarks, repeating his declaration that the President had outlined only principles, not a program, and he had emphasized disarmament. "If there was one thing in the President's address that was notably emphasized," he said, "it was that every people should be left free to determine its own policy, its own way of development, unhindered, unthreatened, unafraid."

Senator Borah's resolution reaffirming faith in the Monroe Doctrine is still subject to call.

KING ASKS FOR MEN FOR HOME DEFENSE

British Monarch in Appeal for Volunteers Says Original Force Is at the Front.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 31.—King George has sent a letter to the Lords Lieutenant of counties throughout the country appealing to men over military age to enroll in a volunteer force for home defense. The letter recalls the territorial force which was originally intended for home service, but has since gone to the front.

After expressing his thanks to the territorials who have gone to France, the King continues:

"While they are thus fighting the battles of the Empire abroad we must organize and equip a force to take their places as defenders of these shores in case of invasion."

The King refers to the fact that some volunteers have already been enrolled and that the Duke of Connaught has been appointed their commander, and concludes:

"I am confident that all who are now prevented from undertaking active service abroad will join the volunteers."

LETS BRITONS SELL CERTAIN SECURITIES

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The Treasury Department tonight issued new regulations concerning its recent order requisitioning securities for mobilization. The new regulations permit, under strict conditions, which are enumerated, that foreign, colonial, and Indian securities which have been in physical possession in the United Kingdom and not in the possession of any subject of an enemy power since the outbreak of the war may be sold in the United States, Canada, or Newfoundland, provided the proceeds from such sales are remitted to England immediately and invested here.

Another regulation forbids the sale in any foreign country or British possession of any United States, Canadian, or Newfoundland securities.

GREEK FORCES SALUTE FLAGS OF FOUR ALLIES

Prince Andrew Heads His Cavalry Regiment in Ceremony Atoning for Athens Attacks.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Jan. 29, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—Another portion of the Allies' demands was carried out this afternoon, when four Allied flags were saluted by representative detachments of the Greek Army and Navy. The ceremony took place in the great open space in front of the Zappeion Building. It was extremely picturesque, excellently arranged, and carried out without a hitch or incident of any kind.

The Greek Army was represented by portions of the three infantry regiments remaining in Athens, a detachment of engineers and two regiments of cavalry of 230 sabres each. The navy sent about 400 marines. About 2,000 men, therefore, were present. On behalf of the General Staff there were present the General commanding the First Army Corps, the General commanding the Second Division, and the Commander of the Athens Garrison, with their staffs. By 3 o'clock this force was lined up in front of the building, the men in khaki uniforms and the officers in grande tenue, their brilliant uniforms brightening the display very effectively.

Each of the four powers landed special detachments of twenty-seven men, the Russians sending stalwart soldiers from Saloniki, and England, France, and Italy landing marines from ships at Keratsini. These were brought from the Piraeus to Athens by special train, and they marched with colors furled to the Zappeion grounds, watched by large crowds. Of each force twenty-one men lined up to right and left of the entrance to the building, facing a detachment of Greek troops with two Greek flags.

At 3:30 the four allied flags were unfurled and carried from the building, each by a detachment of six men, who posted themselves exactly in front of the entrance opposite the Greek flags. They were followed by the four allied Ministers, accompanied by members of the Diplomatic Corps, the French and British Admirals with their staffs, and the Military Attachés, together with other officers. They were all in full uniform and took up a position at the head of the entrance steps, making a picture gay with bright colors.

Immediately the whole Greek force rendered honors to the allied flags by presenting arms, massed bands playing the four national hymns. Cannon posted above the stadium fired a salute of twenty-one guns, and while preparations were being made for the march past an answering salute from the allied fleet at Keratsini could be heard.

The defile of troops was quite an imposing spectacle, and interest and importance were lent to the ceremony by the significant fact that Prince Andrew, brother of the King, led the first cavalry regiment, of which he is Colonel, all the allied representatives returning his Highness's salute.

LYONS'S THANKS TO WILSON.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—The Municipal Council of Lyons, says a Havas dispatch, has passed the following resolution, which will be sent to President Wilson:

"The Municipal Council of Lyons pays homage to the elevated thought which inspires the message of President Wilson as conforming to the aspirations of France fighting for liberty, and thanks him for having comprehended the difference separating the Central Empires and the Entente by the precision and sincerity of their statements regarding the objects of the war.

"The message announces a peace consecrating a victory of the peoples over the sovereigns who transform their subjects into accomplices and humanity into a martyr to their traditions of violence."

They differ chiefly in that Deep Sea Pearls cost a fortune whereas Tecla Pearls entail no financial sacrifice.

TELLS OF NEW BLACKLIST

German Under Secretary Charges That It Is Aimed Entirely at Control of Trade.

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (by Wireless to The Associated Press, via Sayville.)—Baron von dem Bussche-Haddenhausen, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs and formerly Secretary of the German Embassy at Washington, commenting on London dispatches regarding the peace situation said to The Associated Press:

"The argument as to Great Britain's unselfishness in the world war, based on the fact that the peace conditions outlined in the reply of the Entente to President Wilson provide no territorial advantages for England, though richly satisfying the land hunger of her Allies, is, as usual with British argumentation, specious and fallacious.

"Apologists will point to England's altruism in the Napoleonic wars, not mentioning the fact that during the hostilities she already had acquired South Africa, Ceylon, Trinidad, Malta, &c., and could afford to make no territorial claim at the peace congress. They now find it convenient to ignore the fact that England already has pocketed in Germany's captured colonies the richest territorial rewards of any of the Entente Powers. These rewards are insignificant for England in comparison with the purpose for which she went to war, namely, the destruction of an inconvenient rival, and the continuance of a predominant position in the world's trade.

"These, of course, are not mentioned in the manifesto to President Wilson, but the neutral world is witness through Great Britain's efforts toward a permanent suppression of German trade and knows through its own experience with blacklists, the examination of neutral mails and repressive blockades, that these efforts will not stop with German interests, but interfere to British advantage in legitimate business of neutral countries."

"But Great Britain in her blacklist answer to the United States declared the blacklist applied only to dealings by British firms and did not affect business between neutrals," suggested the correspondent.

"True on the surface," replied the Baron, "but actually the prohibition against trading with the enemy had been extended in a manner contrary to international law since it treated as enemies neutral firms in neutral countries, in so far as they did business with citizens of countries at war with England. To justify these very sweeping measures Lord Grey, when Foreign Secretary, argued that no rights or property of blacklisted firms were injured, but that the firms enjoyed freedom of trading in every respect with all except British subjects. The point over which the British note glided carelessly with a few empty phrases, however, and which is vital to the entire argument, is that a blacklisted firm, as is well known, is robbed of the right to do business with other neutrals, this being accomplished by means of a chain boycott introduced by England.

Peril of the Blacklist.

"Any one having business relations with a blacklisted firm or who is even suspected of such 'unfriendly' conduct, risks being themselves placed on the blacklist," continued the Baron. "The British design, you see, is to paralyze completely the trade of a blacklisted firm with neutral concerns, the British Government being unwilling to recognize the generally accepted principle of freedom of trade. The British censor even confiscates any bank balances of these blacklisted firms and payments due to them from British sources are held up. Denial of this is useless in the face of official communications which come to our attention, addressed by British diplomatic representatives to neutral firms. For instance, the official copy of the blacklist sent to Brazilian firms contains a foot note, to which attention expressly is drawn, saying that anyone attempting to circumvent the provisions of the British decree by having trade relations with any blacklisted individual, runs the risk of being also blacklisted. A circular letter sent on April 10, 1916, by the British Consul at Para to Brazilian firms, said that he was instructed to inform all individuals and business houses in his consular district that every attempt to protect persons or firms on the blacklist from the results of the order would be punished by placing the offender also on that list.

"This punishment, threatened against a neutral by official authority, can hardly be harmonized with Lord Grey's illusory remarks that it was not the intention of the British Government to dictate to neutrals the firms with whom they may trade. The true character and effects of England's illegal measures are recognized by the neutrals. Here, for example, is a confidential circular of the Netherlands Overseas Trust reading: 'We think it necessary in the interests of Dutch trade, to inform importers that the British Government intends to place upon the statutory list everybody who sells or delivers to firms already on that list goods imported from overseas.'

Calls It Absolute Embargo.

"The placing of such a neutral on the blacklist would mean for him an absolute embargo on goods not inherently contraband. More and more, England is classifying the business houses of neutral countries into enemy and friendly firms and resorting to the most impudent forms of commercial espionage to throttle the firms classed as enemies. Matters have gone so far in such countries as the Dutch East Indies, where the British list is felt most severely, that neutral firms have asked British Consuls for the names of business houses with whom they may be permitted to trade.

"The blacklist, you see, is directed more against neutral countries than against Germany, and injures the neutrals far more than it does Germans, who for more than two years virtually have been excluded from the overseas trade. Our commerce, which already had been reduced to the minimum, has not been diminished by these measures and Germany's defeat cannot be accomplished by them. The intention plainly is to place the neutral trade in leading strings, hamper its development during the war, and to bind it to England during the great after-war commercial struggle.

"Why, else, is this chain boycott? Why England's extensive and wide-reaching spy system, if England is not pursuing far-sighted selfish purposes? Why, for example, does England interfere with America's trade with the Philippines and Eastern Asia, where only neutral interests can be made to suffer? Why is the American mail to the Philippines seized by England? Certainly not because they hope thereby to strike Germany.

"Besides the blacklist, the English have also a highly confidential graylist. Firms whose names are on this list are characterized as houses with which it is not desired that Englishmen shall trade. The number of names on the graylist is much larger than on the blacklist. Against the blacklisted firms there is an absolute embargo on goods and a considerable restriction of all privileges; but correspondence with those on the graylist still is permitted. This leads, however, in most cases to [illegible] owing to delays.

"England's course, therefore, in spite of Lord Grey's attempt at whitewashing, is marked by a system designed to enrich England at neutral expense. SEIZED ON STEAMER AS SPY FOR GERMANY

British Prisoner, With American Passport for J. L. Thrasher, Said to be Captain Boehm.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—A man, said to be Captain Hans Boehm, who is declared by the British authorities to be a German Army officer who is traveling under an American passport issued in the name of Jelks Le Roy Thrasher of Quitman, Brooks County, Ga., has been taken off the Dutch steamer Zeelandia at Falmouth, bound from Spain for Holland.

It is said that the man at first stoutly protested that his name was Thrasher, but that when the Admiralty intelligence officers called him "Capain Boehm" he promptly admitted his identity. After serving for several months in the German Army, Boehm, according to his own story, as made public by the British authorities, went to the United States, where he was employed in the German Secret Service.

When he decided to return to Europe it is alleged that he wrote two citizens of Quitman, asking them to certify that his name was Thrasher and that he was born in Quitman in 1881. It is stated that these persons wrote to him to this effect, and that with their letters he approached firms in Philadelphia and New York, offering to represent them in the capacity of a buyer in Europe. The authorities assert that Boehm stated that these firms vouched for him at Washington when he obtained his passport in the name of Thrasher. With the passport made out for England, Holland, and Scandinavia, the man arrived in Holland in June, and had his passport amended to include Spain and Portugal. He went to Vigo in August, and was arrested on his return from that city.

Boehm, or Thrasher, has been placed in an internment camp, which would indicate that he is not to be tried for espionage.

Officials here express the belief that the United States may request the extradition of the man on a charge of participation in plots there, the authorities stating that he has admitted spend large sums of money there.

It was asserted today in official circles that the passport carried by Boehm, or Thrasher, was the first improper one that has fallen into the hands of the British authorities for a considerable time. Forged American passports have also become decidedly rare, none having been seen in many months.

Thrasher Left Georgia Years Ago.

QUITMAN, Ga., Jan. 30.—Jelks Leroy Thrasher, whose name is said to have been used by Captain Hans Boehm to get an American passport, left here about fifteen years ago and later was heard of in New York, where in the Summer of 1916 he was understood to be manager of a theatrical company. Previous to that time he had been in Alabama. Thrasher was a member of a well-known Georgia family.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The State Department has had occasion to make an investigation into the matter of a passport issued in another name in the case of a man taken from a ship at Falmouth by the British authorities, who was said to be Hans Boehm. An official said this evening that he was unable to recall the name in which the passport was issued, and could not recollect, without consultation of official records, whether it was in the name of Jelks Le Roy Thrasher.

This official did recall that, so far as the records of the department went, the passport appeared to have been regularly issued, and that the man holding it was alleged by the British authorities to be Hans Boehm. Whether the passport was properly held by the alleged Boehm the department, an official said tonight, had not ascertained.

An official of the Department of Justice said that he knew nothing of the passport case, but that he was familiar with some of the operations of a man professing to be Captain Hans Boehm, a German secret agent. This official asserted that Captain Boehm had been very actively engaged in certain German plots in this country and expressed the opinion that the Government might want him.

SAW NO BRITISH SQUADRON.

Incoming Vessels Report Allied Patrols Are Not Visible.

The Captains and other officers of the French liner Rochambeau, the Ward Line steamship Havana, and other incoming vessels yesterday said that they had not seen anything of the squadron of British cruisers expected to be in the New York area then, nor had they heard any warnings about the raider or U-boats.

An official at the British Consulate said yesterday that the message stating that a British squadron would be in the New York area was sent by the Admiral at Halifax in answer to a telegram from the Consulate, requesting that timorous passengers be assured of safety. Officials here had no thought that there was a German raider near New York, but as so many alarming stories had appeared in the papers, it was thought advisable to take means to reassure travelers who had to cross the Atlantic.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 30.—That the rumor of a German commerce raider operating off this coast is taken seriously by British officials is believed to be the reason that the White Star liner Northland, loaded with grain, was held in port today when ready to sail. Anxiety is felt here over the non-arrival of the Thomson liner Cremona, some days overdue, for a cargo of grain.

The size of the surplus led to speculation in the Street as to whether the Directors would soon start to lay by a fund to maintain dividends in periods of dull business. The statement was made in responsible quarters some months ago that after $100,000,000 had been received for the continuation of the corporation's expansion program, attention might be directed toward such a fund. Chairman E. H. Gary declined to comment on the year's business in any way.

PEACE NOTE 'TIP' TRACED TO CAPITAL

could not have been written by a man who had no knowledge of the text of the note.

A note sent "to all belligerents," as Secretary Lansing phrased it, must have had to do with some phase of the war. The Secretary of State said expressly that it was not a proposal for peace or an offer of mediation. The most probable supposition, with these two possibilities eliminated, was that it had something to do with the relations of neutrals to the European war.

On the other hand, the message sent out from E. F. Hutton & Co. at 1:54 spoke of "an opportunity to put American demands on record to be considered if there is peace, and a warning that neutral rights must not be further encroached on."

It was pointed out that this statement rather transcended the bounds of what could be logically deduced from the remarks of Secretary Lansing. It was recalled that E. F. Hutton & Co. had wired to the Chicago firm that "our Washington wire gives us a similar message to yours." On this basis, then, the additional information contained in this statement came from "our Washington wire," and the Washington correspondent of the Hutton firm was F. A. Connolly & Co.

Curtis in Chicago Not "A. Curtis."

On the other hand, Mr. Hutton earlier in the hearing and testified, upon the reading of another letter referring to news which was based on "Washington advices," that these "advices" were "nothing but a belief based on my knowledge of conditions."

One other interesting point was raised by the presentation in evidence of the telegram from Clement, Curtis & Co. of Chicago. It was recalled that when Representative William R. Wood first started the inquisition in the House about the "leak," he said he had received information on it from a person named "A. Curtis," whom he did not know. This "A. Curtis" was hunted in New York without success, but it was thought yesterday that it might be some member of Clement, Curtis & Co. However, Representative Robert L. Henry of Texas, Chairman of the Rules Committee, said he thought that it had been established that "A. Curtis" was a myth, and that the mysterious letter had nothing to do with Clement, Curtis & Co.

Mr. Hutton's Testimony.

Mr. Hutton said his firm had about forty-five correspondents, and that no public record was kept of the telegraph messages which were sent over a private wire between the firm and its correspondents.

"How do you learn of legislation in Washington that concerns bankers and brokers?" asked Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the Rules Committee.

"Through the newspapers," said Mr. Hutton.

Q.—Have you a correspondent in Washington? A.—Yes, F. A. Connolly & Co.

Q.—How did they become your correspondents? A.—Mr. Connolly called on me of his own volition and said he had $50,000 and expected to get some more, and that he intended to buy a seat on the Stock Exchange.

Q.—Did Mr. Connolly discuss the advantages or disadvantages of Mr. R. W. Bolling coming into the firm? A.—He did not.

Q.—Did you have any conversation about Mr. Bolling being related to a member of the Administration? A.—Mr. Connolly said that Mr. Bolling was a brother-in-law of President Wilson. There was no comment on that fact.

Then Mr. Whipple went into the conditions and circumstances of the business of E. F. Hutton & Co., and dug out some interesting details of Wall Street life to supplement those which Mr. Baruch had given in the morning.

"What was the general state of your accounts in the middle of December?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"We were borrowing so much money we were scared to death. It was close to $28,000,000."

Q.—What was the greatest amount you had ever borrowed before—say before the war? A.—Before the war about $12,000,000. At the beginning of 1916 about $22,000,000. These were borrowings on stocks purchased by our correspondents. We got scared in the latter part of November because we expected difficulty in arranging loans. We felt that if anything happened there would be a panic. The public was too much in the market.

Q.—When there is a panic in the market it means that the shares are in the hands of the public, very largely, rather than of professional speculators who usually carry them, and that there is need for them to return to the hands of the speculators? A.—The speculators are in the same position as the public.

Q.—But when there is a depression in the market and the public is wiped out, where have the securities gone? A.—To another class of the public, who buy them.

Q.—Then why do you say "the public is too much in the market"? A.—I can't say the origin of the term, but a panic is not the result of interior forces. I don't want to answer your questions in such a way that you will think that Wall Street is a den of iniquity. That isn't so. The public is still in the market, but it is another class of the public.

Mr. Hutton later said in answer to questions that on about the 3d or 4th of December his firm had advised all its correspondents to liquidate their holdings.

"Can you remember what event or circumstance started this?" asked Mr. Whipple.

Banks Increased Loan Margins.

"One day," said the witness, "we tried to borrow $250,000 on industrials. At that time 75 per cent. of the money being borrowed in Wall Street was on industrial loans; the banks were doing a larger business than was ever before known, and they were very conservative. Usually loans are on the basis of 20 per cent. collateral, but by this time they were 30 per cent., and stock which was selling at 150 or thereabout was taken by the banks at par."

Then Mr. Whipple quoted a letter which the firm of E. F. Hutton & Co. had sent to its correspondents on Dec. 4, in which occurred the phrases "Wall Street is carrying the largest loans it ever carried. The President's message today is expected to treat favorably of the railroad situation—at least, our Washington advices are to that effect."

"What do you mean by 'our Washington advices'?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"It had no connection with Mr. Bolling or Mr. Connolly," said the witness, quickly.

"That is one way to answer it," said the counsel. "Another would be to tell what your Washington advices were."

"Nothing," said the witness, "but my belief, based on knowledge of the railroad conditions of this country."

"You had no advices?"

"I won't say that," said the witness, "but if I had any I have forgotten them."

The new lines of investigation opened by the correspondence of the Hutton firm came as rather a shock to the persons present at the hearing, who after Mr. Baruch's explanation of his operations as being based on his judgment, had pretty well given up any belief that there might have been a "leak" at all.

The first witness at the morning hearing was Archibald S. White, head of White & Co., at 11 Pine Street, friend of Count von Bernstorff and Thomas W. Lawson, who on the previous day had denied everything of weight that Mr. Lawson had said about him at the Washington hearings.

"Do you know of any accounts maintained by members of the German Embassy with any broker?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"No, Sir."

Republicans Question White.

"Have you ever had any conversation with anybody concerning such accounts?"

"None."

"Then you wish to make a broad and sweeping denial regarding the allegations made regarding the President's peace note?"

"I have no knowledge of it except what I have read in the newspapers."

Representative Campbell, minority leader, then took hold of the witness. It has been remarked that the Democratic members of the committee have done little questioning during the sessions this week. Mr. Campbell wanted to know if any of Mr. White's talks with Thomas W. Lawson had been concerned with the sale or purchase of securities, the effect of the termination of the war on the stock market, the arrival of the German U-boat 53, or what Mr. Campbell called "the merchant submarine Dootchland."

But Mr. White couldn't recall any mention of the submarines, or anything but the most general statement about the war and the markets.

"Did you regard the time spent in discussion with Mr. Lawson as profitable or wasted?" asked Congressman Campbell.

"There was no profit to me, sir."

Q.—Have you any friends who made profits? A.—I may have had, but I have no knowledge of it.

Q.—What do you think of Mr. Lawson? A.—He is a remarkable character, difficult to describe in a few words. He has a remarkable mind and a vivid imagination.

Q.—It has been suggested here that he ought to be behind the bars in an insane asylum. What do you think? A.—It is not for me to say.

Congressman Lenroot, another Republican member, brought out the fact that the last time Mr. White saw Mr. Lawson, just after the close of the hearings in Washington, he knew of the testimony of Mr. Lawson which he contradicted yesterday, but didn't say anything to Mr. Lawson about it.

"I told him," he explained, "that what I had to say I preferred to say before the committee."

"You knew," asked Mr. Lenroot, "that it might ultimately become a question between you and Mr. Lawson as to which was committing perjury, and yet you did not attempt to get Mr. Lawson, with whom you had been on intimate terms, to retract or modify his testimony?"

"I had no power to do so, Sir. Mr. Lawson did all the talking."

Mr. Chiperfield: "Did you take your conversation with Mr. Lawson seriously?"

"I did not, Sir."

How Baruch Made $40,000 a Day.

Then Bernard M. Baruch, whose name was mentioned in the Washington hearings as one of those who had profited by the alleged "leak," was called to the stand. Mr. Baruch, as a witness, was just the opposite of Archibald S. White. Where Mr. White was diffident and retiring—so much so that every admission had to be extracted from him by laborious repetition and cross-questioning—Mr. Baruch appeared more than to meet his questioners half way. Frequently he volunteered information for which they were apparently not ready to ask him; and with a lambent smile and a lifted eyebrow he told them all about how he had made an average of nearly $40,000 a day on Wall Street during the period covered by the various peace messages.

The first question asked by Mr. Whipple was whether he had so organized his office that information about what was happening "in Washington or the uttermost parts of the earth" affecting the markets became known to him.

"I had no information besides the ticker service," said Mr. Baruch—"no representative in Washington or anywhere else."

Did you avail yourself of other means of information in the offices of brokers whom you knew?"

"I don't pay any attention to rumors," said Mr. Baruch. Then he produced a record of his stock transactions over the periods from Dec. 11 to Dec. 22, certified by Price, Waterhouse & Co., chartered accountants, and, after looking over these extensive documents, Mr. Whipple decided to restrict his inquiries to the specimen account in United States Steel common.

"On Dec. 11," said Mr. Baruch, "I was long on various stocks which appear on brokers' accounts only, and also on stocks which I sold outright. In the period from Dec. 11 to Dec. 15 I sold these securities amounting, in long stocks, to about 30,000 shares, besides about 25,000 or 26,000 shares short. The zenith of this selling was apparently reached on Dec. 14, when I was short 25,000 shares of steel. On the 15th I had bought in 14,000 shares."

"Take steel all through," said Mr. Whipple. "What were your transactions?"

"On Dec. 11," said the witness, "I was long about 5,000 shares at the close. Most of them were bought that afternoon. On the 12th I sold this stock, probably late in the afternoon, I think, through H. Content & Co. I had none at the close. I bought it at 23 and a fraction and sold at 19 and a fraction. I remember that well enough." (That was Mr. Baruch's way of saying 123 and 119.)

"I'm sorry, Mr. Baruch," said Mr. Whipple. "The world believes you never had a loss. Now, what other stocks—"

"It was the same with Rubber," said Mr. Baruch; "with Ray Copper, Chile Copper, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred; some of that I already had. I got rid of them as soon as I could, though apparently it took two or three days to get rid of all of them."

Q.—Did you go short on any stocks on this day? A.—Canadian Pacific—I was short on that all the time.

Q.—What did you do in Steel on Dec. 18? A.—I sold 23,400 shares, starting early in the day.

Q.—Why? A.—I think the reason should be apparent to every one, but I'll tell you.

Hollweg's Speech Influenced Him.

"I'd have started earlier," the witness said, "but I was out all day. When I read Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg's speech in the Reichstag, which, after the greatest war in civilization, was a declaration of peace, I realized what this meant to the world, and particularly to the world of business and finance. I thought that the people's minds, which heretofore had been bent on war, were now turned to peace. My mind worked to the conclusion that a man of intelligence would act quickly and sell securities."

"Was there any other reason for your selling short?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"I knew that the technical condition of the market was bad, but the real thing was the bodyblow of this speech, which still hangs like a pall on the whole situation."

"Why should peace affect the market unfavorably?"

"My personal opinion, which is perhaps the reflection of many others, is that our country has had, I might say, a false prosperity. We had got an enormous business whose profit was out of all ordinary proportions. Peace would bring with it reaction and the opening of an era of other activities. From the humane standpoint I take a different view; but peace would raise trouble with the stock market."

"Was the rise of money rates regarded as a dangerous signal?"

"I should think it would be. There was no other factor besides the technical condition of the market and the Chancellor's speech which affected my course on those days. The 23,400 shares which I sold on the 18th went at about 118½. On Monday I had bought them at 123.

"On Dec. 14 I went short more than 1,000 shares of Steel. On the 15th the market broke and I bought nearly 14,000 shares around 110. On the 18th, Monday, (Saturday's dealings, since no shares are delivered on Saturday, are included with Monday's on the account sheet,) I sold again about 4,000 shares. So I was short about 15,000 shares of Steel at the close."

A Portentous "News Item."

"Can you remember why you did this?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"Because the market commenced to go up."

"Why should you sell when the market was going up?"

"Because I wanted to hear the next great thing, Lloyd George's speech, and I thought he would say about what he did say. I thought he would leave a door open for peace, and that this would have almost as great an effect as the other. You can't get away from the Bethmann Hollweg note. Everybody would think about peace after that."

"What about the 19th?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"I sold 28,400 shares."

"Why?"

"I remember very distinctly," said Mr. Baruch. "The first part of the day I read some private dispatches from abroad on the Dow-Jones ticker—I think two banking houses were named. The first part might be considered as meaning that Lloyd George wouldn't listen to peace. As the market rose I sold at first. I was standing at the ticker, and as soon as I saw that he had left a door open for peace I sold as fast and as hard as I could. I was astonished to find that people didn't realize the meaning of his speech, and looked on it as a mere news item. The same thing happened in the wheat market, I understand, as in the Stock Exchange."

"In your operations on that day," said Mr. Whipple, "were you affected in the slightest degree by any news from Washington as to the attitude of the Administration?"

"Absolutely not at all. I didn't receive any such news."

Q.—How about the 20th of December? A.—I bought 17,900 shares, making my short account 26,500. I bought on the scale down, acting on my own judgment. It was a very unfortunate judgment, for the next day the market broke five or ten points.

Q.—If you had known that something would happen the next day which would break the market, what would you have done? A.—I would have sold, all day long.

Q.—Was this a large transaction for you? A.—I have done bigger ones, where I was operating in only one stock.

Q.—Do you regard it as a major operation? A.—A fair-sized one. Do I have to tell you what I've done in other transactions? I'll tell you if you ask.

But nobody asked him. Mr. Whipple went on to the transactions of Dec. 21.

"I took everything in," said the witness. "I bought it all in before noon, at an average of 106 for the Steel. It seems that I never get in at the bottom, or at the top."

"Had you closed all your transactions by the time Mr. Lansing made his announcement?"

"I think I was long in the market—not in Steel—by that time."

"When I want to buy," Mr. Baruch continued, "I buy what I most believe in from the intrinsic standpoint. I was holding 14,000 more shares that night than the night before."

"How about your dealings on the 22d?"

"I disposed of my holdings again."

"Why?"

"Because, Mr. Whipple," said Mr. Baruch vigorously, "we're going to have peace! Germany wants it, and every man in the world wants it if he can get it on honorable terms. They may not get it to-morrow or the next day, but if the people are thinking about a thing and want it they'll probably get it. I may be absolutely wrong, but this is my opinion."

"With reference to the Washington situation," said Mr. Whipple, "did you see the Dow-Jones report on the ticker at 2:05 P. M. on Dec. 20?"

Net Profits, $476,168.47.

"If I did," said the witness, "it made no impression on me. I have no recollection of it at all."

Q.—If your attention had been called to it would it have accentuated your operations in any way? A.—If that had come to me I think I'd have sold, and I don't see how it got by me.

Q.—Would you have tried to find out what was going on in Washington? A.—No. I don't see what anybody wanted except the Bethmann Hollweg and Lloyd George speeches.

Q.—What effect would the commendation of peace by our Administration have in your mind? A.—I think it would help toward peace, but the thing that affected me more than perhaps anything else in this was that the Japanese people, than whom there are no more clever people in the world, took steps to close their Stock Exchange on Dec. 18. In the morning papers of the 18th I read the news of this, and saw that the Japanese realized what this meant in the way of peace and what they thought it would mean in connection with prices.

Q.—What do you think of Japanese commercial and industrial life compared with ours? A.—Pretty much the same, except that they won't let 'em sell short over there.

Under cover of the laugh raised by Mr. Baruch's sorrowful tone Mr. Whipple advanced the leading question:

"As a result of all these transactions did you make any money?"

"Yes."

"How much?"

This precipitated a discussion in the committee as to whether the amount of Mr. Baruch's profits would be pertinent to the inquiry, and Chairman Henry finally decided that it would.

"The net profit on this period," said Mr. Baruch quietly, "was $476,168.47."

"This falls a bit short of the sixty million with which you are credited," said Mr. Whipple dryly. Then Chairman Henry took over the examination of the witness.

"Did you have any agreement with any one to divide part of the profits?" he asked.

"Not a nickel," snapped the witness.

"Then it is not true, as stated by some," said Mr. Henry, "that some one had an account with you or was entitled to part of the profits?"

"You are quite correct, Sir. I haven't seen any statement to that effect, but I've heard rumors."

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Henry. "They were only rumors. You were not advising any one in Washington about these things on the Exchange, and you were not in touch with any one in Washington by telephone or telegraph during these days?"

"Discussing the stock market? No, Sir."

"The records of the telephone and telegraph companies will not show any messages interchanged between you and any one in Washington?"

"They will show that I did communicate with people in Washington, but not about this."

"Did you call up any official about this time?" asked Mr. Henry.

Called Up McAdoo in Washington.

"Yes, I did."

"About these transactions?"

"No."

"Whom did you call?" asked Mr. Henry.

"Two persons—Mr. Warburg, whom I didn't get, and Secretary McAdoo, whom I did get. Would you like to know the matter about which we talked?"

"Yes," said the Chairman.

"Some one had asked me," said Mr. Baruch, "to suggest an officer for the Federal Reserve Board." [Persons conversant with the affair of the Reserve Board suggest that this was probably a slip of the tongue for "Director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York," to replace Charles Starek.] "I called up the Secretary with reference to that."

"Is it a fact or not that you frequently called up Mr. Tumulty during this time?"

"It is not. I never called him once. If the records show it they're faked."

"Did Mr. Tumulty call you?" asked Chairman Henry.

"No. There is not a scintilla or an iota of truth in any rumors of the connections of Mr. Tumulty with the stock market. I haven't met Mr. Tumulty in New York during the last three or four months."

"Have you met him frequently in the Biltmore Hotel?" asked Chairman Henry, referring to rumors which had been current at the beginning of the investigation.

"That's all moonshine," said Mr. Baruch.

Then Congressman Campbell, leader of the minority Representatives, took over the questioning, and asked Mr. Baruch if he had ever held any security of the Allies.

"I subscribed to the Anglo-French loan more from sentiment than anything else," said the witness. "Later I sold my holdings—long before this time."

"Were you surprised that a matter of so great importance to stock brokers as this should get out?" asked Mr. Campbell.

"I don't believe it did get out."

Then Mr. Campbell devoted considerable time to finding out why Mr. Baruch had a special locomotive hitched to his private car in order to bring him up to Washington from Georgetown, S. C., on Dec. 6 an hour ahead of the regular train, but Mr. Baruch said that Southern trains were often late—"and Northern ones, too"—and that he wanted to be on time for a meeting of the Advisory Council on National Defense.

"Who asked you for a suggestion for an appointee to the Federal Reserve Board?" asked Mr. Campbell.

"E. M. House," said the witness, and there followed a loud silence. Finally Mr. Campbell asked: "Did he ask you to call Secretary McAdoo?"

"Yes."

"You don't agree with the President's Cincinnati speech during the campaign," asked Mr. Campbell, shifting his line of attack, "in which he said that the war had nothing to do with the prosperity of America, and that its termination would have no effect on us?"

"I don't agree with that part of it," said the witness. "When the war is over this country's going to pieces. It will be left flat on its back."

Mr. Whipple then returned to the inquiry.

Never Dined with Bernstorff.

"Were you ever present," he asked, "at dinner during October, November or December with Mr. Archibald S. White, Count von Bernstorff, and Mr. Charles H. Sabin?"

"I never was."

"Do you know Count von Bernstorff?"

"I met him so long ago that I don't remember where or when it happened. I never dined with Mr. Sabin or Mr. White."

F. A. Connolly arrived from Washington last night and will take the stand this morning. He will be asked certain questions as to his ground for the statements which he sent by private wire to the Hutton firm, and a member of the committee declared last night that "Connolly would not be able to hide behind the excuse that common gossip was the source of his information."

BOLLING'S RECENT DENIAL.

First Mentioned by Congressman Wood—His Denial to Committee.

The name of R. W. Bolling, first mentioned in connection with the peace note "leak" by Representative William R. Wood of Indiana, in testimony he gave before the Rules Committee in Washington on Jan. 5, in which he referred to the fact that Mr. Bolling was a member of the Washington stock brokerage firm of F. A. Connolly & Co., whose New York correspondents are E. F. Hutton & Co.

Mr. Bolling promptly issued a statement that the mention of his name was "absolutely unwarranted." "I did not know the note had been written or sent," read his statement, "until we received a wire from Hutton & Co."

He added that he had not been in communication with the White House or with the President for some time previous to the sending of the peace note. Mr. Bolling also stated that he had signed an agreement with the Connolly firm that none of the partners would trade in stocks.

"I have been particular to live up to the letter of this agreement for many reasons," said Mr. Bolling. "One of them is that I am related to the President by marriage, and it may enter the minds of some people that I could profit by that relationship. I haven't bought or sold a nickel's worth of stocks. I did not know of the note and did not profit or lose by it, and I shall be glad to go before the Rules Committee and brand the whole thing as untrue and absurd."

Mr. Bolling testified before the committee on Jan. 9, and at the outset he demanded a public apology from Representative Wood for bringing his name into the "leak" controversy.

"Whoever is responsible—and I believe that it is Representative Wood—for connecting me with the rumor of a leak should send me an apology at the same time he sends one to Secretary Tumulty," declared Mr. Bolling. "I knew absolutely nothing in advance of the sending of the President's peace note to the warring nations."

CLEMENT CONFIRMS WIRE

And Compares Broker's Office to "Old Ladies' Sewing Society."

Special to The New York Times.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 30.—Incidental to his admission that he sent a telegram to Edward F. Hutton, a Wall Street broker, on the Wilson peace note rumor, Allan Clement of the Chicago brokerage firm of Clement, Curtis & Co., compared a modern brokerage office to an old ladies' sewing society tonight. He said the reports from New York that he had prophesied the Wilson peace note were correct.

"I couldn't tell for the life of me," he said, answering a query as to the origin of the rumor. "The rumor of the peace move came to me through the gossip of my customers and I recall the name of no one of them. You know a modern brokerage office is like an old ladies' sewing society. There is a lot of gossip and rumors and when there is a lot of it, it generally has a meaning of some sort.

"Probably I will be subpoenaed to Washington to tell where I got my information, but I can give nothing more definite than I have just now. There is a lot of 'bunk' about the whole leak investigation."

MAY HAVE BEEN STAREK CASE.

Baruch Evidence Recalls Federal Reserve Bank Director's Suspension.

Bankers who read Bernard M. Baruch's testimony before the Rules Committee evinced keen interest in the broker's reference to telephonic conversations with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo in regard to a Federal Reserve Bank appointment. Mr. Baruch did not reveal the name of the man he suggested to the Secretary, nor did he specify the precise title of the position.

As far as is known, no member of the Federal Reserve Board in Washington contemplates resigning, and there are no vacancies. Opinion in banking circles was that Mr. Baruch had probably been asked to suggest a successor to Charles Starek, a Director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Mr. Starek was suspended last week by Controller of the Currency Williams as Chief National Bank Examiner for this district; and it is assumed that he will either resign as a Director of the Federal Reserve Bank or else be removed by the Federal Reserve Board in Washington, which appointed him. At the time that Mr. Baruch spoke to Secretary McAdoo, Mr. Starek was already under suspension. The Federal Reserve Board has given the Starck case consideration, but thus far has made no announcement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—An address by Poultney Bigelow, American author, before the Canadian Club at Toronto, yesterday, in which he cast aspersions upon the American Consular Service, caused Representative Britten of Illinois today to introduce a resolution directing the House Military Affairs Committee to investigate the charges made by "this purported American."

new Consuls will be designated for their posts.

There is some doubt concerning plans of the Mexican Government relative to the post of its Ambassador here. Eliseo Arredondo, who has been the Ambassador-designate, before going to Mexico on a summons from General Carranza several weeks ago, announced that he would return to Washington in several weeks. There is no definite knowledge that he will return here as Ambassador. It has been intimated strongly that another Ambassador would be sent here.

Troops Ordered Home.

The War Department announced today that these troops had been ordered home from the border for muster out: Troop A, cavalry, Oregon; Battery A, field artillery, Oregon; Troop B, cavalry, Washington; Company A, signal corps, Washington. The announcement continued:

"With the completion of the movements referred to regular forces will be distributed along the border so as to place an infantry division and two cavalry brigades in the eastern part of the border, an infantry division and a cavalry brigade in the central part, and an infantry division with one extra cavalry regiment in the western end of the border."

Secretary Baker said that as soon as the 25,000 National Guardsmen recently ordered from the Mexican border had left for their home States additional militiamen would be sent from the border. Definite plans depend upon transportation facilities.

TROOPS AT PALOMAS LAKES.

First of Pershing's Men Arrive at Concentration Point.

EL PASO, Texas, Jan. 30.—A camp is being laid out at Palomas Lakes, eight miles south of Columbus, N. M. The American expeditionary forces will concentrate there before marching across the border. A detachment of the Twenty-fourth Infantry arrived at Palomas Lakes early today, according to passengers from Columbus, and work was started on the temporary encampment. These were the first troops of the expedition to reach Palomas Lakes.

Major Gen. Pershing left Colonia Dublan today for Ojo Federico and Palomas Lakes. He waited until the last train of refugees had left for the border at Juarez. The American troops were expected to reach Palomas Lakes Friday and go into camp there until the review on Sunday, after which they will move to Columbus. The refugees are not expected to wait for the troops.

Villa was reported to Government agents to have been in Namiquipa, south of El Valle, yesterday. His troops were occupying Pershing's abandoned outpost south of Colonia Dublan and were expected to move into Colonia Dublan after General Pershing left. Villa agents in El Paso asserted that Villa forces had moved up to Galeana, eighteen miles north of El Valle and only thirty miles southeast of Colonia Dublan.

EXTOLS OUR MEXICAN POLICY

Manchester Guardian Says Wilson Is Avoiding the Jingoist.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—In an editorial praising the Mexican policy of the United States, the Manchester Guardian says:

"To say that the whole country has been reduced to order would be exaggerating, but the area of disorder has been greatly diminished, and is now less than at any time since the revolution against Diaz.

"President Wilson's Mexican policy has been guided by two principles—determination to avoid the jingoist, which is the cover of capitalist hunger, and determination to allow Mexico to work out her salvation with as much help and as little interference as possible from the United States. The policy has difficulties and trials which are not yet over, but it is beginning to be vindicated by its fruits."

PERMIT OR NO RESTAURANT.

Health Commissioner's Indorsement Needed for All Eating Places.

The Board of Health yesterday adopted an amendment to the Sanitary Code by which it stipulated that every eating place in New York City, from restaurants in the most expensive hotels to quick-lunch counters, must get a permit from the Commissioner of Health in order to continue business. The amendment went into effect [illegible].

Dr. Haven Emerson, Health Commissioner, said the amendment was an outgrowth of the department's investigation of restaurants last year, which showed that several of them were not complying with the regulations of the department. A majority were found to be giving service with which comparatively little fault was to be found, but reports rendered by inspectors recently indicated that some have become indifferent to the law since that inspection. Dr. Emerson said:

"It is the same system by which we control the milk supply of the city. The public is assured of pure milk because the Health Department has power to revoke permits to deal in milk whenever its regulations are violated. Ability to do this has proved a most effective means of having the laws observed."

Dr. Emerson added that inspectors would be assigned to the task of visiting eating places throughout the city to report on any violations they could find. He said that kitchens and ice boxes would be inspected to see that conditions were sanitary, and that a restaurant's standing with the department would be determined by its cleanliness, equipment, methods of handling foods, service, and all other details which had a bearing on public health.

CANADA TO LAUNCH A GREAT AIR FLEET

Development of War Aviation There to Cost $80,000,000—American Plans Work.

840 MACHINES FOR DEFENSE

Schools to be Established and Young Men Trained in All Phases of Fighting on the Wing.

Canada has started to spend the $80,000,000 recently set aside for the aeronautical development and aerial protection of the Dominion, and yesterday an outline of the plans being followed was received by Harry Woodhouse of the Aero Club of America. These call for the establishment of great training schools, an aeroplane factory of large capacity, and the maintenance, in active service, of twenty aero squadrons. The plans were formulated by an American aviator, J. A. D. McCurdy, who has been identified with aeronautics in this country for many years.

"I learned today that eleven officers of the Royal Flying Corps and forty mechanics have just arrived in Canada," said Mr. Woodhouse last night, "where they will take charge of the development of the twenty aero squadrons planned for the defense of the Dominion. The commanding officer of the detachment is Colonel Hoare, who will be assisted by Majors Nethhun and Allen, and Captains Borell and Strobel. Colonel Hoare will select his assistants, most of whom will be Canadians.

"Two training schools are to be established near Toronto. These will have 180 machines each and will take their pupils through all the work necessary to fit them for immediate battle service. They will be taught pursuit work, bomb-dropping, observation routine, and every branch of modern air practice. Hitherto the Canadian aviators have received their preliminary training here and in Canada and were sent abroad for the finishing touches. More than 800 have been sent to England so far. From now on the Canadian branch of the Royal Flying Corps will turn out their military aviators at home.

"F. W. Bailey of the Munition Board will be in general charge of the carrying out of the Canadian plans and the board will supply the machines, of which 800 are needed immediately. The aviators themselves will be under the Imperial Army and will be in active service as members of the defense forces of the empire.

"McCurdy started more than two years ago to develop Canadian aeronautics. At that time he met with small response and it was not until a number of graduates of his school near Toronto were sent abroad and made brilliant records that the idea took hold. Finally he drew the plans for the twenty aero squadrons and took them to England, where they were accepted by the proper authorities and work started at once.

"Colonel W. Hamilton Merritt, President of the Aero Club of Canada, is assisting in getting the personnel of the twenty squadrons, and already has a long list of applicants. College men are volunteering in numbers.

"The Canadian plans call for 280 aviators always in active service. At the usual rate of three machines to each man, there will have to be about 840 aeroplanes ready at all times. This will be a large number and will constitute a great aerial armament, as all of these aviators will be skilled in every branch of their work, from scouting to bomb-dropping.

"The war, according to the idea in English aeronautical circles, is becoming more and more a question of supremacy in the air. In fact, it is openly predicted that the war will be fought out in the air."

BRAVE GIRL REWARDED.

Explosive Plant Telephone Operator Gets Watch and Purse of Gold.

Miss Tessie McNamara, telephone operator of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company at Kingsland, N. J., recently wrecked by an explosion, received yesterday a gold watch and a purse of gold from the Maryland Casualty Company, which had insured the plant employes under the workmen's compensation law. The presentation was made by Eugene F. Hord, the company's manager, who thanked Miss McNamara for her bravery and hoped her act would be an inspiration to others to act with courage in a time of danger.

Miss McNamara saved the lives of the employes by sticking at her telephone switchboard at the risk of her life and sending repeated warning over the wires as she watched the spread of the flames to places where high explosives were stored. From her window at the centre of the big plant she could see the fire and, regardless of her own danger, she kept plugging in the connections to each of the thirty-six buildings until she was assured that her message of warning had been received in each. This done, she fainted and was carried out while shells had already begun to explode. Through her bravery every one in the plant got out safely.

NAMES A WOMAN ON BOARD.

Queens Borough President Appoints Mrs. Davis in 42d District.

Borough President Connolly of Queens yesterday named Mrs. Maude Davis of Brown Place, Maspeth, as a member of the local school board for the Forty-second District, which includes the largest school in the borough. This is the third woman Mr. Connolly has appointed to local school boards, the others being Mrs. Delos F. Wilcox, wife of the Deputy Water Commissioner, who is a member of the Forty-second District Board, and Mrs. Alfred Eno, who is a member of the Forty-fourth District.

Mrs. Eno, suffragist leader, and Miss Emily Walker of Elmhurst, active in both civic and suffrage circles, requested President Connolly to appoint a woman to the vacancy now filled by Mrs. Davis.

The Kaiser's Early Conception of Peace

The Mid-Week Pictorial of The New York Times issued Jan. 25th had a double page Rotogravure reproduction of a remarkable drawing by Kaiser Wilhelm, heretofore unpublished in this country. It portrays his conception of Peace, showing a knight in shining armor defending the dome of peace, where abides German Culture, against the onslaughts of venom, envy and hatred. This remarkable drawing is worthy of being framed and is especially interesting now.

Upper House Hurriedly Passes the Motor Truck Tax Bill—Whitman May Delay Action.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 30.—Senator George F. The intimation came after the Senate had adjourned for the day. While the session was in progress Senator Thompson announced that he would rise to a question of personal privilege in the Senate tomorrow and pay his respects to the "two biggest jokes in New York City."

Miss Louise Sachen, who passed in this city as the daughter of a wealthy miner in Alaska, publicly confessed last night at the University Forum, Washington Irving High School, that she had deceived all New York because she wished to obtain an education and "become a lady."

Walter Cummings, President of the Forum, in introducing Miss Sachen, condoned her deception and said he felt sorry for her because the newspapers had given her too much unpleasant publicity. Her true story, he said, was far more interesting than those published, and that her burning desire to be a real American woman was an example to the numerous hyphenated Americans now here, and that those who were able to should help her. GRAYSON PROMOTION FAVORABLY REPORTED

Naval Committee Recommends Confirmation as Admiral on Strict Party Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—By a strict party vote of 8 to 2 the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs this afternoon decided to recommend the confirmation of Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the President's personal medical adviser, as Medical Director with the rank of Rear Admiral. [illegible] four officers were nominated for advancement by the President at the time he named Dr. Grayson.

Dr. Grayson himself appeared before the committee today and was questioned at length regarding his service and experience, with the Republican members doing most of the examining. They sought to bring out that Dr. Grayson had been in the service thirteen years, of which only two years were actually at sea, the rest being on the yacht [illegible] or in Washington. It was also brought out in the course of the testimony that instead of being examined on Jan. 17 to determine his readiness for promotion he was asked to present a thesis. This, Dr. Grayson testified, was the customary procedure.

He was questioned about his relationship with ex-Surgeon Gen. Rixey, who was on the Examining Board, and in reply said that he had lived with him three years and had acted as his assistant at the Naval Dispensary. Dr. Grayson said the Surgeon General's brother had married his half-sister.

Dr. Grayson was also asked about two examinations from which he had withdrawn in 1903, one for the post of Assistant Surgeon, the other for Hospital Steward in the navy. From the first, he said, he withdrew because it seemed more than he thought he could pass, and he therefore waited and passed it later. He withdrew from the other, he said, because he decided he did not care for the place and wanted to be an interne at Columbia Hospital in Washington.

An Open Letter to

J. Ogden Armour

Packer and Captain of Food Industry

DEAR MR. ARMOUR:

FIFTY years ago when your illustrious father, Phillip Danforth Armour, established the modest packing house of Armour & Plankington, in Milwaukee, and later on the house of Armour & Co., in Chicago, he knew the value of every penny and the need of economy. His knowledge of his own needs gave him a clear insight into the principles of quality and economy which were forwith shining characteristics.

HE KNEW then that if he put quality on the market and sold it at a reasonable and legitimate profit, success was bound to come. And he lived to see his house become the greatest of its kind in the world. His able beginning gave you your inspiration for a wonderful modern development. Today you are known wherever the human tongue is spoken and, in the language of Emerson, "the world has made a beaten path to your door. During 1916 your house did a business of six hundred million dollars. Further comment is unnecessary.

YOUR principles of quality and economy made the world sit up and take notice. The rigid maintenance of both these principles established the Armour standard and it is because of this that I address this letter to you. I know of one similar condition, namely that of The American Tobacco Company which manufactures the LORD SALISBURY cigarette, makes it of 100 percent pure all-Turkish tobacco, yet sells it at a price that all classes can willingly afford. It is the same idea—and the only right idea.

I REALIZE that if I were to call on you today and ask you to choose a cigarette that might properly be termed the logical one for the whole human family, your answer would be based on the principles which your father followed and which you follow—both of you knowing the full meaning of economics. You would in my estimation, choose LORD SALISBURY because it is the only cigarette in the world that exemplifies the Armour principles. Every time these principles are rigidly maintained, success follows as the night the day.

BY FOLLOWING these same principles, Mr. Armour, the sale of the LORD SALISBURY cigarette has increased from eight million a month to fifty-one million a month in less than five months. And I think that every business man in the world will unhesitatingly say that such a tremendous increase is due only to quality, quantity and economy and the absolute maintenance of all three.

I beg to assure you Mr. Armour, that

The LORD SALISBURY cigarette made and guaranteed by the American Tobacco Company, is the only 100% pure all-Turkish tobacco cigarette in the world that sells for as little money as 15 cents for TWENTY-TWENTY-TWENTY Cigarettes

INJUSTICE SEEN BY DILLON

Food Commissioner Says Dealer Gets as Much Profit as All Other Factors Combined.

Indications yesterday were that, following the example of the Borden Company, other handlers of milk in this city would increase prices on or near the first of the month. Various reasons were assigned for the advances contemplated, and it is a probability that, even with a cent a quart added, further [illegible] may occur.

The reason for higher milk has variously been put on the Winter weather, the dairymen's strike, the Wicks legislative Committee, and the economy of those who have diminished their daily [illegible] under the pinch of the high cost of [illegible]. The question, however, is one open to argument, for J. J. Dillon, State Commissioner of Food and Markets, [illegible] that there is no reason for the present price boosting.

After Thursday the Borden Company will advance grade B milk from 10 to 11 cents a quart. The price of Grade A will remain the same. "Extra heavy" cream will go up from 16 to 18 cents a half pint, and [illegible] cream from 11 to 12 cents. In making the announcement the company said that a readjustment of price was necessary in February, which is one of the [illegible] months in the year for milk dealers here. [illegible]

Commissioner Dillon said yesterday that it would be well for the public to know the facts regarding the milk market. [illegible]

CHAIRMAN WENCK IS ON THE GRILL OF CROSS-EXAMINATION FOR FOUR HOURS AT ALBANY

WENCK IS TANGLED IN TOILS OF FUCHS

Head of Boxing Commission Admits Errors of Memory in Hearing at Albany.

MONEY FROM BOXING MEN

Explains Several Such Incidents as Payment of Debts Due Him—Trial Adjourns to This City.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 30.—Frederick A. Wenck, Chairman of the State Athletic Commission, defendant in a hearing before Special Commissioner Franklin B. Lord, on charges of extortion and incompetence in office, left the stand today after four hours of grilling in cross-examination by Emil E. Fuchs, attorney for the complainants, Patrick T. Powers, John J. White, and Harry M. Pollok, all boxing promoters. At the conclusion of Wenck's cross-examination the hearing was adjourned until Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock, when it will be resumed at the Bar Association's rooms in New York City. It is planned to inquire then into the records of the commission's office.

The story which Wenck told yesterday collapsed partly today under the fire of Mr. Fuchs. The defendant was forced to admit that his memory had not served him well in connection with some of the statements he had made while under direct examination. He was tripped upon clauses in the boxing law, although he is Chief Boxing Commissioner. His story that he had been told he would be "framed up" was shaken. Finally, he was brought to acknowledge financial deals with fight managers and fight promoters, the timeliness of which was sarcastically commented upon by the lawyer as "extraordinary coincidences, I suppose, Mr. Wenck."

In addition to Wenck, there was one other witness today, who was on the stand for a few moments just at the close of the session. This was Michael E. Collins, formerly manager of Fred Fulton, the heavyweight. He declared that he was present at the hearing by accident, that he had not been subpoenaed, but happened to be in Albany on business.

Says Wenck Promoted Bout.

Collins's testimony was in direct contradiction to certain assertions made by Wenck to Mr. Fuchs. He said that the Boxing Commissioner had himself promoted the Fulton-Reich fight last April. The witness asserted that he met Wenck at the latter's invitation and had been introduced by him to John J. Mack, whose name was among those signed to the contracts of that fight. At the end of the bout, he said, Wenck had asked him if he was "fixed up all right?"

"'I'm fixed with everything, all right, except the money owing me,' I told Wenck," said Collins. "Later he told me that he would see that Fred Fulton was paid, but that I could go to h— for my share."

William A. Orr, Secretary to Governor Whitman, and Public Service Commissioner Charles S. Hervey were mentioned by Wenck as those who had advised him as to the course he should follow since he first learned, as he alleges, from Pollok that he was going to be "framed up."

"Pollok told me the morning we had the scrap in the Grand Central Station," said Wenck, "that he would put me in wrong with the Governor. 'There are wheels within wheels; those people can get the Governor in ways you never dreamed of,' he told me, 'and I myself am a personal friend of Whitman's. The Governor was elected, you know, because he sent Charlie Becker to the chair. That was the crowning achievement of his life. But it is a fact that I was really the man who convicted Becker.'

Says He Followed Advice.

"After we had the fist fight, I telephoned my office to tell Mr. Orr I was coming up to Albany. I met him there at lunch at the Ten Eyck Hotel together with Mr. Hervey, a Public Service Commissioner, and a newspaper man. After they had heard my story, how Pollok threatened to frame me up when I refused to grant him a license to hold boxing bouts in the Madison Square Garden on a bogus lease, Mr. Hervey advised me not to go to the Attorney General then as I intended. He warned me, and Mr. Orr agreed with him, that I had better get everything down in writing and send it to the Attorney General. On Dec. 12 I got a letter from Albany from the Attorney General approving my course in regard to the lease."

It was on this testimony that Mr. Fuchs got in some of his most telling blows at the credibility of the defendant's assertions of a "frame up." Under the lawyer's searching questions and in spite of the rapid-fire objections which Austen G. Fox, attorney for the defense, kept up, the defendant was forced to admit that he took Pollok's check for $100, payable to bearer, after he had been told by Pollok that he would be "framed." This check, he said, he put through for collection at his tailor's without indorsing it. It was made payable on Nov. 27, the day of the hearing on the application for a license from Pollok and his friends, which was not granted. This date on the check, Wenck said in answer to a question from Mr. Fuchs, was a coincidence.

Wenck admitted, also, that he never told his advisers, Mr. Orr and Mr. Hervey, about receiving the hundred dollar check, even at the time he told them of his fear of a "frame up."

Admits Mistake in Statement.

Again, in answering questions of Mr. Fuchs, the defendant admitted that he had been wrong yesterday when he said that he had never called Pollok up on Nov. 21. He remembered calling Pollok, he said, after the latter had called him, requesting that he do so.

The attorney for the complainants got Wenck to admit that in June, 1916, he had granted a license to Pollok to hold fights in Washington Park, Brooklyn. The defendant said that the Moran-Dillon fight was held there, and that just after that fight Pollok had met him in the Biltmore and paid him $100, money due him, said Wenck, as part of an old debt which the fight promoter owed him for publicity work. He said that the club which Pollok represented in leasing the park had been in default to the State for taxes until they were collected from the bonding company.

Here it was that Mr. Fuchs asked Wenck about Section 10 of the Boxing law, which prohibits a man who owes taxes to the State from receiving a license to operate another club, and Section 11, which makes violation of the foregoing section a misdemeanor. Wenck declared that he did not remember the sections of the law mentioned, and said that jurisdiction in such matters as payment of taxes was in the hands of the State Controller.

The defendant likewise admitted that he had received money after he became Boxing Commissioner from Jack Curley, who was interested in Jess Willard's ring fortunes, and that he had received money from Eddy McMahon, manager of pugilists and of fight clubs. Both of these men, he asserted, owed him money, and it was simply coincidence that they had paid him after he took office. They had several times paid him sums before he became Boxing Commissioner, he said.

Didn't Notice, Says Wenck.

Wenck said that he had received $100 from Dan McKettrick for some business transactions. Asked by Commissioner Lord, after a severe controversy between the two lawyers over the question, if he knew whether or not the name of Dan McKettrick had appeared on the application for a renewal of license made by the Manhattan Athletic Club, Wenck said that he could not remember, that he had not noticed.

The defendant's own testimony relating to the accusations against him made by Collins was as follows:

"I was asked to meet Collins by my old friend Tom Andrews. Collins asked me where he could arrange for a fight for his man Fulton. I invited him to meet John J. Mack at lunch, and several days afterward drew up the details of the fight. I went on Mack's note, which has not yet been paid entirely, for $2,500, but I did so only as a favor to a friend and with no understanding or thought of sharing in the profits of the fight. I did not promote that fight."

Dr. Joseph E. Cramer's name was brought in by the complainant's counsel today. Wenck told of how he had made Dr. Cramer chief physician for inspecting boxers, a prerogative challenged by Mr. Fuchs. The defendant said that he thought Dr. Cramer had been induced to join the conspiracy to "frame him." He had not removed the physician after the Grand Central fist fight, he said, because the latter's term expired Jan. 1, 1917, three weeks after that occurrence.

BOXER IS KILLED IN RING.

Youth Engaged in First Professional Fight Slain by Blow.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 30.—With his father occupying a ringside seat and State Boxing Commissioner John Franey also a spectator, Stephen H. McDonald, a young middleweight, engaged in his first professional venture in the prize ring, was instantly killed by a blow over the heart in the first of the preliminary bouts of a boxing exhibition at German Hall tonight.

The tragedy did not seem to affect the large crowd that witnessed the fight at all. At first it was thought to be an ordinary knockout. The killing of McDonald—when it became known in the audience that he had died—seemed merely to whet the appetite of the spectators. They remained through two more preliminary bouts, a semi-final and four rounds of the star event of the evening, which was to have gone ten rounds, but was stopped at that point because the two principals were so poorly matched that the managers feared there would be a repetition of the tragedy that marred the opening bout of the evening.

Toddy Hicks, who landed the death-dealing blow, is held on a charge of manslaughter. William Cliker, who was in Hicks's corner, and the referee have been placed under arrest and are being held in $1,500 bail.

BLOOM EASY FOR LEONARD.

Harlem Boxer Has Better of Bout by Wide Margin.

Benny Leonard, the Harlem lightweight, was not forced to extend himself to his limit last night to win the honors over Phil Bloom, the Brooklyn contender for Freddie Welsh's championship title, in their ten-round bout, which was the main attraction at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn. The contest can be summed up as hardly more than a gymnasium workout for the fast little Harlem boxer, who managed to restrict his opponent's efforts to such a degree that Bloom landed hardly a dozen blows.

Leonard earned the honors in all of the ten rounds and accomplished this with apparent ease. He floored Bloom cleanly in the second round with a hard lefthand blow to the jaw, and the Brooklyn boxer found it necessary to take a count of eight before arising. From this stage of the contest Leonard had his adversary holding at every opportunity, and in the fifth, sixth, and tenth sessions Bloom was on the verge of a knockout. The bell in the fifth round found the Brooklynite ready to drop to the floor as a result of terrific blows to the jaw. In the other two rounds, when he had Bloom in distress, Leonard either eased up in his boxing or failed to land cleanly with a deciding blow.

YALE CLUB TAKES TITLE.

Defeats Princeton Club in Class B Squash and Wins Championship.

CLASS B SQUASH TENNIS.

Standing of the Clubs.

Club.	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Yale	5	1	.833
Columbia	4	2	.667
Princeton	2	4	.333
Crescent A. C.	1	5	.167

The Yale Club squash tennis players hold the championship in the Class B division of the Metropolitan Squash Tennis League. This tournament, which has been in progress since early in December, came to an end yesterday when the Yale Club played its final match against the Princeton Club and won by a score of 3 to 2. The second match decided yesterday was that between the Columbia Club and the Crescent A. C. In this Columbia was successful, winning by a score of 3 to 2, and thereby securing second place in the inter-club race. Princeton is third and the Crescent A. C., the newest member of the league, is fourth.

In playing against the Princeton Club on the Princeton courts, Yale almost came to grief. In fact, it was a defaulted match which turned the decision in favor of the Blue. W. B. Chamberlain of the Princeton Club failed to appear on scheduled time for his match with Donald McKay of the Yale Club and the latter took the contest by default. Had a decision in favor of Princeton been registered in this match there would have been created a tie for first place in the league race, between Yale and Columbia. The one surprise of this competition was in the defeat of A. Corey of the Yale Club. It was this player who recently gained the Class B individual title. Harold Tobey of the Princeton Club vanquished him yesterday, the score in his favor reading 18—17, 15—5. Straight games prevailed in every match of this series.

The Columbia Club met with a bit of stubborn opposition from the much defeated Crescent A. C. H. Rowe earned a pretty victory over H. Kellock of Columbia with the score 15—9, 9—15, 15—11. The second man on the Columbia team was A. C. Scott and he proved superior in skill to J. Doig of the Crescents. Still he was pressed to a three-game encounter before he could count the point up in favor of his side. The score was 15—8, 6—15, 15—12.

MEREDITH WILL RETIRE.

Robertson States Track Star Will Quit After A. A. U. Title Event.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 30.—Ted Meredith, considered one of the greatest middle-distance runners of all time, will hang up his spiked shoes for good and all after the national track and field championships of the A. A. U., which are to be held in St. Louis on Sept. 7 and 8. Lawson Robertson, coach of the University of Pennsylvania, is the authority for this announcement of the forthcoming retirement.

"Meredith feels that it is time he settled down to hard work," said Robertson, in talking about Meredith's retirement. "But before he quits for good he wants to regain his national quarter-mile title, which he lost last Fall, when he was defeated by Tom Halpin. To beat Halpin and regain his lost honors are the incentives which are driving him to train as he never trained before. He will race at intervals during the indoor season, rest for a while in the early Spring, and then settle down to hard work again in the early Summer and keep it up until the championships come around."

Bishop Wins Squash Tourney.

Charles Bishop won the handicap squash tournament at the New York Athletic Club yesterday when he defeated George M. Richard in the final round by 12—15, 15—8, 15—6. Richard played from scratch and conceded five aces to his opponent.

FLOCK TO DEFENSE OF COACH FOLWELL

Irate Penn Men Protest Against Ousting of Mentor, Who Will Have Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—Never in the history of athletic affairs at the University of Pennsylvania has such influential protest been aligned against the so-called "Supreme Court," the Faculty Committee on Athletics, as developed today following the announcement that Robert C. Folwell, head coach of the first successful Red and Blue football team in recent years, would be dropped because of conduct considered "lax" by certain members of that tribunal.

Protests against the ruling of Dr. Arthur W. Goodspeed, Chairman of the Faculty Committee, who is insistent upon barring Folwell, and who went on record as saying that the latter could not coach a Penn team again under any conditions, were received by Provost E. Fahs Smith by telephone, telegraph, letter, and in person. From personal complaints against the summary dismissal of Folwell without any explanation early in the morning, the protests grew by leaps and bounds until early evening, when a climax was reached in the form of a formal communication emanating from the State Legislature in session at Harrisburg.

Twenty-one members of the Legislature, alumni of the university, and among them a number of former football stars, rallied today at Harrisburg to the support of Folwell, and appointed a committee to meet Dr. Goodspeed and other members of the Faculty and to urge that the deposed gridiron mentor receive at least a fair hearing.

Of the long list of signers, greatest significance is attached to the name of Dr. Michael S. Bennett. Mr. Bennett, a Vare man in politics, is none other than the present coach of Haverford College football, who is most prominently mentioned as successor to Folwell as the gridiron mentor at Penn. Dr. Bennett played full back on the University team under Captain W. G. Gardiner in 1902 and Captain Sol Metzger in 1903. He was a member of the same team as Wharton Sinkler, Chairman of the Football Committee, and has been looked upon as the candidate of the "Old Guard" referred to by the deposed Folwell.

Folwell will have a hearing before the Faculty Committee tomorrow. This announcement was made tonight by Dr. A. W. Goodspeed, Chairman of the committee, after Dr. Edgar F. Smith, Provost of the university, had declared that Folwell was entitled to a hearing and should not be "counted out of the running" until he had had an opportunity to defend himself.

Dr. Smith further declared that the system of athletic control at Pennsylvania needs revising, and after the Folwell matter is settled a new system will be inaugurated. "Under the new system," he added, "the Faculty Committee will not be given the final say in all matters." Provost Smith said that had he been consulted he would not have given his consent for the football team to make the recent trip to the Pacific Coast, where it was defeated by the University of Oregon. "The trip was ill-advised," he said.

TRAPS TITLE STEPHENSON'S.

N. Y. A. C. Gunner Wins Long Island Sound Championship.

Frank B. Stephenson, the veteran gunner of the New York Athletic Club, who at one time held the indoor championship, swept the boards at the ninth annual amateur clay bird championship of Long Island Sound over the traps of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club yesterday. He took the title from a field of 40 other gunners with a score of 90 out of a possible 100 targets.

The individual strings were 22, 23, 23, and 22. They were not as good as those made by H. Welles, a professional, who led the field with a total of 93. H. H. Shannon finished second among the amateurs. Then came W. S. Silkworth and L. Thomas, who were tied with 83 each. On the shoot off, the former was the winner. F. J. Ham, Jr., was next in the amateur ranks. He came along with a total of 81.

The New York Athletic Club was the winner of the team prize, taking the championship with a total of 415 out of a possible 500 targets. The Port Washington Yacht Club and the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club were the only other organizations competing for the team trophy.

The day was not particularly good for the sport. A high wind swept into the face of the gunners from the northwest, making it exceedingly difficult to hit the tiny blue rocks. Under the circumstances marksmen consider Stephenson's score exceedingly creditable.

The totals follow:

HERZOG HITS AT PITCHERS.

Giants' Captain Wants Rule Prohibiting Twirlers from Winding Up.

Charley Herzog, Captain of the Giants and cantaloupe farmer of Ridgley, Md., visited the Giants' offices yesterday before starting on his Winter vacation in Florida. He will be in Marlin, Texas, among the earliest arrivals at the end of February. Herzog also called on President Tener of the National League to expound his ideas concerning changes in the playing rules.

"The pitcher has become altogether too important a factor in the game," said Herzog. "His power ought to be curtailed. I believe that batting would be increased and the game improved if a rule were passed forbidding a pitcher to 'wind up' his arm before he throws the ball. This practice has a tendency to rattle many batters, and gives the pitcher an unfair advantage. When I was manager of Cincinnati I had players who would be sure to strike out just as soon as they faced a pitcher with a big 'wind up.' Before pitchers who did not 'wind up,' they were effective batsmen, which goes to prove my point."

Herzog is also in favor of establishing a foul ball zone within the territory as far as first base and third base. Any foul within this zone to count as a foul strike, and a ball beyond that zone, in left and right fields for example, not to count as a foul strike.

President John K. Tener of the National League also has a new rule to submit to the Rules Committee for increasing the batting. He suggests that the home plate be increased from seventeen to eighteen inches wide and that the batsman be allowed to take his base on three balls.

Salary of Honus Wagner to be Cut.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 30.—The salary of Honus Wagner, famous shortstop of the Pittsburgh National League team, will feel the blue pencil of retrenchment this season, President Barney Dreyfuss admitted tonight. Wagner is understood to receive $10,000 a year. The Pirates' owner refused to indicate how much of this would be chopped off.

HOCKEY FORGOTTEN AS PLAYERS FIGHT

Irish-Americans Win Roughest of Rough-House Games from Hockey Club Seven.

Standing of the Local Clubs.

	W.	L.	P. C.
Crescent A. C.	3	0	1000
Irish-American A. C.	3	1	.750
Hockey Club	1	3	.250
St. Nicholas S. C.	0	3	.000

In the roughest hockey game that has been seen here in years the Irish-American A. C. seven defeated the Hockey Club at St. Nicholas Rink last night by a score of 4 to 3. A free-for-all fight interrupted the second half, and officials and spectators were powerless to quell the small riot until some faces had been bruised and a few heads smashed.

The trouble started when Patsy Sequin's stick smashed a cut over the left eye of Tom Howard Jr. The players all bunched around the young Howard, and Sequin, and more blows were struck. Then Tom Howard, Sr., whose two sons are on the Hockey Club team, rushed onto the ice and began to punch at Sequin. Other spectators, including two women, jumped forth, and soon half a hundred spectators were crowded around the excited players.

The Irish-American players mixed up with the Hockey Club players, and it was hard to tell whether they were fighting or attempting to separate players who were fighting. Tom Howard, Sr., was escorted off the ice, somebody subdued the bubbling anger of Sequin, and then the game was resumed. After the finish of the contest Tom Howard, Sr., and Sequin again clashed in the locker rooms, and during this engagement the head of Hewitt, one of the Irish-American players, came into harsh contact with a hockey stick, and the former object was cut by the latter. Then there was another eruption of overzealous hockey players before the riot was finally stilled.

The game was rough from the start, and there was tripping, slashing, and fighting. Once Sequin was thrown flying through the air and escaped serious injury by colliding with one of the Hockey Club players, taking him down to the ice with him. The officials, Messrs. Roach and Von Bernuth, failed to put a check on the rough-and-tumble play.

Sequin scored the first goal for the Irish Club on a triple pass from Dufresne and Smith. A little later the Hockey Club tied the score, when Young shot the rubber into the net, taking a swift pass from young Jack Howard. Sequin and Rideout then got two more for the Irish Club, and the first period ended with the score 3 to 1 in the Irish Club's favor.

Sequin, who was all over the ice, scored again for the I.-A. A. C. in the second period, and then the Hockey Club players sent the spectators into a frenzy by scoring two goals, making the count 4 to 3. Jack Howard and Jimmy Britton did the scoring. Howard slipped the disk into the cage, taking Woods completely by surprise, while Britton scored his goal after dashing the length of the rink alone.

There was bad feeling between the players throughout this half, the rebellion breaking out when Sequin's stick cut Tom Howard, Jr.'s, head. The scene which followed, when young Howard's father rushed out to his son's rescue, was one of wild excitement, and only the stern action of a few cool-headed spectators prevented serious trouble. The line-up and summary:

RICE AND MOON WINNERS.

Former Beats Spear, Latter Clarke, in Class B Billiards.

Only two games were played in the national Class B 18.2 billiard tournament at the Amateur Billiard Club yesterday. In the afternoon Julian Rice, the Columbia University expert, earned the decision over George Spear by a score of 300 to 248. The evening contest brought together George T. Moon, Jr., and George P. B. Clarke. After a contest that now and then showed Moon at his best, he succeeded in defeating Clarke by a score of 300 to 203.

Generally speaking, the play thus far in the tournament has not shown relatively as high a quality of competition as did the Class C event, recently concluded. The three former Class C men in the tournament are finding themselves somewhat handicapped by the longer game which they are required to contest in Class B. In the match against Spear, Rice showed excellent quality from the start until the 200-point mark was reached. Then his skill seemed to vanish, and he was struggling for the points thereafter, driving the balls here and there and not exercising the control which usually characterizes his game. Rice's average was 4 40-65, not bad in itself, but much below the standard which the Columbia student has been setting recently. His best run was 55, gained in the seventeenth inning. Spear made an average of 3 56-64, and his greatest cluster in one inning was 31.

This contest between Spear and Rice was to have been the first of the afternoon games. As it turned out it was the only afternoon game. Frederick Loewenthal was to have played Charles P. Mathews, but failed to appear for the contest. The committee in charge of the tournament was undecided last night as to whether Mathews won by default or whether the contest would have to be played later on.

In playing against Clarke in the evening game, Moon showed something of his old-time skill in manipulating the ivories and established the second highest average of the tournament, 6 12-48. Clarke, a former holder of the Class B championship, showed plainly that he was out of practice. He is never a close player, but he is a skillful shot maker. Last night, however, he failed in this, and it was easy for Moon to establish a lead and run out the game.

SACKS FIRST IN ROAD RUN.

Beats Welty by Two Yards in Catholic Athletic League Race.

Frederick Sacks and Martin Welty of the Holy Cross Lyceum fought out the finish of the open five-mile road run for members of the Catholic Athletic League, held last night under the auspices of the Holy Cross Lyceum. The pair started from the 30-second mark and were almost abreast when they turned into Forty-third Street for the short run home to the clubhouse. Sacks had more reserve speed than his rival, and won by two yards. Holy Cross was the only organization to start a full team.

The leaders finished as follows:

Frederick Sacks, Holy Cross Lyceum, (0:30,) 29:18, first; M. Welty, Holy Cross Lyceum, (0:30,) 29:18 2-5, second; J. Dagnan, St. Anselm's, (1:00,) 30:25, third; J. Wanamaker, Holy Cross Lyceum, (4:00,) 34:20, fourth; J. Feller, Holy Cross Lyceum, (4:00,) 35:15, fifth; C. Rofrano, Ozanam Association, (4:00,) 35:20, sixth.

Den[illegible]. The bill provides to create a State Racing Commission of three members, to be appointed by the Governor.

PARENT HORSE SHOW BODY.

Reginald Vanderbilt Heads New National Organization.

A parent body to control horse shows of the country was formed at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday, when about fifty representatives of the different shows met in convention at the invitation of Reginald C. Vanderbilt. The permanent organization will be known as The Association of American Horse Shows, and will be endowed with powers similar to The Jockey Club, The American Kennel Club and the Polo Association.

Great enthusiasm was manifested by the horsemen over the prospects of straightening out through standardization the many difficulties that horse show promoters encounter, and a tribute was paid to Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who conceived the idea, by his election as the first President of the association. Good results were achieved immediately, and before the convention adjourned thirty-nine shows had claimed dates for the coming year. This will enable exhibitors to plan their engagements far in advance of the shows.

A constitution was adopted, subject to slight alterations to be made by a committee, in which it is stated that any horse show association or fair giving horse shows may become a member of the association. The purposes of the association are:

First—To encourage and promote horse shows throughout the United States. To effect a better understanding between various horse shows, thereby enabling them to work in co-operation.

Second—To enforce uniform rules and to punish violators thereof.

Third—To adjust differences which may arise between exhibitors and horse show associations.

The minimum dues will be $10 a year, for shows offering less than $2,000 in prizes. Shows offering $2,000 in prizes will pay $20 a year, and will be allowed two delegates. There will be gradual increases in the amount of dues until the limit is reached for shows giving $10,000 in prizes, which will pay $100 a year and have ten delegates. The annual meetings will be held in the latter part of January. In the meantime the association will be managed by a Board of Directors, which will hold a meeting within the next two weeks. The officers elected were:

President—Reginald C. Vanderbilt. Vice President—William T. Hunter. Treasurer—Pierre Lorillard, Jr. Board of Directors—William Ziegler, Jr., John McE. Bowman, Alfred B. Maclay, Norman Van Voorhis, Pierre Lorillard, Jr., F. F. Field, Prescott Lawrence, J. R. Valentine, William Du Pont, Colonel Treat, L. L. Haggin, G. Howard Davidson, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, William T. Hunter, and Fred Pabst.

John McE. Bowman, Gurney Gue, and William T. Hunter were appointed as a committee to incorporate the association. Among the prominent horsemen present were G. Jason Waters, William Bilts, William K. Farnsworth, F. N. Curtis, O. J. Gude, R. Penn Smith, Frank J. Bryan, J. Schuyler Casey, Herbert J. Krum, F. J. Casey, W. Frank Garrett, John R. Valentine, Charles E. Coxe, Harry F. Eldridge, Hobart Guion, P. P. Moore, and Edward P. Moody.

Alfred B. Maclay and Secretary Charles W. Smith represented the National Horse Show Association, but stated that it was impossible at the present time to give the dates for the annual show in the Garden. The hope that conflicting dates would be avoided was not fulfilled, especially in the month of September, but in future it will be the endeavor of the association to arrange different dates for shows in which the interests of the horsemen conflict.

The dates claimed for shows follow:

Feb. 24-March 1, Havana, Cuba; April 12-14, Philadelphia; April 18-21, Brooklyn, N. Y.; April 24-28, Durland's, New York; May 5-10, Washington, D. GARRIGUS EQUALS RECORDS.

Stuyvesant Finds Boys' High Easy in Tank—Poly Prep Wins.

Paul Garrigus, the remarkable young swimmer of Stuyvesant High School, again demonstrated his speed yesterday at the Sixtieth Street Baths, when he won the 100-yard and 40-yard swims in exceptionally fast time. He did the 40-yard swim in 21 seconds and the 100-yard event in 1:01 3-5. The time equals the records made in the interscholastic championships. At the meet the Stuyvesant swimmers defeated the Boys' High School team by a score of 42 to 11. At the Fourth Avenue Baths in Brooklyn the swimming team of Poly Prep defeated Erasmus Hall by a score of 36 to 17. The Poly Prep swimmers took first place in all events except the dive for form, which was won by Dasley of Erasmus.

POUGHKEEPSIE RACE TO BE THREE MILES

Intercollegiate Regatta Stewards Reduce Distance of 'Varsity Event.

When the 'Varsity race is rowed over the famous Highland course at Poughkeepsie next June the distance will be only three miles instead of four. This has been definitely determined by the Board of Stewards of the Intercollegiate Regatta. The change was announced yesterday by Charles Halsted Mapes, Columbia's representative on the Board of Stewards. Heretofore the distance of the 'Varsity event has always been over the longer course, but opposition has been steadily increasing to the four-mile distance in recent years, and at last the weight of opinion has made itself felt.

The Stewards of the annual regatta met in this city last week to discuss the subject, and all of them were in favor of reducing the distance to three miles at that time. There was, however, a desire on the part of one, perhaps two, to discuss the matter at greater length with the colleges which they represent. The verdict was evidently favorable from the three colleges which compose the intercollegiate regatta—Columbia, Cornell, and Pennsylvania. The change is one of the most radical that have come into the regatta in many years; in fact, since the regatta was brought to Poughkeepsie.

Opinion of rowing men yesterday was to the effect that the change would be of inestimable value in increasing the interest in the annual regatta. Under the shorter distance plan it was thought that Annapolis and Princeton would turn their attention to the regatta. The main argument in favor of the shorter distance has been that the four-mile race was too great a strain on the men.

Those who argued the longer distance, however, were of the opinion that shortening the race to three miles would increase the strain, because then the race would be a sprint from start to finish. One competent authority said yesterday that in his opinion the shorter course was bound to ease the strain on the men; that they would recover more quickly from the effects of the race than under the present conditions.

The rules of eligibility for the regatta are also changed in some particulars, mainly to the effect that the bars are raised in favor of junior oarsmen, unless they have won a race. This affects boat club oarsmen, who are rated as juniors by the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen. Such men will be eligible to compete on a freshman crew.

The rules now read:

No man shall be eligible to compete in a freshman crew who, prior to entering his university, as a sculler or as a sweep oarsman or coxswain has won a junior or rowed in an intermediate or senior race under the rules of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen or of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen; or shall have represented any club or association other than that of a high school or preparatory school in a race equivalent to an intermediate or senior event under such classifications.

TENNIS SECESSION THREAT FROM WEST

Sway of East Must Be Broken, Say Revolters, or U. S. N. L. T. A. Will Face Rival Body.

LETTER WRITTEN TO ADEE

Prominent Figure in Game Voices Demand—Amateur Question May Be Relegated to the Rear.

Tennis men of the West and Middle West have threatened to secede from the United States National Lawn Tennis Association unless they are allowed a greater voice in the proceedings of the association. Word of this was received in this city yesterday, and it appears that this controversy, which has just started, may overshadow the fight that will be made against the proposed amateur rule, barring men engaged in the sporting goods business from the amateur ranks, when the annual meeting of the tennis association is called together at the Waldorf-Astoria next week. The new attack from the West, it is said, does not hinge in the least on the amateur rule, but is the sudden flame of long smoldering dissatisfaction over what the West considers the centring of tennis power in the East.

One of the most prominent tennis men in the Middle West, a man of international reputation, is reported to have sent a letter to George T. Adee, President of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, which is in the nature of an ultimatum. Apparently all through the West there is a feeling that the East has made itself the ruling factor in tennis and now the demand is that the power be less centralized; that the Middle and Far West receive such representation as will readjust the balance among the different sectional divisions of the country.

It is said that the Western tennis men are not urging the change in any spirit of "bluff," but that they are determined to carry out their threat and withdraw from the national association in case their demands are turned down. In such an event, it has been suggested that they would undoubtedly establish another controlling body in tennis, which would rival the present national association. Every indication has been that the West was banding closely together for a fight, and if this issue is presented it will doubtless force the amateur question into a secondary place.

CLUB RAPS AMATEUR RULE.

N. Y. L. T. C. Votes Against Tennis Statute—Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the New York Lawn Tennis Club, held at Shanley's on West Forty-second Street last night, it was voted to instruct the club's delegate to the annual meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association to vote against the proposed amateur rule barring men engaged in the sporting goods business from the amateur ranks. This action was taken by almost a unanimous vote, only one member dissenting.

The election of officers showed all of the old officers re-elected, with a single exception. The officers are: President—Christopher B. Winne; Vice President—Dr. Wallace Krugler; Secretary—L. E. Fisson; Treasurer—Theodore C. Young; Captain—W. Halsey Wood; First Lieutenant—Frank Oliver; Second Lieutenant—S. L. Martin. These men, with the addition of M. E. Fox, Jr., and Robert S. Conklin, form the Board of Governors.

RAY TO TRY FOR RECORD.

Special Two-Mile Handicap Added to N. Y. A. C. Games Program.

A special two-mile limited handicap has been added to the program for the New York A. C. games on Feb. 10 to give Joie Ray, the Illinois A. C. runner, an opportunity to break George Bonhag's record for the distance of [illegible] 1-5. This has withstood the attacks of the best distance runners since 1910. The wonderful form shown by Ray in the mile and a half race at the Millrose games leads his followers to believe that he will break the indoor record and also eclipse the 9:9 3-5 made by Alfred Shrubb on an outdoor track. The athletes who have been invited to compete with the Chicagoan are: E. Shields, U. of P.; Charlie Pores, Millrose A. A.; H. H. Holden, New York A. C.; Harry McGinn, Paulist A. C.; C. Scheller and William Plant, Long Island A. C.

MISS HOLT TELLS OF WORK.

Lectures on Lighthouse for Blinded French Soldiers.

Miss Winifred Holt lectured yesterday afternoon on the work done at the Lighthouse established at Bordeaux, France, at the home of Miss Elizabeth Billings, 297 Madison Avenue. She told intimate stories of the daily routine of the home of the blinded soldiers, with stereopticon views of the soldiers themselves.

"I will tell you a little story about this man," she said, as one soldier's picture was flashed on the screen. "He is very young. As you see, he has lost both arms as well as his sight. A shell fell into the trench one afternoon, but did not explode. This hero picked it up to throw it out, and it had hardly left his hands when it burst, wounding him even more horribly than is shown here. For his service he received the Legion of Honor Cross and the others which you see pinned to his breast."

Miss Holt told of the work the Lighthouse was doing and appealed for funds to carry it on.

The sale of manuscripts and drawings of the late Benson J. Lossing and some rare books and autographs from other sources was concluded at the Anderson Galleries yesterday. The grand total was $6,911.45.

R. H. Dodd paid the highest price of the session, $495, for catalogue No. 467, Adrian Van der Donck's "Virtoogh van Niew-Neder-Land," Small & Co., Graven-Hage, 1650, in binding by Bradstreet. Damrosch Greeted on 55th Birthday

Walter Damrosch had a birthday greeting from the Symphony Society at rehearsal yesterday in Aeolian Hall. He arrived to find a dark house, and was suddenly surprised with a blowing of trumpets and beating of drums as the lights were turned on. The orchestra gave the "dean of American conductors" a bunch of his favorite roses, this year numbering fifty-five.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The new bill announced by the Washington Square Players for next Monday night has been postponed until the following Monday. Instead of the playlet, "Impudence," "A Private Accounting," from the French of Georges Courteline will be included on the bill.

Gertrude Kingston's first performance of Shaw's "Overruled" has been postponed to Friday night of this week.

A spectacle called "The Submarine" will be a new feature of the revised Winter Garden revue. It was devised by Henri de Vries, the Dutch protean artist.

Granville Barker will make his first public appearance in New York this season next Monday afternoon at the Comedy, when he will lecture on "Art and Democracy." This will be the second in the series of six lectures by modern authors arranged for that playhouse.

"The Kite" is the title chosen by Meade Minnigerode for the play Charles Hopkins has accepted for production at the Punch and Judy Theatre.

The engagement of Alla Nazimova at the Princess has been extended through next week. When "Oh Boy" is put on, "Ception Shoals" will be transferred to another stage if one can be found.

Frank Keenan has engaged Lowell Sherman for one of the leading roles in his production of "The Pawn."

Veronica, Hawaiian dancer, has been added to the company that gives the midnight revue atop the Century. Down at the other roof, the New Amsterdam, Claudius and Scarlet have been reengaged.

Lionel Atwill, an English actor appearing in "The Lodger," Butler Davenport, Howard Kyle, and Castellanos Vavillat will be the speakers at the luncheon of the Athene at the Waldorf-Astoria tomorrow.

SEE HELP FOR ALL IN SAVING DAYLIGHT

Convention United on the Principle, but Divided on Its Application.

SOME FOR IT ALL THE TIME

But Northern Delegates Say That Would Mix Their Home Cities All Up.

The National Daylight Saving Convention opened a two-day session yesterday at the Hotel Astor, and speakers from various parts of the country, wearing lapel buttons bearing a picture of Uncle Sam turning the clock forward an hour, set forth the manifold advantages of following Poor Richard's advice about "early to bed and early to rise."

Mayor Mitchel, Borough President Marcus M. Marks, Congressman William F. Borland of Missouri, and representatives of Chambers of Commerce throughout the country spoke in favor of the proposition. J. H. Whitehouse, a member of the British House of Commons, who has been in this country for some months to study the American school system, spoke on the effect of the plan in England, where it was adopted after the beginning of the war.

Some of the advantages which, the speakers said, the plan would result in were better health of workers generally, in that they would have more time for daylight recreation after working hours; great economy in lighting bills, and diminished straining of the eyes of workers during the last hour before going home.

The only division of opinion among the delegates appears to be as to just when to set clocks forward, and for how long. One faction would make the country rise early throughout the year. There is much opposition to this plan, particularly from the Northern States, and most of the delegates to the convention seemed to favor the forward movement for only five or five and a half months per year. One delegate from Minneapolis said an effort to make the movement a twelve-month affair would lose all of its backers there, because the sun is so tardy in Winter that the natives rise in darkness and daylight only arrives after they get to their offices. He said he was afraid that setting the clock further forward would delay sunrise in Winter until near lunchtime. He favored a four-month plan.

A delegate from Detroit objected that in the case of his city, which recently moved over from the eastern limit of the central time zone to the western limit of the eastern zone, thereby advancing its clocks an hour, a further moving forward of the clock would meet with opposition on the part of mothers who were still having difficulty in getting their children to bed earlier following the last change in time.

Mr. Whitehouse said the plan had won universal approval in England. Among the early objections was one offered by a Peer in the House of Lords, who argued that because in England property and title frequently descend to the eldest son of the family the daylight saving plan might make the younger son the heir.

"The House of Lords laughed," Mr. Whitehouse said, "but the peer retorted: 'Take the case of twins. The clock is to be put back by one hour, say, Oct. 1 at 2 A. M. At 1:55 A. M. the elder twin is born and the second twin ten minutes later. But between the two births you have put the clock back by one hour with the legal result that the elder son is born at 1:55 and the younger nearly an hour earlier.'"

Mr. Whitehouse said that the House of Lords passed the bill, however, although they would have to pass a special act of Parliament if such a case arose. Even the peer who presented the objection proved willing "to run the risk" and voted for the bill.

Dr. Harold Jacoby, Professor of Astronomy at Columbia; Robert Garland, President of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce; Miss Helen Varick Boswell, Chancellor John Wesley Hill of Lincoln Memorial University, and other speakers presented papers setting forth the advantages of the plan from various viewpoints. Ex-Governor John K. Tener of Pennsylvania, President of the National League of Baseball Clubs, will talk on "Why Fans Favor the Movement" at today's session. Baron G. A. Welsen of Sweden will discuss the workings out of the plan as adopted in his country, and George T. Adee, President of the National Lawn Tennis Association, will speak on "Daylight Saving and Recreation."

The delegates had a luncheon at the Astor which was attended by nearly 1,000 persons. Addresses favoring the plan were made and John Mitchell read a letter from Samuel Gompers and the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor declaring in favor of the plan, provided it was adopted generally throughout the country. Similar labor organizations, Boards of Trade, and Chambers of Commerce in practically every city of the country and many organizations of men and women interested in sports have expressed themselves in favor of the plan.

BONNET'S ORGAN RECITAL.

The French Master Plays in the Hall of the City College.

The French-American Association for Musical Art, under whose auspices the Society of Ancient Instruments came from Paris the other day, introduced to New York last evening Joseph Bonnet, a French organist of distinction. His errand here is like that of his colleagues of the stringed instruments, one on behalf of French music and French musicianship. He gave an organ recital in the hall of the College of the City of New York, his first recital in this country. He is a pupil of the great French organist, Alexandre Guilmant, who made more than one professional visit to this country, and though he is a young man, he is said to have a substantial reputation in his own country. He showed himself last evening a worthy representative of the modern school of French organ playing, which is foremost today in achievement and authority.

He made a deep impression by his performance on the City College organ, in which he disclosed high technical powers through a dignified and artistic treatment of an instrument that is too often misused. His playing was marked by much freedom, clearness, and perfection of articulation both on manuals and pedals, a true sense of rhythm, and a fine taste in registration that sought appropriate timbres and avoided the bizarre. The most important numbers of his program were not unfamiliar to lovers of organ music: Guilmant's sonata in D minor, a fugue by Buxtehude in C, and Bach's toccata and fugue in D minor. There were smaller pieces, one by François Couperin, "Soeur Monique," presumably intended for the harpsichord originally; a gavotte from one of Padre Martini's organ sonatas, well known in transcriptions for pianoforte and for violin, and several pleasing, though by no means important, pieces of his own, including an improvisation.

Mr. Bonnet was heard by a large audience and liberally applauded. There were doubtless some among it who would like to hear him in a program giving a greater representation to the significant works of the modern French school of organ composers, whereby the object of his American visit would be greatly promoted; as well as of the works of Bach.

CLARA AND DAVID MANNES.

Pioneers in Classic 'Sonata Recitals' Are Heard Again.

Clara and David Mannes, for ten years the pioneers of classic "sonata recitals," gave their second concert of the season in Aeolian Hall last evening before an audience that filled most of the 1,300 seats in the hall. They played sonatas in F major, Op. 24, of Beethoven, and in E major, by Bach, ending with Engelbert Roentgen, 'cellist of the Symphony Society, in Brahms's trio in B major, Op. 8.

Each number had its characteristic high point, that of Beethoven in a scherzo brief and jocular, Bach's in an adagio of tender melody, and Brahms's again in the scherzo, given last year at the Granados benefit, and approaching in volume and clear ensemble the sort of work oftener heard from the Flonzaleys and Kneisels.

Next Week's Metropolitan Operas.

Maria Barrientos will make her reappearance at the Metropolitan on Wednesday next with Caruso and De Luca in "Rigoletto," the thirtieth opera produced by Mr. Gatti-Casazza this season. The thirteenth week opens with "La Boheme" on Monday, followed by "Die Walkure" on Thursday afternoon, when Schumann-Heink returns in the "Ring" cycle; "Madama Butterfly" Thursday evening, with Farrar; "Die Meistersinger" Friday evening, "Samson et Dalila" at the Saturday matinée, with Caruso, and "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci" Saturday evening, Feb. 10, at popular prices. There is announced also a special Lincoln's Birthday matinée of "Aida" on Monday, Feb. 12, with Caruso. Next Sunday's concert star is Josef Hofmann.

Reinald Werrenrath's Recital.

Reinald Werrenrath, who has sung several times this season in New York, gave another recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall, but he appeared, as was announced from the platform before he began, against the orders of his physician, having been suffering from an attack of bronchitis. The results of bronchitis were not much noticeable in his singing, except in the beginning. His fine skill as a vocalist no doubt stood him in good stead. He sang German songs, a group of folksongs, a cycle written for him by Deems Taylor, and a group of other American songs with excellent taste and a clearness of diction that made a "book of the words" superfluous.

Philharmonic Re-elects Stransky.

The Board of Directors of the Philharmonic Society yesterday re-elected Josef Stransky to serve as conductor for three years after his present term expires in 1918, at the close of one more season. The new contract extends that period until April, 1921, making a total of ten years here. His original engagement, following the death of Gustav Mahler, was announced in a cable dispatch to THE TIMES on May 7, 1911, from Berlin.

THE REPUBLICAN ALTERNATIVE.

The excess profits tax will be passed forthwith. It is the best to be hoped from the Democrats. If the Republicans were in power they would revise the tariff upward in their habitual manner. It would not be believed that they were capable of ignoring their two rebukes from the country but for the fact that the announcement is official. The Democrats at least tried something new, something of which it could not be said that the people had been consulted and had rejected it. The Republicans are so bankrupt of policies that they are capable of deducing something regarding the tariff from conditions which ought to operate as a moratorium upon all tariff arguments, by either Democrats or Republicans. The war so dominates all economic factors that only politicians are capable of fighting domestic battles over that indefensible and abandoned trench.

The Democrats produce a tax which will be as unpopular as the income tax, but which at least is not part of the economic fabric, like the tariff. The Republicans condemn that, of course, and base their alternative proposal upon the resolution that "the "Underwood tariff law, lowering du-"ties and increasing imports, has "brought about the present con-"dition of the Treasury * * * be-"sides turning over to foreign com-"petitors our home markets." The Underwood tariff is a small factor in the Treasury's condition. It is, next to the war, the chief factor in the country's present prosperity, which is more important than the Treasury deficit. The loss from customs is nothing in comparison with the stimulation of trade. It is true that the imports are larger for eleven months of 1916 by a third than in the year before the war, and are 31 per cent. larger than the previous maximum. Is the country's condition distressed on that account? On the contrary, the imports are for the most part of a nature without which the exports could not have been maintained. Imports of manufacturers' materials are larger by 70 per cent. Manufactures for use were smaller by 15 per cent. That is, the imports were largely of the sort necessary to enable us to produce for domestic use, as well as for export. It was the import of food for the factory that provided the means of employment and payment of our workmen. Without chemicals, hides, rubber, sugar, wool, and such items, we could neither have supplied our own needs nor exported the goods which have submerged us in a flood of gold.

The loss of revenue from them was a blessing in its results, whatever the effect upon the Treasury. The largest increase of luxuries was in the form of precious stones, which doubled, and art works, which increased by half. They are a better tax resource than the incomparably larger increase of materials for the factories. They are not competitive with domestic manufactures of necessities and of exportable goods, and the proceeds of customs from them shrink when the rates are made excessive. The Republicans could not put the tariff on another basis now without disturbing the present superlative conditions, and without providing the basis for another disturbance of the price fabric when conditions are normal. The country has learned from the regulation of railway rates that stability is second in importance only to correctness of rate fixing, and that abnormal conditions should not be met by disturbance of the basis of industry. Temporary conditions like the present are best met by some sort of financial disposition suitable for quick repeal without disturbance of the factors of production and distribution.

The Republican proposal might be termed an act to guarantee the continuance of the high cost of living for both factories and workers. The result would be neither economic prosperity nor satisfaction among workers. The increase in the customs for the sake of the manufacturers would not necessarily be passed along to the wage-earners. There has been proof enough of that in the past. There has been superfluity of proof that goods made costly by law enter into world trade under disadvantage. By checking imports we should check exports and enable our competitors to repossess themselves of trade now derelict. Tariff changes may be necessary to meet changed conditions, but they are not of the sort proposed by the Republicans as an alternative to the excess profits tax. Sometimes when the country has been confronted with the choice of alternative disagreeables it has chosen both. On this occasion only one is taken, and that the smaller. The worst that this Congress intends is not so bad as the Republicans propose.

WHY MR. HOOVER WAS ASHAMED.

> The Belgians have come to look upon the Americans as their sole saviors; to look upon the American flag as the flag which is fighting to protect them. Within six weeks I have visited a station in the slums of Brussels where 1,500 children are fed daily. The children were sitting down to their meal, and when they saw me they rose and feebly sang the first stanza of "The Star-Spangled Banner." Now, knowing that the food supply was not American, I could feel nothing but shame.

If Mr. HERBERT CLARK HOOVER, whose administration of the Commission for the Relief of Belgium has been, perhaps, the most splendid American achievement of the last two years, "could feel nothing but shame" when that American song was sung by Belgian children whom the commission has fed, what should the rest of us feel? The machinery, the orderly plan, the large, wise humanity of the distribution of relief among the ruined populations of Northern France and Belgium are American. They have reflected honor upon the American name. The hand that allots is American, not the hand that gives. Of $250,000,000 spent, the United States, so innocently proud of its Belgian largesse, has given $9,000,000. The people of Belgium and Northern France are kept alive by the Allied Governments. These, with a thousand burdens, give them $14,000,000 a month. The lavish United States, heaping fat profits from the sale of supplies for Belgium and Northern France, has poured out in two years $9,000,000!

"This relief," as Mr. HOOVER says, "has come to be America's greatest "exhibit in Europe. We want to give "a demonstration of that great hu-"manity which we know runs through "our people."

Do we want to? Are we ashamed of winning laurels for the generosity of others? Are we willing to give, instead of protruding our chests with self-satisfaction over an imputed and imaginary generosity?

Then we shall give, give, give to Belgium and Northern France, shut up the boast and open the check book! Nine millions from the United States!

THE IMMIGRATION BILL VETO.

President WILSON has vetoed for the second time an Immigration bill which, by the unsound and untenable literacy test, seeks to exclude foreign labor at the demand of organized labor. Mr. CLEVELAND and Mr. TAFT vetoed similar measures setting up a similar test. The present bill includes many desirable restrictions and provisions. Its framers have sought ingeniously but in vain to atone by these for its essential and fatal theory and principle. The unconquerable objections to a literacy test have been stated again and again in the last generation. Mr. WILSON summarizes them luminously and convincingly:

> It is not a test of character, of quality, or of personal fitness, but would operate in most cases merely as a penalty for lack of opportunity in the country from which the alien seeking admission came.
> The opportunity to gain an education is in many cases one of the chief opportunities sought by the immigrant in coming to the United States, and our experience in the past has not been that the illiterate immigrant is, as such, an undesirable immigrant. Tests of quality and of purpose cannot be objected to on principle, but tests of opportunity surely may be.

There is nothing to be added to that. The proposers of the test are aware of its weakness. It was the avowed means of the unavowed purpose of keeping out foreign labor and keeping up the price of the domestic supply so curtailed.

Furthermore, Mr. WILSON turns against the makers of the bill a provision adroitly inserted to dull the edge of the literacy test and to appeal to the generous sympathies of himself and all Americans with the victims of religious persecution. That provision exempts from the literacy test aliens "who shall prove to the "satisfaction of the proper immigra-"tion officer or the Secretary of "Labor" that they have come to the United States > to avoid religious persecution in the country of their last permanent residence, whether such persecution be evidenced by overt acts or by laws and governmental regulations that discriminate against the alien or the race to which he belongs because of his religious faith.

Mr. WILSON points out that the application of this exemption would require the immigration officers "to "pass judgment upon the laws and "practices of a foreign Government," and would probably raise "very se-"rious questions of international "justice and comity between this "Government and the Government "or Governments thus officially con-"demned." The immigration officials cause personal irritation enough now. Made impromptu judges and interpreters of foreign laws, history, fact, heated and heating religious and ethnic questions, what international disputes, what straining of international relations, what exacerbation of foreign nerves might their zealous, floundering execution of their duties under this exemption cause?

The bill comes up in the House tomorrow. The attempt to pass it over the veto should fail as it failed in the case of the veto of its predecessor in 1915. The large majorities which passed the bill last year, 308 to 87 in the House, 64 to 7 in the Senate, are curious and artificial. They are a sign, rather, of the effective discipline exercised by the American Federation of Labor and of the readiness of Congress to yield to the propaganda and demands of a minority of public opinion with an overestimated batch of votes behind it. It is true that there is a strong and general wish, grown greatly in the last few years, for an honest regulation of immigration, for restriction of immigration.

The old, easy faith in never barring the door has gone. A belated wisdom, a soberer view, has taken the place of the sentimental optimism that ruled so long. The literacy test is dishonest and unintelligent. History and daily life and everybody's experience tell him that. He knows that literacy is no guarantee of good morals, no certificate of the strong hands, the willing hearts, the industry, energy, integrity which the country needs. Some time, perhaps, the United States will approach this question, so vital to its growth and welfare, as Canada approaches it, coldly, sensibly, with no political intention; will ask of an Immigration bill not "Are there votes in it?" but "Is it for the best interests of the "United States, will it give us work-"ers of the kind we need and keep "out the other kind?"

It is usually difficult, it ought to be difficult, to override the President's veto. Mr. WILSON's veto of the Immigration bill rests on irrefragable reasons. It is sustained, we believe, by the intelligence, the sense of fair play and justice, of the country. It should be sustained by Congress.

EXPORT COMBINATIONS.

Among the bills which have been the subject of the President's conferences with Senators and Representatives at the Capitol is the one permitting our exporting manufacturers to form co-operative associations or combinations, to be used exclusively in foreign trade. It was passed in the House several months ago by a vote of about 8 to 1, and is now held by a Senate committee. A few words added during the House debate should be removed, because they would make the statute ineffective and worthless. This was not realized or foreseen by those who caused them to be inserted. After rejecting them, the committee should report the bill, and it should be passed. Mr. WILSON, it is said, is confident that it will become a law before the session ends. But only a little time is left, and the amendments which ought to be made will cause delay.

In the preparation abroad for international trade after the war there is plenty of evidence that statutory authority to make and use combinations will be needed by our exporters. Neutral nations have such associations. Germany had them before the war and will have them again in the coming days of peace. It begins to be seen that then the Governments of nations now fighting, or groups of industries with Government support, will buy and import much of the raw material or partly manufactured products required for replacing the property destroyed. In the same way what is needed by the factories may be obtained. If competition among our selling exporters enables combined foreign buyers to get raw material at very low cost, goods made out of this material may be sold, at prices which we cannot meet, in neutral markets where we have gained trade which we desire to keep. This is one of the ways in which failure to use co-operative associations, because they are now forbidden by law, would work to our disadvantage. For many reasons the permission which enactment of this bill would give should be granted. And there should be no more delay. Much time must be consumed in making the combinations. Trade which could be gained or kept by them may be lost if the Webb bill goes over to the next Congress.

A BASELESS FABRIC.

Mr. GEORGE F. PARKER tells The Tribune what purports to be the real story of how Admiral DEWEY got his opportunity to fight the battle of Manila. It was told him on his return from a long absence in the Consular Service, only about two months after the battle, and the narrator was DANIEL S. LAMONT, formerly Secretary of War. Colonel LAMONT told Mr. PARKER that the Navy Department wanted to shelve DEWEY, and that "politi-"cians" and "ambitious rivals in the "department" combined to sidetrack him into the Asiatic Squadron, where it was thought he would have no opportunity for distinction, while the real opportunities would be in Cuban waters. "Fate," said Colonel LAMONT, "played tricks with a good many peo-"ple, but with none more than with "the politicians and the oversmart "schemers of the navy, who gave "GEORGE DEWEY the chance to become "a national hero in spite of himself "and his friends."

It is a good story, and will doubtless become a legend, but there is not a word of truth in it. The real story is told by DEWEY himself in his autobiography. He was anxious for the command of the Asiatic Squadron, but the men at the head of the Navy Department wanted to give the plum to Commodore JOHN A. HOWELL. DEWEY saw himself about to be passed over, and went to his friend THEODORE ROOSEVELT, then Assistant Secretary of the Navy, for advice. ROOSEVELT, foreseeing, as did DEWEY himself, the great possibilities of the Asiatic Squadron in case of war with Spain, was desirous to have DEWEY in command, but knew that his chief, Secretary LONG, would not honor his request. He asked DEWEY if he knew any politicians, and the Commodore replied that he knew REDFIELD PROCTOR, Senator from Vermont. ROOSEVELT advised him to have PROCTOR go to the White House at once and ask the appointment before the "navy crowd" could get their word in. That very night PROCTOR got the President's promise, and the next day Secretary LONG was disgusted to find that he had been overmatched. He sent for DEWEY and rebuked him for playing politics, but DEWEY retorted that he had not done so until he found that politics was being played in HOWELL's behalf and against him. This is the whole story, as given by DEWEY himself.

Why did Colonel LAMONT tell a story destitute of foundation? Doubtless he believed it himself; somebody had told him. Men are accustomed to believe an "inside" story told them by some public man, as Mr. PARKER believed LAMONT's, and to regard it as unimpeachable evidence. The fact is that public men are just as unreliable historians as private citizens; they are just as ready to believe any good story and to send any bit of rumor and gossip on its rounds as is the man in the street, and, except as concerns matters in which they are themselves involved, they are no more "on the inside" than is any one else. The incident is worth while if it inspires in even a few minds the advisability of caution in receiving the "inside" statements of even the most prominent men, if it inculcates even a little caution about receiving good stories as true because they emanate from some one with a handle to his name. The "leak" investigation has given impressive and revolting proof of the need for such caution. One cannot help wondering concerning the worth of history, when one remembers that until almost our own times it was made up of just such stories, with no such ways of applying the acid test as Admiral DEWEY's autobiography supplies for this particular one.

LINCOLN IN NEBRASKA.

We regret to learn from The Omaha World-Herald that The Lincoln Journal "is opposed to instituting the "study of ABRAHAM LINCOLN in the "schools of the State, fearing that if "our boys are compelled to study LIN-"COLN they won't like him." The World-Herald calls this "piffle." It holds that they are obliged to learn, and presumably to dislike, arithmetic and grammar, and who is LINCOLN that he should be exempted from the common fate? It also rebukes The Journal for the heresy that "the school program is pretty full now." This The World-Herald admits, but holds that the things now taught are "sawdust into which there has never been breathed the breath of life." The curriculum in Nebraska, we learn from The World-Herald, is destitute of "anything that will light a warm and glowing fire in the heart."

Therefore The World-Herald holds that it would be much better to drop the study of grammar, if necessary, in order to squeeze in the study of ABRAHAM LINCOLN, "his gentleness and "sympathy, his loving heart and for-"bearing nature." Nine out of ten parents in Nebraska, it says, would agree with it, and "it is they who pay the taxes to support the public schools." Therefore it trusts that the Legislature will pay heed to the wishes "of the plain people" in this matter, and we hope so, too. Down with grammar and up with studies that will light a warm and glowing fire in the heart. The idea somehow seems to complete Nebraska in the imagination; not that Nebraska was incomplete before, but anything that emphasizes her peculiar characteristics increases the obviousness of her perfection.

Of course the study of ABRAHAM LINCOLN might be taken up in an un-Nebraskan way. Instead of being taught sentimentally, he might be taught as he really was; instead of undiscriminating hero-worship and mush, the real lessons of his great career might be intelligently and analytically presented. But that would be "sawdust," and we are glad to see from the way The World-Herald presents the argument that there is no danger of that. Indeed, Nebraska could be trusted to do the thing in the right way—the way that will light a warm and glowing fire in the heart—even if The World-Herald had not spoken so feelingly; had not, to drop into the literary style of The World-Herald itself, swept the finger of Humanity with unerring touch across the pulsating keyboard of man's nature.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Unprepared for Precisely Those Perils. One of the mysteries familiar in every newspaper office is presented in a letter just received by THE TIMES. Its author, after declaring that he has read this paper for "more than fifteen years," writes with much heat that before it made remarks about the ease with which sixteen Germans controlled 400 prisoners on the Yarrowdale it should have commented in like strain on the frequency with which, in the United States, a lone highwayman has been allowed to rob anywhere from one to half a dozen stage coaches loaded with passengers, without encountering the slightest resistance from any of the passengers, and on the like docility often displayed when two or three bandits have worked their will on the occupants of long railway trains.

Now, as it happens, anybody who has read THE TIMES for "more than fifteen years" must have been a most careless reader of it or he would have known that again and again the facility—and safety—with which these crimes can be committed here have been the subject of discussion along exactly the same lines followed in the case of the Yarrowdale, and that therefore the scathing retort of this critic doesn't scathe even a little bit.

That, however, is a matter of small consequence. What is of importance, or at any rate of more importance, is that in deducing from what was said about the Yarrowdale prisoners an accusation, or even an intimation, that they were cowards our correspondent was quite wrong. The correct deduction, as regards them, and as regards the unresisting victims of train and stage robbers, is that they are different from what men used to be in the days when practically everybody above the grade of slave or serf was more or less expert in the handling of deadly weapons and faced them more or less readily when wielded by national or social enemies.

At present, civilians, everywhere out of the universal conscription countries, are so unwonted to the sort of fighting that kills or wounds, have with such a close approach to completeness turned over all tasks and duties of that sort to professionals—policemen or soldiers—that the impulse to resist an armed opponent has almost disappeared from among them. Which may or may not be a good thing.

What Was and Wasn't Demonstrated. Commissioner WOODS and the managers of the Life Extension Institute can fairly claim that their experiment in economic dieting has been a success and has had results that are or may be made to be of very appreciable value. They have demonstrated that for three weeks certainly, and for much longer periods probably, the food required for keeping in condition a man doing a good deal of work both muscular and mental need not cost, even in these trying times, more than twenty-five cents a day.

That knowledge appreciably lowers the level of poverty at which real hardship and immediate physical deterioration necessarily begin. Moreover, the large amount of publicity which has been given to the so-called test cannot have failed to spread widely much useful knowledge as to the part played by the intelligent selection and skillful cooking of food in making available its nutritive elements and in decreasing waste.

Of course the providers of these somewhat austere feasts do not believe, or expect anybody else to believe, that anything less than stern compulsion would make such meals entirely satisfactory, or put an end to desires for a table more generously and diversely spread. These are, in a way, emergency rations, and as such they serve an excellent purpose, but all except people lost in the delusions of vegetarianism are perfectly well aware that there would be no hope for a nation that was compelled to live for several generations so nearly meatless as these probationary policemen did for three weeks. As "diet," in the medical sense, and for this length of time, it was presumably of real benefit to them, as it would be for most of us, excessive meat eaters as most of us are.

Some misapprehension, however, seems to have been caused by the constant emphasizing of the twenty-five cents a day feature of the experiment. That is, indeed, the price paid for the food, but it would have taken considerably more than that sum to put the same food on the table in a family or public restaurant. Nothing, one should remember, was paid for rent, for the cooking or serving, for utensils, or for the work done by the experts who did the purchasing or the arranging of the daily bills of fare.

A Thoroughly Courteous Revolution. Little Costa Rica's latest revolution—so far, at least—has deserved sincere commendation. Of course, compared with an election as known in some other republics, this change of administration is open to a good deal of criticism. On the other hand, however, it stands comparison with other such changes in more than a few republics extremely well, and seems to have been in its way a real manifestation of the popular will as it existed in the capital city and its vicinity.

Nobody was killed or even sent to prison, and the only articulately discontented person in the country is apparently the gentleman who was and is not President of it. His grievance may or may not be well founded, but obviously it might be much worse, and, if he has exercised the foresight ordinarily shown by his class, his days should soon be cleared of past regrets and future fears.

Paris, just now, is not what it was, but Havana remains, and, though St. Thomas has changed hands, or is about to do so, the sun will continue to shine in the little square in Charlotte Amalie, and there, with the other exiled dignitaries, he can very comfortably plot return if he is not content to let well enough alone.

The full story of this revolution has not been told. Probably it never will be. But as a distant spectacle it was simply charming—as quiet and gentle as an expulsion from a good club, and no hint of a scandal unless the ex-President chooses to make one.

Breach of Promise Suits.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial commendation of the public service rendered at great personal cost by James W. Osborne will be indorsed by all your readers. The question arises, however, why such a sacrifice should be imposed on any individual by the retention in our system of jurisprudence of a cause of action inherited from the worst traditions of the old British common law, and in no way responsive to modern concepts or to modern requirements. Breach of promise of marriage as a cause of action is merely an open invitation to blackmailers and adventuresses. A marriage engagement entered into in good faith by two persons is simply a mutual understanding that they believe themselves to be truly mated and capable of entering into an ennobling lifelong relation which shall bring happiness to both and provide a true and harmonious home for the rearing of children under the best conditions. If either discovers that a mistake has been made, an immediate withdrawal is the only moral procedure, before the irrevocable step leading to disharmony and lifelong misery has been taken; and to penalize such action is the worst conceivable public policy. Has not our Legislature a single member with intelligence and nerve enough to introduce a repealing act? JAMES F. MORTON, Jr.

INTEREST IN CHARITY.

A Growing Response to the Christmas Appeal for Needy Cases.

New York, Jan. 25, 1917.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During each of the last five years THE NEW YORK TIMES has published at Christmas time, in its list of "The Hundred Neediest" families, statements of the needs of families under the care of the Charity Organization Society. Below is a table showing the financial returns in each year:

Year.	No. of "Cases."	Receipts.
1912	22	$974.12
1913	35	3,041.41
1915	27	9,734.70
1916	31	17,281.78

There has been a steady increase in the financial returns due, as I believe, to the deepening of interest of readers of THE TIMES in the work carried on by the societies to which their contributions are made.

Very wisely, I think, in this enterprise THE TIMES has carefully abstained from sensational statements of need. The societies have been allowed to prepare the statements concerning their families. Naturally they have done this in a way to reveal not only the needs that exist, but the plans—some of them for prolonged care—intended to relieve these needs. Reference has been made to the service as well as to the money required to solve the troubles of these families. This, it seems to me, has been a policy eminently wise and fully justified by the experience of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Sensational appeals lose their force unless made continually more sensational. Restrained statements of sound fact and sympathetic purpose, on the contrary, increase the interest of readers who desire to utilize their full opportunity for helpfulness, whether by the gift of money or by the gift of service.

THE TIMES should feel satisfied with the financial success of this enterprise. THE TIMES should feel proud that so large a degree of personal interest and understanding has accompanied the generous gifts of its readers.

Prohibition First.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent conversation with a typical West Virginia woman I was told that West Virginia is dry for the laboring class only. That the cellars of the gentry and political bosses are as overflowing with liquid solace as ever they were before prohibition was supposed to entirely close up their supply.

This antiquated chant that we hear from all of the "antis" about the prohibition States having refused to enfranchise their women is amusing. Of course a law that can be evaded and winked at will become effective first. What every one does know is that woman suffrage cannot be so lightly treated. It will be something creative and lasting. Hence, prohibition first, but equal suffrage last and forever!

The Riverside Drive Bill.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Friday last there appeared in THE TIMES an article on the New York Central west side improvement, and the Broadway Association was included therein among a number of other civic organizations which, it was stated, had planned to send representatives to Albany to attend the hearing on the Ottinger-Ellenbogen bill, which transfers the authority to negotiate a contract with the New York Central Railroad Company from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to the Public Service Commission.

I desire to contradict this statement, so far as the Broadway Association is concerned, because it has taken no action upon this question. E. W. ESTES,

For Latin-American News.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In all discussions of Pan Americanism one hears the statement that we in North America are grossly ignorant of our neighbors south of us and that newspapers do not seem to consider it worth while to print news from South America. As an example, there is in session now a Constitutional Convention in Mexico which may mark a new era in the condition of that country. Still, one scarcely finds even mention of it.

I would like to see a whole page of news devoted to the South American republics, telling us of the doings of their leading men, of their labor, civic, educational and religious organizations, of their contributions to science and industry. People want to know about the life of those republics and nobody tells them. L. A. PARKER.

Explaining the War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would you, who are so firmly convinced of the righteousness of the cause of the Allies, undertake to explain their conduct of the war? How do you account for the recent events in Greece? The difficulty of those who would prove to intelligent beings that the Central Allies are actuated by ethical considerations is not less, nor is it greater. On the basis of the "righteousness and morality" theory, regardless of the side you choose to defend, you find facts that defy explanation. All parties to this war are concerned only with their own interests. On this hypothesis all the events of this war are explicable. IRVING SCHWARTZ.

Russia's Response.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is gratifying to note that the Russian Government indorses our President's address to the Senate, particularly in regard to free access to the sea "by the neutralization of direct right of way." This may mean that Russia is willing to give up the idea of possessing Constantinople. Most of the obstacles in the way of immediate and permanent peace could be removed if the belligerent nations will practice what President Wilson preached in that inspiring speech to humanity. Counting the Cost.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why all this fuss about the new islands? Surely the most suitable name for them would be the Dollar Islands.

THE WOMEN OF THE WAR.

Afar amid war's darkness, they suffer and grow strong,
For courage is their garment, and hope their even-song;
They hide the pain of parting with
"till we meet again,"
Or greet with tender welcome their bruised and broken men.
They give their all ungrudging, nor think it much to give;
They see their lives in ruin, then face
the years, and live.

O heart of selfish sorrows and unavailing fears!
One day of their devotion were worth my idle years.
With uncomplaining patience their sacrifice is made—
So, tho' in lesser service, my debt of love were paid.
Take thou, beloved country, the little all
I give,
Who am not born to greatness, and yet would greatly live.

MOVE TO CONTROL HOUSE.

California Prohibitionist Calls a Conference of Independents.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The first step toward control of the next House of Representatives by a handful of independents was taken today when Representative Charles H. Randall of California, Prohibitionist, sent a letter to six members-elect of the Sixty-fifth Congress, asking that they meet in conference in this city on Feb. 6.

Mr. Randall's call for a conference of the independents went to Miss Jeannette Rankin of Montana, Representative W. P. Martin of Louisiana, Representative Meyer London of New York, Representative Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota, M. Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania, and Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts. Not all of these members-elect have indicated the course they will follow in the organization of the House, but Mr. Randall classifies them all as independent.

Concerted action by the independent group throughout the Sixty-fifth Congress is suggested by Mr. Randall, who says in his letter:

"This is entirely preliminary and is for discussion of the form and purposes of an independent conference which may act unitedly throughout the Sixty-fifth Congress. I do not in any way wish to suggest at this time what course such a conference should adopt. But inasmuch as the six or seven members who have been elected by an independent constituency are all progressive, it may not be amiss to indicate that we shall undoubtedly insist upon progressive control and progressive legislation in the next Congress.

"We may have the temerity to suggest some changes in the rules. Between thought and action there is an impassable barricade of parliamentary piffle. This is a canned Congress. It needs a can opener. I would rather control the Rules Committee than be President."

In making public his letter to the independent group, Representative Randall says his call "develops the interesting fact that every one of the independents is either progressive now or has been identified with the Bull Moose movement except Meyer London, the Socialist, who may be termed 'an advanced progressive.'"

The call for a conference of the independents furnished a surface indication of renewed activities involving the control of the next House. There was a renewal of the talk about "harmony" in Republican circles today, following the dinner given by Medill McCormick last night to which were invited Senators and Representatives of various shades of political opinion. The Republican leaders in the House are preparing to make overtures to all independents and "progressive Republicans" with a view to organizing the next House, which, the leaders say, now stands: Democrats, 215; Republicans, 215; independent, 5. Among the Republicans, however, are several men of a progressive type who will not stay within the party camp unless certain concessions are made.

PICK DENMAN AS CHAIRMAN.

Election Temporary Until the Fifth Member Is Chosen.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Federal Shipping Board, at its first meting today, unanimously agreed on William Denman of San Francisco as Chairman. It was decided, however, not to make the election permanent until a fifth member is named, to succeed Bernard N. Baker of Baltimore, who resigned last week.

Final choice was delayed, it was announced, at the suggestion of Mr. Denman himself, who felt that if another member were selected from the Pacific Coast it might not be desirable to have one of the two Chairman.

It is said that the resignation of Mr. Baker would have been followed by the resignation of other Commissioners if they had not yielded to the argument that their retirements would have interfered with the success of the board. The story was told today that John B. White of Kansas City came to Washington with the intention of tendering his resignation, but was persuaded to change his mind. He declined to discuss the report.

TEACHER WON WAR CROSS.

John B. Zacharie, Formerly of De Witt Clinton School, Back from War

Among the passengers arriving here on the Rochambeau yesterday was John B. Zacharie, formerly a teacher of languages in De Witt Clinton High School, who had served thirty months in the war and has the war cross with palms and two stars. He said that out of thirty-two members of the National League of French Teachers' Association, who went to France at the beginning of the war, more than two-thirds had been killed or wounded. The rest were interpreters who were too old for fighting purposes.

"I left Paris in a taxicab," he said, "to take part in the battle of the Marne, and have been in every important engagement since without suffering a scratch. The most exciting time was at Fort de Vaux on June 6, 1916, where I won my decoration and citation in division for volunteering to enter the fort and supply the besieged men with provisions. There were 250 of us held prisoners in the fort, and seventeen attempted to escape through a hole in the wall. The first seven, who climbed through, were shot in the head and killed. The remaining ten got away after crawling for eight hours under barbed wire entanglements, through shell holes, &c., to the French lines, which were only two miles away."

Mr. Zacharie, who is about 43 years old, will visit his wife and children, who live at 9 Mitchell Place, and leave again for the front in twenty-one days, when his leave expires.

SANTO DOMINGO REFORMS.

American Administration Will Study Needs of Diplomatic Service.

SANTO DOMINGO, Jan. 30.—A commission has been appointed by the American military Government to inquire into the diplomatic and consular representation of the Dominican Republic, with the idea of establishing a service to meet the real needs of the country and to be within its resources.

In explanation of the recent removal of Manuel Morillo, Dominican Chargé d'Affaires at Havana, it is said officially that the resolution which was adopted at the meeting in the Dominican Legation in Havana, accusing the American forces of occupation in the Dominican Republic of illegal acts, was false and inflammatory.

Archbishop Nouel has accepted the Presidency of a commission named by the American authorities to study the educational needs of the country.

RODIN AT 76 TAKES A BRIDE.

Sculptor Married on Day That He Was Reported Very Ill.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Auguste Rodin, the famous sculptor, instead of being seriously ill, as was stated in the Parisian papers yesterday, was married on that day to Mlle. Rose Beurre, according to Evénement.

The marriage took place at Meudon, and Etienne Clementel, Minister of Commerce, and M. Peytel, Director of the Algerian Credit Bank, were witnesses for the sculptor. Albert Dalimier, Under Secretary for Fine Arts, and a few intimate friends also were present.

M. Rodin is 76 years old. He was married for the first time when he was 23, and his first wife acted as his model in the early years of his struggle for recognition.

Argentine Foreign Minister Resigns.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 30.—The resignation of Carlos Becu from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs is announced. Señor Becu was appointed Minister of Foreign Affairs of Argentina on Oct. 12, 1916, when Dr. Hipolito Irigoyen assumed the Presidency.

SAVAGELY ASSAIL THE REVENUE BILL

Republicans Assert in Debate War Taxes and Bonds Are Due to Democratic Waste.

KITCHIN PRAISES MEASURE

And Says It Puts the Burden on Those Who Clamored Most Loudly for Preparedness.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Marked by a savage attack by the Republicans and a more or less perfunctory defense by the Democrats, the Administration's Revenue bill got under way in the House today. General debate will close tomorrow afternoon, and Majority Leader Kitchin, in charge of the measure, hopes to reach a vote late tomorrow or early Thursday.

Led by Representative Fordney of Michigan, Longworth of Ohio, and Sloan of Nebraska, Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee, the minority assailed the economic career of the Democratic Administration, charging extravagance, mismanagement, sectionalism, and systematic attacks upon American industry. Attendance on the Democratic side was slight, and there was no disposition to break up the Republican field day.

Mr. Kitchin opened the debate with a statement of the provisions and operation of the bill.

"You have been crying preparedness," he told the Republicans, "until the people think the Japs are coming over from the West and Germany and France and Russia are all coming from the East. The excess profits tax will, in large part, be paid by those who were loud clamorists for preparedness, who, in every shape, fashion and form, demanded of their representatives here these immensely increased appropriations for the army and navy.

"We present a bill," the majority leader went on, "which, from some quarters, will have more opposition, receive more protests and denunciation than any bill, perhaps, ever before presented to this Congress, and yet, in the opinion of the majority of the members of the Ways and Means Committee, this is the wisest and most equitable and least burdensome bill that has yet been presented."

Representative Fordney of Michigan, ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, declared that the application of Payne-Aldrich bill rates to the imports for the four years of Democratic administration would have furnished sufficient revenue to meet all Democratic expenditures, with the possible exception of the increased naval program. Referring to unnecessary expenditures, Mr. Fordney listed the Shipping Board, the armor plant, and the nitrate plant. The nitrate plant, he said, had been embarked upon "to make fertilizer for the Southern farmer and nothing else."

"Further," he continued, "here is $162,000,000 spent on the Mexican border to catch Villa. And did you catch him? No! I believe there are plenty of regular troops to patrol our border without sending our State militia down there and spending $162,000,000. But, with your slogan that you kept us out of war, with this $162,000,000 and the money raised by the Democratic Party, you elected a President."

"The boast of a cloakroom jester," said Representative Sloan of Nebraska, "that a Democratic Congress can issue more bonds in four years than a Republican Congress can pay in the next twenty-five years, looks like it might come true. Early in this Administration business men were told if they failed or their business course made any trouble they would be 'hung as high as Haman.' Now they are told that if they succeed they will be hamstrung by taxation," declared Mr. Sloan, discussing the excess profits tax. "I have heard of a man being between the devil and the deep sea. But that position was not a circumstance to the business man's position between Wilson and Kitchin."

"This new scheme is the latest and strongest link in the chain that the Democratic Party has been forging to shackle American business at home and abroad," said Representative Longworth of Ohio. "The tax they propose is a direct tax upon success, just plain, ordinary, modest success, the success that distinguishes efficiency from shiftlessness and thrift from wastefulness."

NEW POLISH PARTY FORMED.

Will Assist Germans on Basis of Quasi-National Rights.

BERLIN, Jan. 30, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The foundation of a new Polish party, "the Polish Party for National Work in the Prussian States," is announced by the Overseas News Agency today.

"The First President," says the announcement, "is Count Adam Zoltovski and the Second President the Cathedral canon, Dr. Hozakovski. Another member of the board is Dr. von Chrzanovski. The platform of the party announces co-operation with the German parties and authorities on the basis of quasi-national rights and the promotion of Catholic religious life."

The election for the Town Council of Lodz, Poland, says an Overseas News Agency announcement, resulted in the choice of twenty-four Jewish candidates, seven Germans, twelve Polish National Democrats, five Polish Central Democrats, two candidates of the United Industrials, and two candidates of the Polish Citizens' Party.

Of the electors, 83 per cent. appeared at the polls. In the neighboring towns of Tomashow, Pabianice, and Zgiers there were similar results.

HOARDING BRITISH GOLD.

London Paper Estimates That Nearly $100,000,000 Is Hidden.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—From data collected in different parts of the country The Evening Star estimates today that there is £20,000,000 in gold secreted in Great Britain.

When the war broke out, many individuals drew considerable sums in gold from the bank, and while much of this has been retrieved, says the newspaper, it is believed the amount mentioned in gold coin is still hoarded in stockings or other receptacles in homes, or buried in boxes or bags.

A considerable sum in gold, according to one authority, is to be found among Scottish crofters and Irish peasant farmers, who are far from banks and who since the war began have been making more money than ever before.

Since the campaign for the new war loan began a number of people have appeared at the banks with bags containing from £70 to £800 in gold coins. The number of sovereigns retained by the well-to-do since these coins virtually went out of circulation, it is declared, would also make a large total.

TURKEY CHANGES CALENDAR

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 30, (via London.)—A Constantinople dispatch to Reuter's says that the Turkish Parliament, on the recommendation of the Government, has formally adopted the Gregorian calendar.

The Mohammedan calendar, used up to the present in Turkey, was based on the changes of the moon and consisted of a year of twelve lunar months commencing in the Gregorian July.

Nominee for Trade Commission.

MISS VAN ZILE, BRIDE OF D. L. GREENLEAF

Writer's Daughter Is Married to Civil Engineer in Trinity Chapel.

FATHER GIVES BRIDE AWAY

A Unique Wedding Procession, and the Reception Held at the Cosmopolitan Club.

The wedding of Donald Leal Greenleaf, son of James Leal Greenleaf, and Miss Harriet Lee Van Zile, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Van Zile of 17 Livingston Place, was solemnized at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Trinity Chapel, West Twenty-fifth Street. The chapel altar was decorated with Easter lilies, and ropes of green outlined the chapel walls. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Sutton of Trinity Chapel, owing to the illness of the Rev. Dr. Vibbert, Vicar Emeritus, assisted by the Rev. Gerald A. Cunningham of Wappingers Falls, N. Y., a brother-in-law of the bride.

Miss Van Zile walked with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a short skirted frock of white satin, hanging in full straight folds in the front, the back draped in straight folds of tulle banded above the hem with orange blossoms. The long, narrow satin train fell from the shoulders and the low-cut corsage was of tulle with ruched tulle sleeves to the wrists. The tulle veil was held in a unique way to her head so that most of the coiffure was left uncovered, a band of orange buds banded the forehead and joined the narrow silver band that held the veil, and below this band the veil was shirred twice to fit the head. She carried an arm bouquet of white camelias, lilies of the valley, and ferns. She had no attendants, but her little nephew, Harold Cunningham, held her flowers.

The wedding procession was unusual. Two of the six ushers went up in twos through each side aisle and marched to the chancel, where they joined the remaining two, and all walked down the nave to meet the bride, and, turning, led the way to the altar. They were John Calvin Goddard, Benjamin B. Burton, Lindsay H. Welling, George Eustis Paine, John Sanford Peck of Kentucky, Seymour Allen, and Henry S. Hilyer. The wedding reception was held at the Cosmopolitan Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenleaf will live at Ashland, Ky. Mr. Greenleaf's father is noted as a landscape architect and was formerly a member of the Faculty of Columbia. The bridegroom was graduated from Williams College in 1912 and from the Columbia School of Mines in 1915 as a civil engineer. Mr. Van Zile is a well-known writer of both verse and prose, and Mrs. Van Zile was formerly Miss Mary Morgan Bulkeley of Hartford, Conn.

Miss Beatrice Kiesfeld of 172 West 141st Street, and Henry Kiesfeld, a stock broker, are to be married this evening at the Hotel Ansonia.

Their marriage will be the culmination of a romance which began when Mr. Kiesfeld, who came here from Brussels, found a name similar to his own in the telephone directory, and after an investigation discovered that Miss Kiesfeld's family was of the same branch as his own, although remotely distant in relationship.

Mr. Kiesfeld was a member of the Stock Brokers' Exchange of Brussels when the Germans occupied that city. His father, Jacques Kiesfeld, had been established in business in Brussels for fifty years. With business paralyzed, he came to this country, and entered the brokerage business.

The couple will spend their honeymoon in the South.

BACK ACTION GUN ON VIEW.

Piece That Shoots Both Ways Seen at Motor Boat Show.

Crowds continued to throng the motor boat show at Grand Central Palace yesterday, among the visitors being several reputed emissaries of the Russian Government. Representatives of several other Governments, including Brazil, Argentina, Norway, and Holland, were also on hand. It was reported that one of these countries was preparing to place a contract for ten 65-foot boats of the naval patrol type.

The more one goes about the show the more he is impressed with the novelties which here and there crop out. Not the least of these is the twelve-pound gun mounted on one of the military cruisers. This is one of the new type which literally shoots both ways and thus eliminates recoil. A dummy charge goes out of the breech end of the gun, and with this taking up of recoil the gun can be installed on even a small boat. It weighs less than 200 pounds, and is loaded from amidships, so to speak. It is said to be equivalent in effectiveness to a field gun which would weigh about a ton.

The gun in the exhibition is mounted on one of the Elco cruisers. Many weapons of this type, it is said, are being used abroad, some of them of lighter calibre being installed on aeroplanes. In view of the naval aspect of this year's show, guns are of almost as much importance as the boats themselves.

MRS. McCOY WEDS AGAIN.

Divorcee's Fourth Marriage Is to William F. Fotterall.

William F. Fotterall of Valley Forge, Penn., a son of the late Stephen B. Fotterall of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Julia McCoy were married yesterday at the New York home of the bride, 122 East Seventy-sixth Street. Neither had attendants, and the ceremony was performed by the pastor of the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church. Mrs. McCoy wore a gray traveling costume, and none except the immediate family were present. HIGH PRICES PAID FOR FURS.

Lot of 12,600 Lynx Skins Bring $60,000 at St. Louis Sale.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 30.—Interest was sustained during the second day of the international fur sale. The arrival of another delegation of dealers caused the liveliest kind of bidding. Selling continued until almost 10 o'clock tonight.

A selection of 12,600 choice lynx skins, the first offer of the day, brought more than $60,000, a price which the shippers declare was more than they expected. The dealers said that prices realized were about 30 per cent. higher than the best sold for last September.

Next came one of the surprises of the day. In a collection of some 55,000 ermine skins from Russia, Siberia, Alaska, and Northwestern Canada, the American ermine sold at top price, $2.01 a skin, taking precedence over the ermine of Russia and Siberia, whence the skins used for royal robes, coronation ceremonies, and the like solemn occasions have always been brought. When recess for luncheon was called, the ermines had sold for more than $40,000, making a total of more than $100,000 for the morning's sales.

The afternoon sale opened with 11,400 beaver skins, and there was brisk bidding with several complications. Some extra large and dark beavers sold at fancy prices, and the entire collection brought a total of $115,000, which the dealers here say is an advance of some 40 per cent. over last September's prices. The 51,000 mink skins brought a grand total of over $150,000, the choicest skins running around the $10 mark.

DRAWS ANTI-STRIKE BILL.

Meyer Favors State Regulation of Public Service Employment.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 30.—A bill providing for State regulation of employment with a public service corporation will be introduced tomorrow by Assemblyman Schuyler M. Meyer of New York. The measure, according to Mr. Meyer, was drafted under the supervision of the New York Chamber of Commerce and has been indorsed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the Merchants' Association.

The bill provides that public service corporations and their employes must enter into reciprocal contracts of employment for a period of one to three years after a short period of probation, and that the corporations must not dismiss employes nor employes withdraw from service except for causes explicitly stated in the bill.

Under its provisions a public service corporation may dismiss an employe for misconduct, defined in the bill as proper cause for discharge, for lack of employment due to slack business upon thirty days' notice, or in case of immediate discharge upon the payment of two weeks' salary, also for disability of the employe, with the proviso that when this is not due to negligence on his part he shall receive thirty days' wages on being dismissed. Discrimination because of membership in a labor organization is forbidden.

Employes may terminate their service for valid family reasons, personal necessity or disqualifying illness, certified by a Board of Award, or when no cause is given on thirty days' notice to the corporation and with its consent.

Violations of these rules by either party to a contract are made a misdemeanor by the bill.

Is Your Son Successful at School?
Failure in his studies will shake his confidence in himself and make him less fitted mentally and morally to enter the larger struggle. Let us teach him to CONCENTRATE, as we have many boys and girls who had been unsuccessful at "large class" schools. The Clark Method of constant individual encouragement and examination by teachers who KNOW their subjects and who teach almost wholly without text books, engenders quiet, concentrated effort on the part of the student. A long record of remarkable results has established the great value of Clark methods for either the "slow," normal or brilliant student. Glance over the following:

Openings of Fancy Worsteds.

Openings of fancy worsted goods for the men's wear trade will be made during this week. Prices will be high, it is understood, but not much higher than buyers have come to expect would be the case. The mill agents say that special effort has been made this season to produce lines that will be attractive to buyers, even though the state of the yarn market has made it necessary in many instances to curtail the number of styles. The reason given for a closer attention to design is that unless the styling is of a high order the clothiers may not use quite so large a quantity of the high-priced goods. In short, value has to show itself this season in order to get the demand.

Only Bag Frames for England Now.

Last year the leather bag manufacturers here had no difficulty in selling large quantities of their product to England and her colonies, especially Australia. An embargo has been instituted on leather goods into England, but this does not affect exports to Australia. The Commonwealth, however, has suddenly stopped buying such goods, and in this action is seen one result of the British movement to promote trading with the home country. At present the manufacturers here are shipping frames to England, where they are covered and finished into bags, presumably to take the place of the American goods that were formerly imported.

Plenty Leather for the Money.

Among the manufacturers of leather goods there is considerable questioning of why such exorbitant prices should be paid for their raw material. The demand may be large at the present time, but from all accounts there is plenty of leather to be had if buyers are willing to meet the prices asked. A manufacturer of leather goods speaking on the subject yesterday said there is no evidence of a scarcity, and that he can obtain all the leather he wants if he pays the sellers' price. He gave several cases where large amounts have been made during the year past in leather, and his instances included one where a dealer [illegible] had made a profit of $50,000, and another where [illegible] had been made. Prices, he said, advanced generally at about the same time.

See Better Silk Demand.

While the local silk jobbers that give most of their attention to the retail trade have as yet done no great amount of house business for Spring, an improvement has been noticed in the last few days and active trading is expected after the turn of the month. [illegible] and a big run on fancy tub silks is told of.

Gray Goods Demand Light.

There was no rush of buyers after gray goods in this market yesterday, though in certain quarters quite liberal trading in narrow printcloths, notably 27-inch 64-60s at six cents, for nearby delivery, was reported. [illegible] more or less nominal at these prices:

[illegible]

Jobbers' Dress Goods Sales Large.

Judging from the optimism prevailing among leading secondary distributors of dress goods, an excellent Spring business in these fabrics is being done. [illegible] velour sports coatings are also selling well.

Hard Coal Prices Hold Well.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that while the mild weather early this week was reflected in the local anthracite market by a falling off in the number of inquiries for speculative lots of the prepared sizes, the tonnage of this coal afloat or at the piers is so small that prices did not show any immediate signs of softening. [illegible] The situation in steam sizes is as critical as ever. The usual January slump in bituminous has carried values down a dollar or more in the last ten days.

Novelty Handbags the Rage.

As the Spring season advances it is becoming more and more evident that it is going to be one of the best that makers of women's novelty handbags have ever had. One of the most novel bags is called a "five-in-one." It is a three-frame triangular effect which supplies three separate bags, the fourth being formed by the pocket in the centre of the three and the fifth, the largest of all, by an opening on one side. It is made of black chiffon taffeta, and is prettily embroidered with baskets of steel beads filled with flowers worked in colored beads. It retails around $15. A somewhat similar effect, called a "four-in-one," is also a three-frame effect, but in this case there are one long and two short frames, arranged parallel. Here, also, the fourth bag is supplied by the resultant pocket. It is of silk moire, finished at the bottom with an elaborate hand-worked design in colored beads and tassel, and retails around $14. The handles of both bags are of the same material as the bodies.

BUSINESS NOTES.

S. Solomon, resident buyer, of 470 Fourth Avenue, has added the following accounts: The Majestic Cloak Company of Syracuse and L. W. Hirsch Company of Philadelphia.

The Roberts Sales Company, Inc., dry goods, of 10 and 12 Crosby Street, will move on Feb. 1 to 611 to 621 Broadway.

The twenty-third annual meeting of the Manufacturing Perfumers' Association of the United States will be held at the Hotel Biltmore on April 10, 11, and 12. The membership of the association includes the country's leading makers of perfumes and other toilet preparations.

William A. Pierce, United States Consul at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Canada, who was to arrive in this city yesterday to confer with business men regarding trade opportunities in his district, failed to put in an appearance. He is expected today at the local office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Room 409, Custom House, and will be glad to meet callers.

The Crowley-Milner Company of Detroit has bought out Goldberg Brothers of the same city and renamed the latter store the Emporium. Alfred Fantl, resident buyer, of 116 West Thirty-second Street, will buy for both stores.

There will be a meeting of hosiery and underwear buyers on Feb. 6, 7, and 8 at the Dry Goods Alliance, 404 Fourth Avenue.

MORE TIME TO GET LICENSES

Owners Can Run Commercial Vehicles on 1916 Tags Till Feb. 7.

Owners of commercial motor vehicles, taxicabs, and omnibuses in the New York City district will be permitted to operate their cars with last year's license plates until Feb. 7. This decision was reached last evening when Frank P. Redmond, chief of the New York city bureau of Secretary of State Hugo's office, asked Police Commissioner Woods for the slight extension of time. The extension applies throughout the so-called metropolitan zone.

With a line of waiting men and women representing a dozen nationalities and extending from Broadway, in Seventy-fourth Street, to Riverside Drive, all automobile registration records in the city were surpassed yesterday. Today will equal or surpass yesterday in receipts, for there are still many thousand owners and drivers who will get their licenses before Thursday morning. The office will open at 9 o'clock this morning.

"Hosettes" for the Women.

Something new in silk hosiery is now being offered to the trade by a local manufacturing concern in the shape of "hosettes," which are women's half-hose, 11½ inches long, with a roll top two inches wide. They are made in assorted striped fancies and plain colors with the Rembrandt rib, and from the way they are "catching on" it appears that they will be very popular with women of fashion for beach and sports wear during the coming season. The shades in which they can be had include black, white, Copenhagen and navy blues, bronze, red, and purple. They will retail at $1.50 to $2 a pair.

FEDERAL SUIT HITS SISAL COMBINATION

Government Charges Binder Twine Fibre Was Boosted by Illegal Means.

BURDEN ON FARMERS SEEN

Agent of Yucatan Enterprise Says High Cost of Living Is Really Responsible.

A suit under the Sherman anti-trust law was begun yesterday by United States Attorney Marshall on behalf of the Government, to destroy an alleged combine between the State of Yucatan, Mexico, and its representatives in this country, to raise the price of sisal, the fibre that is used in the manufacture of binder twine. The Government in its petition says:

"The increase in the cost of sisal is reflected in the cost of twine. Each cent a pound increase in the cost of sisal increases the cost of the annual supply of twine for the farmers by more than $2,000,000."

Because of the alleged conspiracy, the complaint added, the price of sisal, that for five years prior to 1915 was 5¼ cents a pound, had been increased to 7⅝ cents by May 22, 1916, and then in four increases it had reached the unprecedented price of 16½ cents by Jan. 25, 1917. The advance in 1916 had reached 14½ cents in face of the fact that the importation of sisal into this country up to June 30, 1916, had been greater than in any previous year.

This increase, according to the complaint, means that "the cost of binder twine necessary to harvest the average cereal crop of the United States will be increased by more than $25,000,000 over the cost in 1915." A plain intimation runs through the complaint that unless the alleged illegal combination is destroyed the backers will continue to have the power of controlling the supply of sisal and at their will could make it impossible to harvest the country's full crop of cereals whenever they pleased.

The defendants named in the suit are the Pan American Commission Corporation of 42 Broadway and New Orleans, Sol Wexler, and Lynn H. Dinkins, officers of the corporation, who are described as "Presidents of the two largest financial institutions of New Orleans"; the Commission Reguladora del Mercado de Henequen, an official body in Yucatan; Juan Martinez, Menalio Marin and Nicolas Ferraez.

Part of the complaint consists of what purports to be copies of agreements by the Government of Yucatan, under a decree of Congress proclaimed Jan. 9, 1912, authorizing the Governor to establish a commission to regulate the sisal market.

The Commission Reguladora was created under the decree some years later when another decree somewhat differently phrased from the first was proclaimed, but the object was the same. In the Autumn of 1915 negotiations were completed with Mr. Wexler and Mr. Dinkins, representatives in this city and New Orleans respectively of the Pan American Corporation, for a continuous credit here of $10,000,000 for the purpose, the complaint says, of firmly establishing the combination in restraint of trade between this country and Mexico.

The credit established was to be used, said the complaint, for purchasing the entire output of sisal, bringing it into this country and withholding it from the market until it was possible to sell it at the increased prices. It is alleged that all of the details of the conspiracy were elaborately worked out and operated to the injury of the people of the United States.

Menalio Marin, agent in this country and Canada of the Commission Reguladora, and one of the defendants in the suit, said last night that the word "monopoly" had been carelessly bandied about by persons seeking to create a false atmosphere for their own benefit. He said that the State of Yucatan had been the first to put into effect a co-operative method for distributing its chief agricultural product, sisal.

"This method," he said, "is now being strongly advocated throughout the United States in relation to most of its products with which the people are concerned. A very vital factor affecting the present price of sisal and other fibres the world over is the high cost of living. Because wages have increased ocean transportation charges are considerably higher, and in other ways there have been additions to the cost of production. Yucatan can be no exception from this world calamity."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Steel Earnings Exceed Expectations—New Haven's Position—British Notes Allotted.

Today's market will disclose definitely whether the course of prices as a whole, and more particularly of United States Steel during the last couple of days, has been influenced to any substantial extent by the revised and less favorable estimates of United States Steel quarterly earnings which gained currency on Monday and were still being accepted up to the close of the market yesterday. The earnings reported after 3 o'clock instead of bearing out recent estimates exceeded them by $10,000,000 or more, fulfilling the most optimistic forecast which had been made during the time when the Street was viewing the outlook cheerfully instead of pessimistically.

The dividend declaration, including a 1¾ per cent. extra payment, did not exceed recent expectations, which had placed the amount of the extra dividend at from 1 to 2 per cent. But the earnings are as substantial a fact in the company's position as its dividends, and they were extraordinarily good. There are four full years in the history of the Steel Corporation in which it earned less than it did in the last three months of 1916. Many other similar comparisons could be made were it necessary to do so to emphasize the extraordinary proportions which maximum output combined with maximum prices have yielded to the United States Steel Corporation. Its case is conspicuous, but is not without parallel on a smaller scale in many other corporations.

It is easy, of course, to say, and easy also to acquiesce in the saying, that earnings such as these are too good to last. That, however, is hardly a serious indictment against them, for they have already lasted longer than many thought possible, and each report has established a new peak. Demand still exists for the maximum output of the country's steel mills, as of many other mills, and prices are still high. It seems reasonable to expect that approximately like conditions will last for some time to come, but in any event they have lasted long enough already to add greatly to the stability of industrial undertakings which are wise enough to use their profits for the strengthening of the foundations upon which they rest.

The Street finds it easy to believe bad things of the railroads, and particularly of a railroad like the New Haven, which has fallen so far from the high estate it once held. The Street sold that stock freely yesterday on widely disseminated suggestions that the company could not muster the task imposed upon it by the necessity of paying this Spring for its maturing obligations. That suggestion, however, was met by authoritative statements that assurances have already been given the Directors that arrangements will be made to carry the maturing notes over for another year.

It was not possible from the announcement made yesterday to determine by how much the applications for the $250,000,000 British note issue exceeded that amount, but the main fact, namely, that the issue was oversubscribed, was made plain enough. It seems there was a single subscription for $50,000,000, which suggests that some of the concerns receiving huge orders from the Allies have subscribed liberally to this note issue. That is less satisfactory from the market point of view than would be the distribution of a similar amount among a large number of investors, but from another point of view a subscription of this size emphasizes the existence of great industrial surpluses to which earnings comparable to those reported by the United States Steel Corporation yesterday have added very large sums during the last twelvemonth.

LONDON MARKET IS DULL.

Diamond Shares and the War Loan Issues Are Steady.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The stock market passed another dull session today. The prospective resumption of cash payments by Brazil helped Brazilian issues, which were about the only firm features. Diamond shares and the war loan ruled steady, but consols weakened on small offerings, and Russian mines reacted under profit taking. In the American section a few markings were recorded in Canadian Pacific and the low-priced railroads.

Money and discount rates were quietly firm.

Trading Active on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Trading was active on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 62 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 81½ centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 70 centimes.

Seattle Bank Is Closed.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 30.—The Northern Bank & Trust Company did not open for business today and a notice posted on the door said the institution was in the hands of the State Bank Examiner. TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Steel Earnings Estimates.

The conservative estimates put on the Steel Corporation's earnings looked very inadequate yesterday when the actual figures were announced. Reports of late of serious car shortage had persuaded many followers of the steel stocks that the conditions of January were merely the conditions of December, only more aggravated by bad weather. Hence it was assumed that the December income would show a sharp decline from November and possibly from October. In the many "pools" formed in commission houses before the statement appeared, it would be safe to say that not more than one bettor out of eight wagered that the $100,000,000 total would be reached. For this reason, among others, the huge aggregate for the quarter and the remarkable total for the year were gratifying to the Street.

French Drafts Due Tomorrow.

The first installment of $5,000,000 on the first $15,000,000 French acceptance credit arranged by William P. Bonbright & Co., Inc., becomes due tomorrow and will be paid. In all, three such credits of $15,000,000 each have been arranged, each running for a period of eighteen months.

New Bethlehem on 'Change.

The new Bethlehem Steel (Class B) shares were transferred from the Curb yesterday to the Stock Exchange, covering a range extending from 120¼ to 127½, and closing at the higher figure. At this price the quotation was ¾ of a point under the preceding session's last figure on the Curb, and 4½ points under the last quotation on Saturday of last week. Dealings were on a "when issued" basis, as the new stock will not officially exist until the stockholders act on Feb. 14. In some quarters of the Street the opinion is being expressed that the Class B stock will reflect conditions in the steel trade more completely, perhaps, than any other common stock of a steel company. The sole call it has upon investment and speculative sentiment is supplied by its dividends and the earnings from which dividends may be drawn. The voting power lies with the old common and preferred. Holders of the new shares will not be partners in the Bethlehem Corporation along with Mr. Schwab and his associates in the full sense of the word, as they will have no voice in the management. Some students of speculative movements are planning to watch Bethlehem Class B closely as the steel trade passes through its varying phases in the next few years.

Cost of the Bonus.

Like the Atchison and Southern Pacific, the Union Pacific's net earnings made a poor showing in December because the year-end bonus was charged into operating expenses for that month. The Union Pacific had gross earnings of $9,973,000, an increase of $1,088,000, but its net earnings of $3,049,000 showed a decrease of $424,000 from the corresponding month of the previous year. Operating expenses were increased $1,681,000, due to the charging in of the entire amount of extra compensation allowed to employes. But for this fact the net would have shown a satisfactory gain.

German Bank Stocks Higher.

The third number of the commercial bulletin issued by the German Embassy cites figures showing the advance in the price of German bank stocks since the outbreak of the war. Thus the shares of the Disconto Gesellschaft, which sold at 175 per cent. in July, 1914, were quoted at 182 per cent. in December, 1916. In this period the stock of the Deutsche Bank advanced from 223 to 244, and the stock of the Dresdner Bank rose from 141 to 151. The bulletin gives the stock quotations of a number of industrial concerns. It states that the stock of the Hamburg-American Line declined from 112 in July, 1914, to 108 in December, 1916, while the stock of the North German Lloyd advanced from 98 to 99.

Prussia's Debt Lower.

The German Embassy's publication directs attention to the fact that Prussia's national debt has been reduced by about $16,000,000 during the last year. It now stands at $2,565,000,000 compared with $2,580,000,000 in 1915. Of course, Prussia is only a State, and is not financing the war for the German Empire.

Changing the Fiscal Year.

The New York Central and the Pennsylvania used to be the only two big roads using the calendar year as the fiscal year. Nearly every other company closed its books on June 30. Now the Interstate Commerce Commission has ordered the carriers to file annual reports for the 12 months ending with December, instead of for the year ending June 30 as heretofore. For this reason the Union Pacific announced yesterday that it had decided to make its fiscal year coincide with the calendar period. For the year ended Dec. 31 the company earned $114,412,000 gross, an increase of $22,460,000, and $45,056,000 net, an increase of $11,896,000.

A Call for Economy.

The much advertised million-dollar-a-day loss by the railroads, which L. D. Brandeis originally called attention to as one reason against an increase in freight rates, has probably been reduced very materially by the strenuous efforts which the carriers have made in recent years to avoid waste. At first, only the poorer roads called on employes to think twice before sending a letter, to drop paper clips into a box to be used again, and to save old envelopes for memoranda. Now the biggest companies are not too proud to save pennies. President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania has asked all officers and employes to use the strictest economy in buying and using material. The notice he signs says:

"I desire to call attention to the exceptionally high prices of all classes of materials and supplies. This increase in cost in many cases exceeding 100 per cent., and in some cases 200 per cent. or higher, is becoming more serious for the company, and is one of the main causes for its decreased net earnings despite greater gross earnings. It is essential to practice the strictest economy in ordering and using materials and supplies."

NEW JERSEY'S RATE DEMANDS MODIFIED

Petitioners in Preferential Suit Now Want Only a Domestic Reduction.

EFFECT ON EXPORTS SEEN

Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner Is Surprised at New Turn of Case.

After nearly five years spent in preparation of the case and twenty-two days of hearings on the petition of New Jersey municipalities for preferential freight rates under New York, counsel for the petitioners yesterday surprised Examiner Wilbur La Roe, Jr., of the Interstate Commerce Commission by saying it was not their intention to ask for a reduction in rates on export and import traffic, but merely on domestic freight to points in Northern New Jersey. The examiner, as well as all the defendants and intervening counsel, were frank in the expression of their astonishment that this point should have been left until the hearings were virtually at an end.

The hearings have been based on the supposition by the defendants that the word "rates," as used in the petition, referred to all rates affecting New Jersey and not merely to one special class of traffic. Witnesses were called by intervenors to testify on subjects so remotely connected with the domestic rate question as the effect of the Panama Canal on the routes of trade and its consequences to the port of New York. Railroads from all parts of the United States sent counsel to represent them at the hearing on the supposition that the requested preferential affected them directly.

Counsel for the defendants and intervenors were reluctant to comment on the closing development. Julius Henry Cohen, for the State of New York, said that he considered the petitioners had seen the weakness of their case and had sought to save themselves by limiting the scope of the desired rate reduction. Opponents of the petition felt confident the testimony introduced would prove the contention of the City and State of New York and of the carriers, and that the Commission would decide on that evidence. The New Jersey counsel refused to comment on the new interpretation of their petition.

It was the first impression of the defense that an additional hearing would be necessary in order to make the case clear. Examiner La Roe, however, pointed out that the testimony already introduced was voluminous and exhaustive as to rates in general, and covered both domestic and export and import traffic. Acting on this, the defendants called witnesses to make clear their position on the new interpretation of the petition, and rested their case on the testimony already introduced. The new testimony was intended to show that a reduction in domestic rates to New Jersey points necessarily would affect export rates, and that the two could not be considered separately.

Herbert Sheridan, Secretary of the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce, testified that Baltimore would regard a cut in domestic rates in the same light as a cut in export and import rates, and had so contended from the start. The hearing which closed yesterday is said to have gone more exhaustively into the question of rate structure than any which has been yet held by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The witnesses called ranged from experts of thirty years' practical experience, such as W. S. Kallmann of the New York Central Railroad, to Professor Emory R. Johnson of the University of Pennsylvania, who testified on the theory of rates and ratemaking. The exhibits were prepared after months of study and heavy expense.

In adjourning the hearing, Examiner La Roe announced that briefs for the petitioners must be in by March 15. The defendants and intervenors got until April 15 to file their answers. Reply briefs must be in by May 1. Oral arguments on the case are expected to take place about June 1.

DENY NEW HAVEN FACES RECEIVERSHIP

Bankers Put No Credence in Report Which Follows Break in Shares.

STOCK AT NEW LOW LEVEL

Story Intimated Railroad Was Planning to Default on $45,000,000 Notes Due May 1 Next.

A second day break in the shares of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad yesterday, which carried them down to a new low record at 39½, brought a quick denial from bankers associated with the property of a report which had gained wide circulation to the effect that the company would shortly go into a receivership or attempt in some other way a readjustment of its capital position.

The receivership story intimated that it was planned to default on $45,000,000 of short term notes which fall due May 1 next. J. P. Morgan & Co. have assured the management that these notes will be extended at maturity or replaced by another issue. Both issues are secured by collateral. The New Haven has an issue of $25,000,000 of one-year 4½ per cent. notes and the New England Navigation Company $20,000,000 of three-year 6 per cent. notes.

Bankers said yesterday that the New Haven was doing very well, having earned $1,400,000 net in the last six months over the corresponding period of the previous year. It was suggested that arrangements for the May financing might take the form of a new issue of notes running not to exceed five years. The New Haven itself is not allowed under the Massachusetts law to put out notes running more than one year. It may be decided to reduce the amount through the sale of some of the underlying collateral.

Directors of the New Haven reiterated yesterday their earlier denials of the report that Howard Elliott will soon leave the property. He has obtained a leave of absence of two months, but the report that the board is dissatisfied with his work was characterized as part of a campaign to injure the company's standing.

Preferred Stocks of Industrial Corporations

In times of great Industrial prosperity the best grade of such shares attract investment funds because of—

1. Safety of the principal involved.
2. Wide margin of excess profits over dividend requirements.
3. Practical certainty of continuous dividend payments.
4. Liberal yield on the investment.

First consideration should be given to the stocks of corporations whose future will be favorably influenced by Peace, rather than War. An analysis of attractive shares in this group sent by requesting Circular "P-100."

CASTLETON CUT-OFF PLANS.

New York Central Project Ready for Construction Work.

ALBANY, Feb. 1.—A reduction of two to five days on freight shipments between New York, New England, and the West, together with relief of freight congestion at various points and provision for growth of commerce for many years, is the promised result of the so-called "Castleton cut-off" improvement of the New York Central Railroad, which, after ten years of planning, has reached the point of readiness for construction work. Official announcement was made of the plans in an address made by H. Leroy Austin of Albany, counsel for the New York Central, before the Kiwannis Club today.

The handling of an enormous tonnage of freight which now passes through the Albany gateway to and from New York and New England points is involved in the improvement. For the last year the daily average interchange at Albany has amounted to 1,000 freight cars each way between the Western lines and the Boston & Albany Railroad, and 600 carloads between the Western connections and the Hudson River Line of the New York Central, making a total of 3,200 cars that must be moved every twenty-four hours.

The new "cut-off," twenty miles long, will double the freight capacity of the New York Central and nearly double its passenger capacity. The bridge to be thrown across the Hudson two miles south of Castleton, which will cost $5,000,000, must be completed by 1920. The whole project involves the expenditure of $20,000,000.

Leaves $50,000 to Brother-in-Law.

Mrs. Mary Goodwin, who died Jan. 27, left an estate of more than $90,000, according to papers filed yesterday in the Surrogate's Court. Thomas J. Goodwin, her husband's brother, received $50,000, and his wife, Emily Frances Goodwin, $10,000. The will set aside $10,000 for the building of an altar in honor of St. Bernadotte in the Church of Notre Dame, 114th Street and Morningside Avenue, "in memory of Bernard and Mary Goodwin." The Mission of the Immaculate Virgin on Staten Island gets $5,000, the Catholic Institution for the Blind $5,000, and the French Orphan Asylum of St. Vincent de Paul $2,000.

DEMAND FOR BRITISH LOAN.

Latest Offering of $250,000,000 Notes Largely Oversubscribed.

The sale of $250,000,000 of British Government notes, it was announced by J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday, proved the most popular of the four British loans brought out here since the war. Bankers were pleasantly surprised at the demand from investors. Estates and insurance companies were large buyers of the notes.

No figures as to the total subscriptions were obtainable, but the amount was well in excess of the $250,000,000 offered. As a result, J. P. Morgan & Co. stated that a material reduction in allotments had been made necessary. An effort will be made to allot in full all individual subscriptions up to $100,000, as particularly representing private investment demand. In general the allotments on subscriptions above that amount will be cut down 40 to 50 per cent.

A single subscription, received in advance of the public offering, was for $20,000,000 worth of the notes. It was the understanding that this had been allowed in full. The bankers would not comment on a report that the United States Steel Corporation was the buyer of this big block.

Swann to Send Aid to See Whitman.

District Attorney Swann said last night that he would send Assistant District Attorney William Embree to Albany today to make any arrangements that Governor Whitman might suggest in regard to a date for a hearing in the matter of the charges of misconduct made against him by the City Club.

FAIL TO WIN WOMEN TO WEST SIDE PLAN

Opponents of Park Encroachment Hold to First Opinion After Tour of Inspection.

WANT TUNNEL UNDER DRIVE

Tell Mayor and Other Officials That Route Would Damage Public's Playground.

Twenty women of prominence, leaders of the Woman's Association for the Protection of Riverside Park, accompanied Mayor Mitchel, Controller Prendergast, Dock Commissioner Smith, and officials and engineers of the New York Central Railroad over the route of the proposed west side improvement yesterday, but, so far as could be ascertained, were not won over to the project.

The tour was made in automobiles and on a special train and lasted three hours. Before separating at the end of the trip members of the party stopped for a moment's chat in the grand concourse of Grand Central Terminal.

"You have been very courteous and kind," Mrs. Charles A. Bryan, President of the Woman's Association, told Controller Prendergast, "but we are of the same opinion as before. The rails of the company should either be depressed where they are, or taken out of the park altogether and laid under Riverside Drive."

The tour started at 10:45 o'clock in the morning at the Municipal Building, and was arranged to convince the women that their objections to the changes proposed in Riverside Park were founded on an erroneous impression that the park would be destroyed. The plan, as affecting the section between Seventy-second Street and 129th Street, permits the rails to remain where they are, with a covering, or roof, to hide them from view. In order to carry out the plan as it stands, however, it will be necessary to cut into the easterly side of the park to make room for additional tracks.

In addition to Mrs. Bryan the women who made the tour were Mrs. John Clapperton Kerr, Mrs. Stephen L. Coles, Mrs. Henry Wise Wood, Mrs. Robert McNall, Mrs. James G. Wentz, Mrs. Herbert Smythe, Mrs. Perry Boynton, Mrs. John C. Coleman, Mrs. Jean Dwight Franklin, Mrs. Clarence Venner, Mrs. Charles Melville Shrady, Mrs. William R. Stewart, Mrs. James M. Stewart, Miss Marian Peters, Mrs. William Gaillard, Mrs. Homer Lee, Mrs. J. S. Turner, Mrs. Giuseppe Giancola, and Mrs. William V. Griffith.

Although entirely harmonious, the trip occasioned much discussion. The train was stopped at various points in the park, and Mayor Mitchel, Mr. Prendergast, Deputy Controller Morgan, Dock Commissioner Smith, as well as Vice President Ira Place of the New York Central, Charles W. Leavitt, the landscape architect, and several engineers in the employ of the city and the railroad explained the proposed changes.

"I felt after the trip was over as did Mrs. Bryan," said Mrs. James M. Stewart, First Vice President of the Woman's Association for the Protection of Riverside Park. "We cannot but feel that the present plans call for the very serious impairment of the park. We told the Mayor and the others so, and we would be remiss in our duty if we did not protest."

Other members of the Woman's Association asserted that they had no desire simply to figure as obstructionists, but that their inspection of the physical changes contemplated had only strengthened their determination to carry on the fight to save one of New York's most pleasant open spaces from being given over to the uses of the railroad.

Before starting on the trip the women pinned on the lapels of the men's coats small enameled buttons reading, "Save Riverside Park," and they wore them gallantly until they reached Grand Central Terminal.

Pending a decision by Supreme Court Justice Cropsey in the injunction proceedings, in which the city refused to participate on Monday, no action was taken either by the Corporation Counsel or Special Counsel Charles E. Hughes yesterday.

DENY OPPOSING DRIVE PLANS.

17 Out of 20 Civic Organizations Not Going to Albany.

E. H. Outerbridge, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association, have sent a letter to THE TIMES in which they question the accuracy of a statement made by Thomas B. McKenna, a lawyer of 20 Broad Street, that twenty civic organizations had signified their intention of being represented by delegates at the hearing at Albany on Feb. 6 on the Ottinger-Ellenbogen bills, which would transfer jurisdiction over the New York Central west side plan from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to the Public Service Commission. In addition several organizations on the list furnished by Mr. McKenna have individually denied that they will take part in such a movement.

Mr. McKenna was interviewed twice on the subject matter of his statement—on the night before the article was published, and on the day of publication. At the second interview he insisted that he had "received assurances of co-operation" from all the organizations mentioned by him. Since then he has furnished no statement. The letter from Mr. Outerbridge and Mr. Morgan gives the list of twenty civic bodies quoted by Mr. McKenna, and then says:

"It was stated that these organizations had signified their intention of being represented at the hearing, and inference was given that many of them were in favor of the bills. Knowing that the greater part of these organizations are on record as favoring the principle of Home Rule and that they are especially in favor of the plans as drawn by the city and the New York Central Railroad, steps were taken to inquire just what action had been taken by the commercial and civic organizations referred to.

"The inquiry revealed that of the twenty organizations named, seventeen of the leading bodies mentioned have not taken any action as reported in the statement referred to nor have delegates been appointed to attend the hearing. We were not able to get in touch with all of the bodies named. A number of the organizations stated that they were already recorded as favoring the plans as drawn, and that if any action were taken by them it would, in all probability, be as opposing the transfer of jurisdiction to the Public Service Commission."

Suffrage Headquarters Reception.

The addition to suffrage headquarters of the offices of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, 50 East Thirty-fourth Street, which has been joined to the old quarters at 48 East Thirty-fourth Street, was observed yesterday afternoon with a reception and house-warming on the second floor of the old building, where refreshments were served. Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman, and Mrs. John Humphrey Watkins, Chairman of Manhatan Borough, received the guests. A new feature which is to be introduced at the party headquarters is a 50-cent luncheon which is to be served on the reception room floor with prominent women serving as hostesses each for a week.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Prices in the wheat market took a turn for the better yesterday, and at the close showed net gains of 3¼c to 4c. There was considerable buying on the theory that the market had been oversold and was consequently in a firmer technical position. The trade, however, was inclined to be cautious, owing to fears of political developments which might have a bearish influence on the market. Most of the advance occurred during the last hour. In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at $1.98; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $2.11; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $2.09¾, all free on board, New York.

September	1.38½	1.35¼	1.38½	1.35¼	..

CORN.

The corn market was firmer, closing with net gains of 1¼ to 1½c. The cash position again showed strength, with a good demand to fill export contracts. Export sales were estimated at 300,000 bushels, and it was said that a larger business could have been done if the cash article had been available. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $1.12½, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market was only moderately active, but prices were firmer in sympathy with wheat and corn, closing ⅛c to 1c higher. There was a fair export inquiry, and sales were estimated at 250,000 bushels. The local cash market was steady; standard quoted at 68@68½c; No. 3 white, 67½@68c; No. 4 white, 66½@67½c; fancy clipped white, 70@71c; ordinary clipped white, 68½@69c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was only moderately active, but the buying was of a rather better character than the selling, and prices were firm, especially late in the day, when they worked up in sympathy with grain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 38,000; estimated for Wednesday, 50,000; Kansas City received 17,000 and Omaha 20,800.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was again quiet, with the trade at large inclined to be apathetic and await developments. Early in the day the market showed a slightly easier tone, but subsequently prices rallied and closed firm with net gains of 3 to 9 points. Total sales were 10,500 barrels. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The market for sugar futures opened unchanged to 2 points higher, and while the business for the day was not large, being 8,100 tons, prices held steady, closing 3 to 4 points net higher. Trade interests were covering a little in the near positions, but sentiment continued nervous and unsettled, due to the strike at refineries. Range of prices:

There was no change in refined sugar prices, which were listed at 6.75c for fine granulated by all refiners. Trading was moderate, and it was said that labor difficulties continue, and fear is expressed of its spreading to outport refineries. Raw sugar took a steadier tone at the close of the market, and after sales of 16,000 bags first and second half February shipment at 3¾c, cost and freight, to a local refiner, further offerings at that price were said to have been withdrawn, although operators were showing a further buying interest. It was reported that Cuban planters now had additional facilities for storing sugar, and that the unsettled situation here due to the spreading of the strike allowed them to place sugar in store there rather than press sales at this time. Quotations follow: Centrifugal, 4.89c; molasses, 4.02c; cost and freight, 3¾c.

COFFEE.

The coffee market was a little more active yesterday, with prices working higher on covering and a moderate demand from trade sources. May contracts, for instance, sold up to 8.64c and September to 8.82c, or 8 to 11 points above Monday's closing figures. The close was within a point or two of the best, showing a net gain of 6 to 9 points, and sales were estimated at 40,000 bags. The local spot market remained quiet, with prices unchanged on the basis of 10c for Rio 7s and 10⅝c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 11,149 packages. Monday's advance was held without difficulty, but there was no effort to crowd prices any higher. Jobbing requirements were about sufficient to absorb the offerings of fine and fancy fresh goods, but there was less speculative inquiry in the secondary grades, and these are not cleaning up so well. Renovated, slightly firmer. Ladles and packing stock favor the seller. Creamery, higher scoring than extras, per pound, 48@48½c; extras, (92 score,) 42@42½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 37½@41½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 35@37c; thirds, 33½@34½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 44@44½c; extras, 43@43½c; firsts, 38@42c; seconds, 35@37c; creamery, held, higher than extras, 39½c; extras, 38½@39c; firsts, 36@38c; seconds, 34¼@35½c; thirds, 33@34c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 40@41c; good to prime, 37@39c; common to fair, 29@36c; renovated, extras, 34c; firsts, 32@33c; lower grades, 29@31c; imitation creamery, firsts, 31@32c; ladles, current make, firsts, 29@30c; seconds, 28½c; lower grades, 27@28c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 28@28½c; No. 2, 27½c; lower grades, 25½@27c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 4,860 cases. Arrivals continue moderate, but with advices of increasing production and shipment from some sections in the West and South and declining interior markets, the position here has weakened. There is still some surplus of fresh gathered eggs on hand beyond immediate needs, but the decline has awakened a little speculative inquiry sufficient to support the market at present quotations. Storage eggs easier, but some holders have confidence in the future and are refusing to sell their finest eggs at present top quotation. Nearby white eggs are lower under rather liberal offerings; some accumulation in first hands. Fresh gathered, extra fine, per dozen, 42½@43c; extra firsts, 42c; firsts, 41@41½c; seconds and lower grades, 39@40½c; refrigerator, firsts, 37½c; seconds, 36@37c; lower grades, 34½@35½c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 45@46c; ordinary to good, 42@44c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 42@45c; nearby pullets eggs, whites, 40@41c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 42@44c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, hennery browns, 42@44c; gathered brown and mixed colors, firsts to extra firsts, 41@42c.

COTTON PRICES FALL

Market Closes Steady at Net Loss of 9 to 13 Points—Volume of Trading Light.

The cotton market yesterday opened barely steady at a decline of 2 to 8 points. There was scattering liquidation, and before the end of the morning session active months sold about 16 to 22 points net lower. Offerings then tapered off, and a partial recovery ensued, with May contracts selling up from 17.29 to 17.45. Realizing caused the final reaction of 5 or 6 points, and the general list closed quiet and steady at a net loss of 9 to 12 points for the day. The volume of trading was light.

It was reported that prominent London authorities had reiterated their estimate placing the world's probable consumption of American cotton for this season at 14,750,000 bales. These figures attracted considerable attention on the afternoon rally, but bullish statistical arguments have recently failed to inspire any general buying.

Spot house brokers were moderate buyers on the early decline and the buying of October by foreign trade interests, which has been a recent feature, was not much in evidence. The South reported no change in the spot situation.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Wholesale Dry Goods Men Want Child Labor Law Amended.

Thomas A. Fernley, Secretary-Treasurer of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association, in a letter being sent out to members, calls attention to the fact that the National Child Labor act becomes effective Sept. 1 next. It is pointed out that wholesalers are particularly interested in Section 5, which provides that prosecutions shall be brought against dealers unless they can establish a guarantee issued by the person by whom the good were manufactured or produced.

Many wholesalers consulted declared that this provision would prove most troublesome, it being their preference that the guarantee of the wholesaler or manufacturer or other party from whom such articles were purchased should be permitted, so that in case of purchase by a retailer from a wholesaler a chain of guaranties could be established; that is, a guarantee from manufacturer to wholesaler, and from wholesaler to retailer.

As the law stands, jobbers anticipate the possibility of considerable trouble if retail dealers insist upon a guarantee from manufacturers covering the various items purchased.

Mr. Fernley suggested that the act be amended so as to make the guarantee clause identical with Section 9 of the Federal Food and Drugs act, which stipulates that no dealer shall be prosecuted under the provision of this act when he can establish a guarantee from the party from whom he obtained the title.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

A clear-cut illustration of the value of city realty in the choicest centres of activity was given yesterday in the Vesey Street Salesroom, when the Broadway corner owned by the late Peter De Lacy, at the southeast corner of Forty-seventh Street, in the upper Times Square section, was sold for $450,000. It is a small plot, occupied by two old four-story buildings, adjoining the Palace Theatre, fronting 40.5 on Broadway by 80 on Forty-seventh Street. The plot contains 3,240 square feet, so that the price paid averaged about $139 a square foot. Another feature of interest is that the assessed value last year was $309,000, showing that the successful buyer regarded it as a good investment at $141,000 over the assessed valuation.

Sol Bloom was the buyer of the little corner, and it was said he would offer it at private sale. Wolpin & Wolpin, restaurateurs, hold a lease on the property expiring next May at $2,000 a year, made twenty-one years ago. Mr. De Lacy during his lifetime held it at a valuation of $500,000, and it is said that a recent offer was made to lease the plot on a basis of $30,000 a year. Joseph P. Day was the auctioneer.

Two other parcels of the De Lacy estate were also sold, one being the four-story building at 43 West Twenty-ninth Street, 25 by 98.9, which went to Samuel Glaser for $47,500, and the other was the southeast corner of Jerome Avenue and 190th Street, 258.3 by 154.4, which was purchased by B. L. Kraus for $69,500. The three parcels of the estate brought a total of $567,000.

New Realty Co. Buys the Britania.

The Britania, a modern nine-story apartment house at 527 West 110th Street, has been sold by Julius Stein to the recently organized Aemar Realty Company, of which Arthur E. Marsh is President, for investment.

The structure occupies a plot 108.4 by 100 feet, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue. It is assessed by the city for taxation purposes at $365,000.

$185,000 Mortgage on the Swannanda Apartment Resold.

Ferguson Brothers & Forshay have resold to the Remor Corporation a first mortgage of $185,000 at 5 per cent. covering the Swannanda, a ten-story apartment house at 105 and 107 East Fifteenth Street.

In part payment the buyer gave 719 Prospect Place, Bronx, a four-story apartment on a plot 30 by 100 feet, and 248 Maple Street, Brooklyn, a three-story dwelling on a plot 80 by 100.

Old Structure on Orchard Street Sold.

The Winckler estate sold to Isidore M. Levy 156 Orchard Street, an old five-story building with a four-story structure in the rear occupying a lot 25 by 100. This is the first transfer of the property in fifty years. The site will probably be improved with a modern tenement.

Dyckman Apartment Resold.

The Ceri Realty Company purchased from Frederick Brown, operator, 686 Academy Street, a five-story apartment on a plot 50 by 153 feet.

In part payment the buyer gave two vacant plots on Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, at the corner of Ninety-third Street, 117 by 114 by 86 by 109, and the corner of Eighty-seventh Street, 80 by 100 by 118 by 107. John A. Wood was the broker.

Mr. Brown recently acquired the Academy Street property, together with the adjoining house, 682, which has also been resold, from the Hudson Investing Company.

The recently organized Shamrock Realty Company has purchased from Maurice Mulcahy 135 and 137 West 145th Street, a six-story flat on a plot 43.9 by 99.11.

Mathilda White sold to Carrie Litt the four five-story and basement flats at 56 to 60, on a plot 75 by 100.11, and 50 East 119th Street, 30 by 100.11, subject to a mortgage for $111,500. Title passed yesterday.

Buyers for Two East Harlem Dwellings.

The Lawyers Mortgage Company sold through Otto Boden the two-story brick house at 250 East 110th Street and the three-story brownstone house at 348 East 118th Street.

Bronx Sales.

Cahn & Pittman have purchased from the Frederick Williams Company the two-story and basement frame two-family dwelling known as 1,172 Union Avenue, on a lot 19 by 100.

H. Hornstein sold to Bernard Kahn the five-story apartment house 780 Prospect Avenue, on a plot of 37.6 by 110 feet. In part payment the buyer gave the two-family house 745 Kelly Street, on a lot 25 by 100; also 2,321 Beaumont Avenue, a private house, on a plot 50 by 100. Alexander Mantinband negotiated the trade.

SHIP AGROUND IN NO DANGER

Vessel Off Barnegat Norwegian Steamer Loaded with Sugar.

The steamship which grounded late Monday night in the thick fog on the southeast end of Barnegat Shoals, N. J., and sent out signals of distress was identified yesterday as the Norwegian steamship Bowden, bound from Cienfuegos to New York, with 8,600 bags of sugar for the Federal Sugar Refining Company. It was not until the United States Coast Guard cutter Mohawk arrived at 9 o'clock that the crew of the life-saving station at Barnegat were able to make out the vessel's name. Lines were run out, and the Mohawk tried for two hours to get the Bowden off with the assistance of her own engines, but could not move her.

The Commander of the Mohawk sent a wireless for assistance, and has instructions to stand by until a wrecking tug can reach the stranded steamship. The sea is calm.

TRICING NOT ILLEGAL, SPENCER'S DEFENSE

Lieutenant Pleads to Court-Martial That Same Punishment Was Inflicted in Army.

TOOK ACTION UNDER ORDERS

Regular Officer Testifies That He Gave Warning That Such Penalties Were Not in Favor.

First Lieut. Frank A. Spencer, Second New York Field Artillery, who is on trial by court-martial at Fort Totten, charged with ordering five men lashed to gun carriage wheels, testifying in his own behalf yesterday afternoon, told the court, of which Colonel William A. Haan, U. S. A., is President, that he did not consider that he had done anything illegal. He added that he understood such punishment had been practiced at times on the border among the militia. His counsel also contended that it had been practiced in the regular army at Tobyhanna, Penn., in the Summer of 1915.

Lieutenant Spencer also testified that he did not order the men lashed to the wheels until he had been ordered to do so by Captain W. T. Wright, his superior. Captain Wright was Officer of the Day at the time, Jan. 9.

For the first time since the incident occurred Lieutenant Spencer told his story of the affair yesterday. He had as counsel Colonel Alexander M. Bacon, a former officer in the regular army. Spencer himself was the last witness called. He explained that he had received an order from Lieut. Col. Frank H. Hines, in command at the time, to put the five prisoners, then in the guard room, to cleaning up the drill ring at the armory, in the Bronx. The prisoners refused, and subsequently, he said, a Sergeant reported that the men had entered into an agreement not to work.

"I went to the guardhouse," continued Spencer, "and ordered every man to do the work required. Then I reported the matter to Captain Wright, and he told me that if they did not work to tie them up. I then had the men marched into the ring, and asked each one, in turn, 'Will you work?' When they replied in the negative, I informed Captain Wright, and he said, 'Tie them up!'

"I ordered a sentry to tie them to the wheels, and told the sentinel in each instance that as soon as a man would give in and consent to obey orders to release him. That was done."

"How were the men tied?" asked Colonel Bacon.

"As near as I can recall, to the spokes of the wheels by the arms. One or two, perhaps, also by the feet. The arms were spread out about half way between the hips and shoulders."

"How many of the five men were intoxicated the night before?"

"Three of them."

"Was there any demonstration by other members of the regiment?"

"One man named McKeever made some comments, and I ordered him arrested."

"What did he say?"

"He said that it was a 'damn shame,' and 'damn these militia officers,' and that he did not blame the men for refusing to work."

Captain Offnere Hope, U. S. A., the Judge Advocate, asked the Lieutenant if when Captain Wright ordered the men tied up he, Spencer, had informed Captain Wright that the method of punishment ordered was illegal.

"I did not consider it illegal. I considered that I was doing my duty."

"As an officer in the United States Army, (the Second Field Artillery was still in the Federal service on Jan. 9,) did you think that the articles of war authorized that form of restraint?"

"Yes."

"On what did you base that opinion?"

"To quell mutiny, to prevent disorder, and a serious situation. I believed that it was a good thing to do under the circumstances."

In answer to a question by Colonel Haan Lieutenant Spencer admitted that he had suggested the form of punishment.

Captain Robert Campbell, U. S. A., who was in the armory on mustering out duty, on the day the men were tied up, testified that he had told Lieutenant Spencer such forms of punishment were not looked upon with favor in the regular army, and warned him that as civilians were present in the galleries the incident might result in unpleasant publicity.

All the other witnesses, including Colonel George A. Wingate, commander of the regiment, testified as to the high character of Lieutenant Spencer, who is a Harvard graduate, well known in civil life as a lawyer.

In his plea to the court in behalf of Lieutenant Spencer, Colonel Bacon emphasized the wide difference of conditions existing in the regular army and in the National Guard. Without discipline the National Guard would, he said, be a menace to the public. He compared the discipline administered on Jan. 9 to the discipline that a father would inflict on an erring child. The punishment meted out to the men, he said, was not illegal when all the circumstances were taken into consideration. He also stated that "the proof is that it is common," and referred to the testimony given by a previous witness, who said that a Captain Jones of the regular army had ordered an enlisted regular tied to the top of a wagon during the artillery manoeuvres at Tobyhanna, Penn., in the Summer of 1915. He spoke of the five prisoners as "drunkards and undesirables."

Captain Hope in closing for the Government said that such punishment was not permissible, no matter what it was called.

The court adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the case of Captain Wright, on similar charges, will be called.

The findings in the Spencer case will be sealed and sent for revision to Major General Wood, commanding the Eastern Department.

SHOCK RECORDED HERE.

Seismograph at Fordham Shows Earthquake Was 4,800 Miles Away.

The seismograph at Fordham University registered an earthquake Monday night, the needle recording vibrations severer than any within a year. The first shock occurred at 9:48 P. M., and tremors continued over an hour after. Scientists at the university studied the instrument's records and from it concluded that the earthquake must have been about 4,800 miles from New York.

Dispatches from Washington and Cleveland reported that the seismographs at Georgetown University and St. Ignatius College respectively had recorded the tremors of Monday night at approximately the same time as here. The instrument at Georgetown recorded the first shock at 9:47 o'clock, one minute ahead of the Fordham seismograph. At 10:26 there was a shock so violent that the needles on two of the four seismographs at Georgetown were thrown off their scales.

WOMEN WIN NO RECRUITS.

Not a Man Enlists in the Army in Response to Their Appeals.

New Yorkers can't be shamed into joining the army. The plan failed yesterday when tried by a group of women headed by Mrs. J. C. Gregory, wife of Major Gregory of Fort Slocum; Mrs. Robert Emmet Goolrick, wife of Captain Goolrick, in charge of the recruiting station at Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue, and Miss Adele Rowland, an actress. They got an army tent, a big flag, recruiting literature and several soldiers attached to the recruiting station, and camped in Bryant Park to appeal to men to join the colors.

A lot of men hung around the tent and read the recruiting appeals and talked to the patriotic women, but it was not of record at the recruiting station late yesterday afternoon that any of them had joined the army. Not that Miss Rowland, who sings in "Her Soldier Boy" at a Broadway Theatre, and the other women failed to tell the men what "their duty" was. The men just didn't seem enthusiastic over promising to carry a gun for Uncle Sam. The idea back of the tent was that, as English women had shamed the men of London into enlisting, the same thing might work in New York. But it didn't.

"We didn't do anything wonderful," said Mrs. Gregory last night, "but, all the same, I think it is a good idea. I think that if women were to establish such recruiting stations all over the city it would have a good result upon the recruiting in New York."

CHARITY PLAY ON SUNDAY.

Neighborhood Playhouse Cashier Is Charged with Violating the Law.

Magistrate Breen in the Essex Market Court reserved decision yesterday afternoon as to whether the Neighborhood Playhouse at 463 Grand Street, which is under the auspices of the Henry Street Settlement, violated the Sabbath law on Jan. 21 when a theatrical performance took place there. Miss Kaplan, who acted as cashier, was the defendant, on a charge of violating the Sabbath law.

Miss Lillian Wald, head resident of the settlement, testified the shows were solely for charitable and philanthropic purposes, and that the theatre is not maintained for profit, but shows a deficit of some $12,000 to $16,000 a year. Dr. Henry Moskowitz, President of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, and Miss Lewisohn testified to the character of the play and the playhouse. Miss Lewisohn stated that she and her sister had in the past paid the deficit. Magistrate Breen intimated that it was purely a question of law and asked for briefs. No date for decision was set.

G. L. Genung Appointed a Justice.

Mayor Mitchel yesterday appointed George L. Genung, Assistant Corporation Counsel, a Justice of the Municipal Court, Ninth District, Manhattan, to succeed Justice Frank D. Sturges, who resigned. Mr. Genung is a graduate of Cornell University and the New York Law School.

A great staff of professors, including Professor Basile G. d'Ouakil, L-es-Ll., of the University of Lyons; Professor Samuel J. Martinez, of Salamanca University; Professor Pedro Cezon of Madrid; and Professor Charles Angulo of Havana, Cuba, has been assembled and will be in attendance commencing today to teach this class.

Our celebrated $10 thirty lesson conversational French Course also is to open today, and it will be taught by Baron Albert Du Vivier, Eleve du Conservatoire de Paris; and Professor Henry Anger, former lecturer of the French American Alliance of Philadelphia and Boston.

Business men and business women, as well as society men and society women, realize the importance of a knowledge of foreign languages now more than ever before and the result is that about twelve hundred representative New Yorkers are already enrolled to take one or the other of these courses.
